MONDAY: Martin Mickey Stein testified that three of the four defendants came to him late in February and sought his help in arranging a "dope" buy with Leonard Johnson, because through Johnson they could "get" Dr. Silverstein.

TUESDAY: George Fleming, Negro special officer, testified that he saw city clerk Loog add something to the bottle of alleged dope that had been obtained from Johnson after a series of tests for narcotic had proved negative.

WEDNESDAY: The court was told that the government dropped the case because there was a missing link and Henry was quoted by City Magistrate Andrews with admitting they were caught and saying "We might as well take

State Rests After Putting 26 Witnesses on Stand in Four Days of "Dope" Trial

(By C. BYRON WORTMAN) (Staff Correspondent) FREEHOLD, July 20.—Molded carefully step by step by the clever hands of Assistant Prosecutor J. Victor Carlton to a virtually inescapable point, the State's case versus Roland H. Loog, et als, was rested yesterday.

At 3:19 p. m., the State's young prosecuting attorney executed his final witness, the last of 26 men that have taken the stand during four long days of testimony before Judge Walter D. Van Riper and a jury of five women and seven men in Quarter Sessions Court.

Roder Says Powder Test Seemed to Show Purple, Indicating Some Heroin

(By Staff Correspondent) FREEHOLD, July 20.—The state rested yesterday in its trial of four Asbury Park men, three of them city officials, on charges of conspiring to defame Councilman Dr. Max Silverstein, after nine more witnesses had been called to the stand by Assistant Prosecutor J. Victor Carlton.

The cross-examination of Max Roder, U. S. narcotic agent, and his admission, when confronted by statements signed by him, that he obtained reactions of any analysis at the People's Drug Store that led him to believe the powder contained heroin, came early in the testimony.

Q. Tell us what you reported about the People's Drug Store to your superior in Philadelphia.

A. After Mr. Miller made the test, I made the test, tried it again. I asked him for some formaldehyde and sulphate. I mixed that, rubbed that on the slab, and when I looked at that I thought I obtained a very slight purple color.

Q. You never said a word yesterday about obtaining a purple color.

A. I wasn't asked that yesterday.

Q. You were told to tell us the reaction of the test that took place at the People's Drug Store.

Rest of Group Escapes as Authorities Descend on Office Where Calls Were Made

ORGANIZATIONS' NAMES USED TO CHEAT PUBLIC

Veterans Received Only Part of Cash Collected, Is Claim

(By Staff Correspondent) RED BANK, July 20.—Accompanied by Chief of Police Harry H. Clayton, local Chamber of Commerce officials led by John P. G. McPhee, executive secretary, yesterday afternoon descended on one of the temporary offices set up by a group of "telephone promoters" and took into custody the one individual who had failed to heed a warning to suspend business delivered earlier in the day.

Brought to police headquarters, the man gave his name as John Deitch, 3380 Frankfort Street, Philadelphia. A complaint charging nuisance was signed, but when Deitch promised to turn over to the Chamber all money collected together with a list of subscribers, so that the funds could be returned, he was not arrested. He will make restitution today, following which he will leave town immediately.

Deitch was found in the headquarters in the Elmsier Building on Broad Street. Four telephones had been rented, and solicitors were selling tickets for a "benefit" for the Carlton Theatre Building where six phones had been rented and were being used to solicit tickets ostensibly for the Disabled American Veterans. The promoters had all apparently left town when tipped off that authorities "We would probably sanction subscriptions for a county body in which that organization received all the funds, but when the name of a reputable group is used, and they only get a small percentage out of the ticket sale, then we must protect our local residents," said Mr. McPhee today.

Earlier in the day John Doe warrants had been issued for the operators of an office in the Carlton Theatre Building where six phones had been rented and were being used to solicit tickets ostensibly for the Disabled American Veterans. The promoters had all apparently left town when tipped off that authorities "We would probably sanction subscriptions for a county body in which that organization received all the funds, but when the name of a reputable group is used, and they only get a small percentage out of the ticket sale, then we must protect our local residents," said Mr. McPhee today.

What appears to be a solid wall of evidence that the Conspirators sought through the devious paths of a "dope" buy to defame another member of the city council, Dr. Max Silverstein, has risen slowly but consistently through the four days of the trial so far. Carlton has pieced together damaging testimony.

L. B. SCHOOL BOARD AWARDS CONTRACTS

Bids for All Supplies, Except in Physical Education Dept., Accepted

Contracts for all supplies for the coming school year with the exception of those needed by the physical education departments, were awarded at a special meeting of the Board of Education, held yesterday afternoon in the Intermediate School on Morris Avenue.

Those present at the meeting were Kearney Reid, Carney Sofke, E. T. M. Carr, Charles T. Stone, superintendent of schools, and Harold West, secretary of the board.

The names of the low bidders were read by the secretary, and the members of the board unanimously passed his suggestions.

The biggest item—general supplies—was awarded to Peckham, Little Co., of New York, who handed in a bid of $2400. The Chicago Apparatus Company received the contract for scientific and biological materials, and the art and mechanical drawing supplies will be furnished by four different companies, Milton Bradley, Technical Supply, Dietzgen, and Talens School Products.

The janitor's manual training and other supplies were all itemized, and the contracts for the various materials was divided about equally between local and out-of-town bidders.

The contract for physical education equipment will not be awarded until the board finds out exactly the type of materials needed.

VISITOR HURT ON SLIDE

Five Days of Horse Racing Planned at Freehold; Track May Be Made into One-Mile

Some of Best Mounts in East to Compete; Buildings Are Being Fixed Up

(By Staff Correspondent) FREEHOLD, July 20.—Monmouth County, 40 years ago the home of one of the largest race tracks in the East, again may enjoy its former glory of hoofs thundering down the home stretch while breathless thousands watch.

Such was indicated today when Mortimer F. Lynch, New York racing impresario, and owner of the Freehold Driving Park, announced that five days of horse racing would be held here beginning Aug. 29 and ending Sept. 3.

Preparations for the meet, which may result in a revival of racing here, already are under way at the Driving Park. The grandstand, the paddocks, the stables and other buildings are being painted, a new track fence is being installed, and the track is about to be softened for the runners.

For running races they will be held in this in spite of the fact that the track is a half-mile one.

Races are to be held by the Freehold Racing Association, of which John VonBargen is president, Charles Ward Golden, secretary, and Paddy Fouly, general manager Lynch is treasurer.

According to Lynch, if the Freehold meet is successful it may result in construction of a mile track here. Plenty of room is available on the back stretch and turns to lengthen the present track, he declares. If such action is taken, and the current liberal sentiment towards the "hosses" continues, New Jersey it may mean that Freehold will become the racing center of New Jersey, Lynch says.

At least 30 races will be held, and possibly 36, with some of the best horses in the East competing. All races will be a mile or more.

Purses of $350 will be offered for each race, with a special purse on Labor Day, and possibly one of the features of the meet will be inauguration of the Billy Oliver Memorial Handicap, in honor of the "Sage of Lakewood," famous old trainer, boat builder and horse lover.

Harry Price of the Washington Post is to act as judge; Fred Parks is to be steward; George Ryall (Audax Minor of the New Yorker) will be general secretary; booking, the rammer, Walter Mara, Charles-ton starter, will be starter, and Frank Bray will be paddock and patrol judge.

Frank Gwozzio, in Hospital, Not Expected to Live; Police Skeptical of Story

KEYPORT, July 20.—A heavy veil of mystery shrouded the murder of Mrs. Annie Allocco, 37, whose body was found slumped in a pool of blood in the kitchen of her home on Broad Street shortly after her cousin Frank Gwozzio, 40, was found dying with three bullet wounds in his body on the lawn in front of the home shortly after 9 o'clock this morning.

TOURS L. B. BEACHES FOR SEA DAMAGE

J. Spencer Smith, President of Navigation Board, Reviews Local Coastline

A tour of Long Branch beaches for the purpose of noting recent damage caused by the sea, has been made by J. Spencer Smith, president of the State Board of Navigation.

Mr. Smith and Mrs. Smith were recent guests of Mayor Dorman McFaddin and Mrs. McFaddin and a close survey of the beaches was made. Mr. Smith has long advocated the appropriation of federal and state funds for defraying expenses incident to protecting the Jersey beaches against the erosion ravages of the ocean.

The board president told the mayor that considerable missionary work would have to be done among the inland counties of the state and the inland states of the union before progress could be made in obtaining state and federal funds.

It is difficult for these inland counties and states to realize the tremendous importance of checking erosion along the shores of the state. They contend, the mayor said, that inasmuch as resorts along the shore benefit from the expense of maintaining the beaches.

Mr. Smith is of the opinion, Mayor McFaddin says, that through propaganda and education residents of inland sections must be shown that despite any profit incident to running the beaches, the seashore resorts would find it impossible to build and maintain bathing beaches without state and federal financial assistance.

With few resort exceptions it has been shown that few resorts along the north Jersey shore have been self-supporting from a bathing standpoint. Mr. Smith has in the past strongly supported the outside aid plan and has promised to continue this support.

Government funds will be unavailable for any work this year, but as a result of Mr. Smith's visit to this city, resort municipalities will be organized and meet in Trenton in October for the purpose of planning some method of obtaining financial aid. Mayor McFaddin has accepted the task of organizing the Monmouth County resort cities.

Plans for an educational campaign will be made at the meeting

BODY OF WOMAN FOUND SLUMPED IN KITCHEN

Kin Discovered in Yard, Frantically Trying to Get Assistance

KEYPORT, July 20.—A heavy veil of mystery shrouded the murder of Mrs. Annie Allocco, 37, whose body was found slumped in a pool of blood in the kitchen of her home on Broad Street shortly after her cousin Frank Gwozzio, 40, was found dying with three bullet wounds in his body on the lawn in front of the home shortly after 9 o'clock this morning.

Local and county police were stirred to action in an effort to solve the mysterious shooting of which they have their own version and an incoherent story from the dying man that "a stranger" invaded the Allocco home and shot Mrs. Allocco through the heart and attacked her defender, her cousin.

Mrs. Allocco, wife of Frank Allocco, and mother of three children, was murdered, police declare, in a battle with Gwozzio to defend her honor.

Gwozzio, who is dying in the Matawan Hospital, told police, however, a stranger did the shooting and that he was shot in the scuffle that followed. He had (Continued on Third Page)

These articles will be of particular interest to parents and taxpayers because of the special election July 31 to determine whether the borough should accept a PWA grant and loan of $215,250 for an addition to the high school. A spirited controversy has arisen in Red Bank over the advisability of constructing the addition.

students. By May, 1930, this number had increased to 604, a growth in 10 years of 93.5 per cent. At present, the high school enrollment is approximately 700 students.

Several years ago the Red Bank Planning Board engaged the services of Herbert S. Swan, nationally known city planner, together with George W. Tuttle, engineer, and Erwin T. Muller. In delivering their report to the mayor and council, the board declared: "This is a comprehensive program for the future. Many of the projects outlined will pay for themselves through increased property values." The board, of which J.

Daniel Tuller is chairman, is composed of W. A. Clayton, Newton Doremus, Mayor Charles R. English, Councilman James S. Parkes, Leon Reussille, Jr., and S. S. Thompson.

Mr. Swan attributed the unusually large growth in the high school to the fact that Red Bank is not growing as rapidly as contiguous areas. He found out that about 25 per cent of the total high school enrollment is from Fair Haven, Rumson, Little Silver, and other communities.

CORPSE LACKING FOR MURDER CASE

Capt. Poderjaj Would Be Tried If Wife's Body Could Be Found

By PAUL HARRISON

NEW YORK.—A new police official heads the search for Agnes Tufverson. More operatives have been enlisted in tracing and patching together bits of evidence gathered from half a dozen countries. And the fantastic case, which holds rank among the most baffling of international mysteries, still founders in a welter of clues.

Over in Vienna, Capt. Ivan Ivanovitch Poderjaj sits in a cell and smiles as he lies to infuriated but helpless questioners. The suave poseur, adventurer, bigamist and swindler is charged with "suspicion of murder."

In another cell is Marguerite Suzanne Ferrand, who while the wife of Poderjaj urged him to marry Miss Tufverson "so that if anything wonderful happens we will have money." She was wearing one of Miss Tufverson's frocks on the day Poderjaj was arrested, and she is charged with "suspicion of murder."

Grim Jigsaw Puzzle

In New York a great stack of documented testimony, reports, photostats and the like fills a drawer in the desk of Capt. John Stein, new chief of the police department's Bureau of Missing Persons. Captain Stein has 16 men on the case, and they are still turning in bits of the jigsaw which indicate that the puzzle, if it ever is completed, will be a shocking picture.

But of the key-piece, the one which will prove the missing woman alive or dead, there is not a trace.

It has been seven months since anyone has seen the woman attorney, and the long interval proved a discouraging obstacle to police. Witnesses have forgotten details which might have been important, and vital physical evidence probably has been destroyed. But from a maze of clues and rumors authorities now have arrived at the facts of much of what actually happened.

Their Romance Reviewed

They met on a boat train, and later on a liner, when she was returning from a vacation trip to Scotland more than a year ago. He represented himself as a wealthy Yugoslavian and said he was coming to America to sell an invention.

Miss Tufverson was not a pretty woman, or attractively feminine. Yet Poderjaj paid her marked attention; many noticed his apparent devotion. He says she was the one who proposed marriage—that she had contemplated suicide because of some unhappy amorous experience and desired marriage to restore her self-respect. None of her friends believes this; they say she had no such emotional crisis, that she was not of the brooding sort, and that the prospect of marriage to the polished, charming foreigner made her radiantly happy.

On Dec. 4, when the pair took out a wedding license, Poderjaj falsely swore that he was unmarried and never had been divorced. She gave her age as 33; it was 43. They were married at the famous Little Church Around the Corner, and that evening Poderjaj moved his luggage to her three-room apartment.

Maid Reports Quarrel

On Dec. 20, at 5 P. M., the couple went to the pier of the Hamburg-American line. They had several pieces of hand luggage; no trunks. He may have intended to sail alone, although he had no reservation. She may have insisted on accompanying him, an arrangement not to his liking because he knew his real wife would be waiting at the dock in Southampton. Anyway they quarreled, returned to the apartment, and were still quarreling when a Negro maid went to the apartment at 11 o'clock that night. Poderjaj told the maid not to come in next day, but to come the following day. That was the last time Miss Tufverson is known to have been seen alive.

On Dec. 21 Poderjaj bought 200 razor blades, a sleep-producing sedative, and perhaps a cheap black metal trunk. A merchant sold such a trunk to a man of Poderjaj's description, but there is no subsequent trace of it. Employees at the apartment building do not recall any of the trunks very clearly. On Dec. 22 the Negro maid entered the apartment and found Poderjaj sorting over papers. When she asked about Miss Tufverson he said she had gone to Philadelphia. A little later he told a woman who inquired that Miss Tufverson had preceded him to Europe.

Large Trunk Noted
The maid cleaned up the place and put a quantity of litter into the building incinerator. Poderjaj sent at least four trunks and some hand luggage downstairs, hired a truck, and rode on it to the pier of the S. S. Olympic. He sailed alone and insisted upon keeping an unusually large trunk in his stateroom. It was an outside room with a porthole large enough for a body to be pushed through into the sea.

Marguerite Ferrand met him at Southampton. Later he sent a cable, signed "Agnes," to Miss Tufverson's sister, Sally. It said: "We now on way to India via cable and write later." Thus it was several months before Sally Tufverson became alarmed by Agnes' silence and requested a police investigation.

Not the least mysterious aspect of the case is how Poderjaj persuaded Miss Tufverson, a lawyer and shrewd business woman, to give him her money. Nevertheless, she became a co-holder of her safety deposit box on Dec. 19, and next day the contract for the box was relinquished. He has admitted receiving the money from her bank account, and police believe he received from her more than $30,000 in cash and securities.

There are only a few applicable theories. If Miss Tufverson was murdered, her body may have been put through a porthole into the ocean, or it still may be in a trunk. It was not dismembered and dissolved or burned in the apartment incinerator. If she committed suicide, she almost certainly would have sent some word to her relatives, and she scarcely would have carefully planned the net so her body would not be found.

Vienna police have reported that they are in possession of enough evidence to warrant trying Poderjaj for murder. But they overlooked the iron-clad technicality in American law which requires the presence of a corpse in a murder case.

Jersey Apple Crop Cut in Half by Cold Spell

TRENTON, July 20.—(P)—The Jersey apple crop was cut nearly in half this year by the bitter cold of February. The State Department of Agriculture reported the harvest this year will be 1,863,000 bushels as compared with the 3,380,000 bushel crop last year. The peach crop was virtually destroyed. High temperatures during the first week of July caused considerable damage to the potato crop. Two months ago it was estimated farmers had planted 48,000 acres of potatoes. On July 1 the condition of the crop was reported 92 per cent normal, indicating a yield of 190 bushels to the acre, a total of 9,120,000 bushels. The amazing tomato crop is estimated at 177,000 tons as against 89,100 tons last year.

MOORE TO CONFER ON NRA POLICIES

Will Go to Washington to Arrange Session of State, U. S. Officials

SEA GIRT, July 20.—Gov. A. Harry Moore took off today at 9:50 A. M. on an airplane trip to Washington.

SEA GIRT, July 20.—Gov. A. Harry Moore will go to Washington today to arrange a meeting of state and federal officials, designed to adjust differences resulting from the expressed policy of Gen. Hugh Johnson, NRA administrator, on state codes.

The Governor yesterday reaffirmed his faith in the New Jersey state code despite the national administrator's recent virtual order that state and federal codes should be "integrated" and identical.

Making known his plan for a conference at Newark after discussing the matter in the capital, Governor Moore declared the state code authorities, many of whom were present at the Johnson test, insist on continuance of the state code, and reported protests against any abandonment. He expressed the opinion that any inconsistencies can be ironed out during the conference, and if necessary to meet General Johnson's view that codes be identical, the state's codes could be designated as "federal."

The cost of the state codes is borne without protest by the New Jersey industries, the Governor said, and the state recovery administration acted only in preparation of the codes and in an advisory capacity.

Despite the importance of the coming election, few were present yesterday at the Governor's Day reception to Democrats and Republicans from county party organizations. Moore, Democratic nominee for the U. S. Senate, and his Republican opponent, Senator Hamilton P. Kean, and William Dill, Democrat, and Harold G. Hoffman, Republican for Governor, were ready and eager to shake hands, and did so among themselves when the few visitors were obliged.

MANY EXPECT TO HEAR SKILLING QUINTET

OKAHURST, July 20.—The Skilling Quintet, one of the best known and most popular groups of vocalists in this section, will appear in a concert at the First Methodist Episcopal Church in this borough Sunday evening. A capacity crowd is expected to fill the local church which will include the congregation of Old First Church of West Long Branch. The services will start at 7:45 o'clock, although, in anticipation of a large crowd, the church doors will be opened at 7 o'clock.

Channey and Robert Skilling, Jr., well known to radio listeners, who have heard them sing on the Columbia Broadcasting System stations, which will include "Heaven Again," "The Holy City," "As the Days Go By," "The Rosary," "Ave Maria," "When Twilight Calls to Prayer," "Ah, So Pure" and "Consider and Hear Me."

FIRST AID SQUAD KEPT BUSY BY SIX CALLS

ASBURY PARK, July 20.—The fire department was called out at 4 o'clock this morning when an overhead oven at Paul's Bakery at 1 Main Street, caused grease, which had collected about the oven, to take fire. The blaze was put out by Engine Company No. 1 before any damage was done.

Six first aid calls kept the fire department first aid squad busy between noon yesterday and 6 o'clock this morning. The first call was at 12:50 o'clock yesterday afternoon when Miss Leona Dudley, of 341 Cookman Avenue, was taken to Etkin Hospital for medical treatment on orders of Dr. K. G. Brown.

At 7 o'clock this morning, Miss Stephanie Ross, of 21 Lakewood Terrace, Bloomfield, applied for first aid at fire headquarters for treatment of a cut on her left arm. She was injured in an auto accident.

The third call was at 8 o'clock when Clyde Robinson, of 1409 Eighth Avenue, Neptune, applied for first aid for a burn in his eye from a cigarette ash. He was treated and went home. At 9:18 o'clock, Perry Hall, 42 of 410 Langford Street, applied for first aid treatment for a cut on his hand received while washing dishes. He was taken to Etkin Hospital for further treatment.

At 11:47 o'clock Monday, Johnson, 159 Edwards Avenue, Long Branch, was treated for an infected right hand and released.

Ina Wolf, 36, of 209 Lake Avenue, was taken to Etkin Hospital at 6 o'clock this morning for medical treatment.

FLUKE CAPTURED AT SEASIDE HGTS. IS 36 IN. LONG, WEIGHS 20 LB.

SEASIDE HEIGHTS, July 20.—This big fish, believed to be the largest fluke ever hooked in Jersey coast waters, didn't get away.

Alfred Hicking landed it yesterday as he proudly displayed it officially weighed, measured the catch weighed 20 pounds, 12 ounces, was 36 inches long, 18 inches wide and four inches thick.

TWO CARS DAMAGED

Two cars were damaged considerably late yesterday in a collision at Bath and Norwood Avenues. The cars were operated by Arthur Angerich, 443 Hawthorne Avenue, Newark, and Claude Abasid, 39 Wall Street, Trenton. Both drivers agreed to settle damages among themselves. Patrolman Robert Gurley investigated.

OBITUARY

SAVERIO FERRARO

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Ursula Ferraro, six sons, James, of Red Bank and Michael, Vincent, Charles, Samuel and Alexander, and five daughters, Mrs. Anna Blasi, Mrs. Kate Massaro, Mrs. Helen Scilliano, and Miss Edith Ferraro, of this city, and Mrs. Josephine Rose, of West Long Branch. Also surviving are 14 grandchildren.

MRS. LUCIA MASCIA

Mrs. Lucia Maschia, 65, a widow, of 274 Morris Avenue, died early this morning at Monmouth Memorial Hospital where she had been ill for the past 11 days. She was born in Italy.

Surviving is her son, Patsy Maschia, of this city, with whom she lived. Funeral plans will be announced later by Funeral Director Ralph J. Damiano, of Franklin Avenue.

MARTIN H. KUHNER

RUMSON, July 20.—Private funeral services were held yesterday afternoon for Martin Herbert Kuhner, one-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Kuhner, who died Wednesday at Monmouth Memorial Hospital, Long Branch, from a broken neck, following a fall from a second story window of his parents' apartment on the estate of Henry G. Atha, Rumson, where Mr. Kuhner is employed as a butler.

The services were held at the late home at 3 o'clock, and were conducted by Rev. John E. Murray of Rumson. Interment is charge of John E. Day of Red Bank, was at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

MRS. HARRIET V. CONNELL

WEST ALLENHURST, July 20.—Mrs. Harriet V. Connell, 75, widow of Joseph Richards Connell, died this morning at the Hazard Hospital, Long Branch, following an illness of three weeks.

Mrs. Connell is survived by one son, Stanleigh Megargee, of 661 Woodland Grove, West Allenhurst, with whom she made her home. Two grandchildren and a sister, Mrs. Albert Coleman, of Sea Gate, N. Y., also survive.

GARRET ROBBINS

WEST LONG BRANCH, July 20.—Garret Robbins, 35-year-old Jersey Central Power & Light Company employee who died in the Freehold Hospital from burns received while working at the company's Throckmorton Street sub-station yesterday, will be buried at Glenwood Cemetery following funeral services which will be held at his late home 523 Broadway, this borough, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Neal Dow Kelley, pastor of St. Luke's Methodist Church, Long Branch, will officiate at the rites and Funeral Director John W. Flock will have charge of the burial service.

The late Mr. Robbins was born at Deal the son of the late Garrett Robbins and Mrs. Elizabeth Follansbee Robbins, of 228 Liberty Street. His wife is Mrs. Meta Throckmorton Robbins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Throckmorton with whom the couple lived at the Broadway address.

Surviving besides his mother and widow are three sisters, Miss Ella Robbins, of Asbury Park, Mrs. Leonard Sacco and Miss Marie Robbins, of Long Branch.

OUSTED GOVERNOR AWAITS CHANCE TO STRIKE BACK AT FOES

BISMARCK, N. D., July 20.—(By Staff Correspondent) —Gov. William L. Gorman, ousted as governor, but still full of fight, looked for a vulnerable spot to strike back at his political enemies today, confident the legislature will restore him to power.

His chief opponent, acting Gov. Ole H. Olson, held the upper hand, temporarily at least. He occupied the executive offices, with the backing of the state supreme court which ousted Langer after his conviction on a federal charge of misuse of relief funds and had full control of the North Dakota National Guard.

Threatening Olson's position, however, was the state legislature. The legislature convened under call of Langer Thursday and recessed until this afternoon, and may attempt the impeachment of Olson and supreme court judges if a quorum can be summoned of Langer-controlled members.

$2,500 IS AWARDED AGAINST BUS COMPANY

FREEHOLD, July 20.—Miss Guisile Bradford, Oakhurst, was awarded a judgment late yesterday for $2,500 against the Coast Cities Railway Company, Asbury Park, and Stanley Hart, driver. The award was for injuries she received when struck by a bus Oct. 11, 1932, when crossing Norwood Avenue. Trial of the case had been in progress before Judge Harry Truax in common pleas for two days and a half Miss Bradford was represented by Prosecutor Jonas Timen and the bus company by William J. O'Hagan, Asbury Park.

CITY SUFFERS WITH 95 PCT. HUMIDITY

Moisture Reduces, However, as Mercury Climbs During Morning Here

The forerunner of a heat wave and destruction in its wake in almost every state in the Mid-West and South reached out and took Long Branch and the surrounding section in its sweltering grasp this morning.

Scheduled to last for several days at least, the suffocating temperatures, complicated by excessive humidity, were in full force early this morning with all indications pointing to a still higher rise in local thermometers if the sun, buried behind lowering clouds, finally forced its way through.

As early as 5 o'clock this morning, official thermometers registered temperatures of 75 degrees, an unusually high figure for that hour and an indication of what might be expected here later in the day. The mercury seemed on its way to the 90's at least, judging by the velocity of its climb, averaging nearly two degrees an hour this morning. The humidity, however, which was blamed for the "stickiness" felt everywhere in the city, seemed definitely on the downward path, dropping from nearly 96 per cent at 5 o'clock this morning to the 70's at about noontime.

William Martin, Jr., official observer of the weather here for Uncle Sam, forecast that no records would be broken in this city during the day, predicting merely that "it would continue to get warmer." He said that about the same temperatures would be experienced here tomorrow.

Martin added that it was just a year ago today that this city sweltered under temperatures of 92 degrees and declared that it was very likely that this city was due for another hot spell similar to the one which lasted for several weeks, ushered in on that day.

MAN CRITICALLY HURT AS CAR SKIDS, GUARD RAIL CRASHES WINDSHIELD

ADELPHI, July 20.—Dietrich Roper, 63, of 134 Oak Street, Weehawken, lies in a serious condition as the result of an unusual automobile accident on the Adelpia-Farmingdale Road at 5 o'clock last night.

Roper, whose condition was described as critical by hospital attaches today, sustained a fractured skull.

Injured man was a passenger in a car operated by his son-in-law, Emil S. Klumpp, 43, of 24 Fourth Street, Ridgefield Park. Klumpp, told state police of the Farmingdale station that his car skidded on a sharp curve in the gravel road. It smashed into a highway guard rail with the topmost rail crashing through the windshield and striking Roper on the forehead, crushing the frontal bone of the skull.

A lower rail pierced the radiator, followed through under the hood of the car, penetrated the dashboard and only stopped after pinning one of driver's ankles up against the lower part of that front seat.

Klumpp was treated at the scene, the accident by Dr. Charles J. Murphy of Farmingdale for a broken right ankle. Roper was removed to the hospital by a passing motorist.

Mrs. Margaret Roper, 61, wife of the most seriously injured occupant of the car, and Mrs. Klumpp, 36, her daughter, both riding in the rear seat, were badly shaken up but escaped serious injury.

Klumpp is scheduled to appear tomorrow in local court for arraignment pending the outcome of his father-in-law's injuries.

PAIR REMANDED TO JAIL ON CHARGE OF CONCEALING MURDER

(By Staff Correspondent) —FREEHOLD, July 20.—Sentence on two was deferred a week, two other men were remanded to jail to await trial, and a third was released when charges were withdrawn, as Judge Harry Truax in common pleas court yesterday heard criminal pleas.

Remanded to jail were Lemuel Driver, 29, and George Baskerville, Freehold Negroes, charged with concealing the murder of Ernest Harvey, Freehold, Jan. 21 last, here and for which James Martin, 20-year-old Negro, is in the county jail awaiting trial. Counsel will be assigned to the two.

Sentence was postponed on Claude Hintsinger, 34, alias Harry Warner, Asbury Park, charged with stealing a cash register and cigarette machine from the store of Edward Miller, Asbury Park. Hintsinger pleaded guilty to stealing the cash register but denied the other theft.

Sentence also was deferred a week on Elliott Johnson, Fair Haven Negro, who pleaded guilty to beating a dog to death with a hammer at Fair Haven.

JUDGE LAWRENCE, FAMILY TO TAKE TRIP ABROAD

FREEHOLD, July 20.—Circuit Court Judge Nulif V. Lawrence, sitting in the Monmouth circuit the past two weeks, expects to close his court for the summer next week and on July 31, with Mrs. Lawrence, his daughter, Miss Sylvia and his niece, Miss Elizabeth Yard, will sail on the Holland-American line steamship Vendenard for Holland, thence down the Rhine to Luzerne, Geneva, Paris, and Boulogne, returning here about the first of September.

Both Wives Friendly as Bigamy Case Continues

(Special to The Record) NEW YORK, July 20.—Hearing on a bigamy charge against James Malcolm Burd, 29, Coney Island "barker," has been adjourned by Magistrate William A. Farrell until next Thursday.

Burd, charged with having married two women, one of them a resident of Brielle, N. J., is in jail in default of $1,000 bail. Police say he is married to Anna Schebendach, Brooklyn, whom he wed on June 23, 1925, and Claire Stock, of Brielle, N. J., whom he is alleged to have wed at Elkton, Md., last May.

The two women, whose presence at the Jersey City house party resulted in their comparing notes and learning of Burd's alleged marrying tendencies, were in court apparently on good terms. They left the court room yesterday together.

At the time of his arrest Burd told authorities he had planned to divorce his first wife but "it slipped my mind."

CURIOSITY LEADS TO FINDING BODY

YOUTH SEES THREE MEN DIG HOLE IN SAND TO BURY SLAIN RACKETEER

BROOKLYN, N. Y., July 20.—(AP)—Moonlight glittering on the sand, three dark figures digging, while a fourth stood guard.

The picture intrigued 22-year-old Sidney Weiss, so he went back the next night to find out what they had buried. It was the body of William Shapiro, last of three brothers to pay with their lives for trying to "muscle in" on Brooklyn rackets.

Willie, police said after his body had been recovered last night, was not the gangster his brothers had been. That probably explained why he was beaten and strangled while Meyer and Irving were shot to death.

The Shapiro clan once ran the slot-machine racket in part of Brooklyn and the elder brothers were killed for trying to extend their domination to Coney Island, investigators said. That was in 1931. Meyer, who had a home in Greene County, also was credited with seeking the throne of "Legs" Diamond.

Willie, the police said, tried to cut into the profits of dice games in the east New York section.

Weiss was walking near Fresh Creek Wednesday night when one of the four men stepped up.

"Hot night, isn't it?" commented the stranger. "Kind of desolate, isn't it?"

Weiss took the hint, kept going. But his curiosity got the best of him. Last night he borrowed a spade, uncovered the body, and called police. They exhumed the body.

Wounded Man Says Defended Relative

Regaining consciousness after being felled with three 32-caliber bullets, Gwozzio told police he was too weak to call for aid and in order to attract attention threw a soda water bottle through the kitchen window. The police were skeptical at first but gave his story more credence when they found the bottle later in the Allocco yard where it had landed.

The first story given out by County Detective Chief Harry B. Crook, who was called in on the case by Chief of Police Asbury Mount, of this borough, in connection with the shooting, had the mysterious one of murder and attempt at suicide by Gwozzio. They stated that Mrs. Allocco had been defending her honor in a battle with Gwozzio.

Russell Wharton, a neighbor, leaning across the street from the Allocco home, was the first to report the shooting of Gwozzio, which later led to the discovery Mrs. Allocco's body slumped in corner of the kitchen with a revolver, which apparently had been fired in taking her life, in her lap. She was lying in a pool of blood, dead, with a bullet through her heart.

Found on Lawn Wharton found Gwozzio sitting on the lawn in front of the Allocco home making frantic efforts to hail passing cars. None stopped. Going to investigate the man's strange actions, Wharton found him bleeding from his wounds and immediately notified Chief Mount. The Key-Port First Aid Squad responded and took Gwozzio to the Matawan Hospital and physicians there made every effort to save his life.

He was semi-conscious when admitted but after treatment was able to talk, and piece by piece gave the police his story of how a stranger had invaded the Allocco home and attacked the woman.

Frank Allocco, the dead woman's husband, is one of the borough's highly respected Italian citizens and is employed as a gardener on the estate of Horace Burrows, vice president of the People's National Bank, here. Two sons, Antonio 19, and Ralph 16, were away at work. The father and another son, Frank Jr., 8, were visiting relatives.

According to neighbors, Gwozzio had a wife and family in Newark and had been working in this vicinity as a farm hand. Police were attempting to discover why he had not gone to work this morning, why he was not living with his family, and what provoked the shooting.

Gwozzio's condition was said by hospital authorities to be critical and little hope was held out for his recovery.

R. B. FIRE RIGS 20 FROM HOMES

Blaze of Undetermined Origin Starts in Butcher Shop; Loss $2,500

(By Staff Correspondent) RED BANK, July 20.—When fire of undetermined origin broke out at 3 o'clock this morning in the butcher shop owned by Harry Haft, and located at the corner of Linden Place and Washington Street, 20 colored residents of nearby houses were roused from sleep and routed from their homes. The flames completely gutted the one story wooden structure housing the store, with loss unofficially placed at $2,500.

Only the prompt action of firemen under Fire Chief Joseph Fix prevented a possible conflagration, as streams of water were played on the adjoining structures—all of them solely of wood construction.

The families of William A. Walker and Mrs. Ida Middleton occupied the two adjoining houses. Walker said today that he was awakened by the breaking of the plate glass window of the store, evidently caused by the heat of the flames. "I looked out the window and only could see a sheet of flame," he recounted.

Two unidentified men, who were unable to sleep because of the intense heat, and had decided to take a walk at 3 o'clock this morning, were responsible for turning in the alarm. They saw the flames as they walked past, and ran to the nearest fire box.

Five Days of Horse Racing Planned

(Continued from First Page) shoe men who, according to Lynch, have applied for stabling privileges, tantamount to entering horses in the races: Amory Haskell, Middletown; William Vaughn, Red Bank; John Payne, John F. Richardson, Joseph Bauer, Mike Sheedy, all of New York; Sam Sands, Far Hills. They are accused of seeking to ruin the reputation of Dr. Max Silverstein, minority member of Asbury Park's municipal council, by framing Leonard Johnson, his Negro chauffeur, on a charge of murdering the state resting case yesterday.

In addressing the jury as the first step in the case for the defense, Leonard declared that he would show that the defendants were trying to ruin his reputation as a public citizen in having the case against Johnson planned and that they had received information from several quarters tending to show that Johnson was engaged in the narcotic trade.

The Red Banker declared further that the defense will establish that at no time did anyone ever express himself as out to "get" Dr. Silverstein. He concluded that an unfriendly feeling anti-S members of the jury.

"Had not the defendants called in the police, there might have been some reason to believe that a conspiracy was planned," the attorney declared, "but they did, even going so far as to call in the federal government."

Leonard declared that he would show that dope had been found on Johnson before the defendants ever saw the bottle he allegedly sold to Fleming. He argued further that Johnson was convicted of armed robbery in Ohio in 1925 that he had been paroled and had jumped the state after being sentenced to from 10 to 25 years.

"Of course it would be embarrassing to have a man like that in one's employ," he said.

He added that the defense would show that the missing link referred to by federal authorities in the case was that Fleming had not been searched by Roder and Burke before he went to see Johnson.

States Position Leonardo said that the state has adopted the theory that the defendants should not have taken part in a narcotic investigation.

"If it becomes a conspiracy to take upon themselves," said Leonard, "regardless of the motive, the apprehension of a man who sells dope to him for one, should the opportunity arise, will do my part to be guilty of conspiracy and will be proud of it."

Loeg was the first witness for the defense. After taking his place and being sworn Leonard offered in evidence an affidavit which purported to be a copy of Leonard Johnson's police record. Carton objected and the objection was sustained. Leonard then attempted to admit a photostatic copy of Johnson's record. Again Carton objected and once again was sustained.

"Loeg began his story by declaring that the first knowledge he had of the alleged narcotic traffic involving Johnson came when Fleming voluntarily informed him of it. Being a public spirited citizen, he said he thought something should be done about it so told Digney and later Henry.

He said he was told by Fleming that Mickey Stein would be the best person to see about making a "buy" from Johnson and that he called on Stein and made arrangements for the purchase. Loeg denied that at any meeting anything was said about "getting" Silverstein.

The noon recess was declared shortly thereafter.

General Johnson spoke only for himself, says the State Department, when he condemned Nazi terrorism. That the official explanation, but unofficially he spoke for a great number of Americans.

One of the Stamese twins says they've learned to shut off their minds from each other. That's not so much. Many people can shut off their minds from themselves.

Police Chief Pleased When He Gets Ticket

TOMS RIVER, July 20.—(AP)—A police chief can get a traffic violation ticket, even as you and I.

Police Chief Delmar Johnson parked his car in a restricted area and left it. Along came Patrolman Grover and stuck a ticket on the windshield of the boss's car for illegal parking.

Believe it or not, the chief was pleased. He turned the ticket over to Police Commissioner John Ewart with this notation on it: "Our cops do their duty without fear or favor."

400 DOGS READY FOR RACES TOMORROW

Capacity Crowd Expected at Opening; Inaugural Handicap Is Feature

By O. W. LUCKE Everything will be in readiness for the opening of the palatial dog track at Ocean Park tomorrow night.

About 400 dogs are here and ready for the races so replete with thrills for the audiences. Almost all of these dogs have been seen under colors during the past few nights when schooling races were held to give both public and track officials a line on the ability of the various contestants.

Among the fastest trials yet recorded are those of Game Loser, Government Loan, John Pevek and Easter John. There are, of course, but a few of the many dogs that are ready to have brackets to their credit.

The feature of tomorrow's card will be the inaugural handicap, and needless to say, there is much interest manifest in the outcome of that event.

Still another feature of the Long Branch races will be the nightly running of a Daily Double, which has become a most popular feature among players who desire a chance to share in the box car returns usually resulting from the dual event.

Hereafter there will be 6 or more races on each night's card. Races will be run nightly except Sunday, rain or shine.

Long Branch and neighboring boroughs are fast filling up with the greyhound fraternity who have registered into the hotels from almost every state and some from foreign countries.

Because a capacity crowd is expected it will be well for those planning to visit the track on the opening night to be on hand early to insure admission.

FATHER LOSES SUIT FOR HIS SON'S DEATH

FREEHOLD, July 20.—A no cause of action verdict was returned by a jury before Judge Thomas Brown last night at the conclusion of the trial of a $20,000 suit brought by Walter Farley, colored, for the death of his 11-year-old son, Leroy. The suit was against the Salvation Army, of Asbury Park.

Farley's son was killed when he was hit by an automobile while crossing Springwood Avenue, Asbury Park, on Jan. 11, 1933. The car was driven by Harry Westover, who was in the employ of the Salvation Army.

David H. Davis, of Asbury Park, represented the plaintiff, and Cox and Walburg, of Newark, represented the defendants.

FREEHOLD FOUNDRY TO REOPEN IN MONTH

New Owners to Buy Equipment; Former Labor to Be Employed

(By Staff Correspondent) FREEHOLD, July 20.—The John H. Bowden foundry established in 1876 and one of the oldest of its kind in the east, will resume work under new ownership within a month, after an idleness of almost four months. It was announced by Schumacher & Kelly, Inc., the new owners.

Sale of the property, which was in the hands of the First National Bank of this place after a sheriff's sale April 22, has been made to E. W. Schumacher, former Hillsboro, N. C., foundry operator, and Michael J. Kelly, 191 Seymour Avenue, Newark, former superintendent of the Newark foundry.

The property, at one time famous for its production of iron and fireproof safes, was founded by John H. Bowden and Gilbert Campbell. Bowden soon assumed control of it. Recently it was owned by his daughter, Mrs. Adella M. Murrie, and her husband, John McMurtrie. After Mr. Murrie's death last August it was sold to the bank, which was then being liquidated.

Renovation of the plant is now under way, and necessary new machinery is to be purchased. Before the new firm begins operation of a modern foundry which eventually will manufacture articles in brass, steel, aluminum and custom made foundry articles.

Freeload labor, and old hands of the Bowden people, will be hired exclusively. E. W. Schumacher is president of the firm and will handle the executive work, assisted by Charles Kelly, son of the junior member of the firm. Kelly will act as superintendent of the factory proper, with Charles P. Schumacher, brother of the senior member, as his assistant.

Max Freigold, local attorney, has been engaged to represent the firm in legal matters.

RADIO ANNOUNCER, ENGINEER IN TOWN

Don Lowe, announcer, and Charles Bennis, radio engineer of the National Broadcasting Company, are making their summer headquarters at the Gortfeld-Grant Hotel.

They are in this city in connection with the numerous broadcasts of nationally famous dance orchestras from the numerous clubs on the North Jersey coast.

ACCIDENT ON HIGHWAY

BATONTOWN, July 20.—An accident on the Neptune Highway late yesterday afternoon resulted in damage to two cars, but nobody was hurt. (Hugr Angebach, who was turning to go in a driveway at Buttonwood Cottage, on the highway, was struck by another car going in the same direction.

The mudguards, bumpers, front headlights and running boards of both cars were damaged. The other car was driven by a person by the name of Hermet, from Red Bank. No arrests were made.

AT THE THEATRE

PARAMOUNT

"MERRY WIVES OF RENO" Trick dice are added to Frank McHugh's trick laugh in "Merry Wives of Reno," the Warner Bros. picture now on the screen at the Paramount Theatre. The sequence depicts a party in a Reno hotel room and Frank, in the course of a friendly little game of "African zolf," throws a seven that number of times in succession for the benefit of the camera.

"THE CRIME DOCTOR" Those who are interested in the psychological aspects of crime, as well as persons who revel in detective stories, are said to have a treat in store for them next week, when RKO-Radio's "The Crime Doctor," is also at the Paramount.

The picture, with Otto Kruger, Karen Morley and Nils Asther featured, deals with a strange murder case, stressing particularly the heart motif for the crime and depicting the emotional upheaval which destroys the normal balance of the killer, making him a menace to society.

The crime, carefully planned and executed, proves completely mystifying to the investigators, and it is said to be this aspect of the story which will particularly enthrall lovers of detective stories. Also, a novel twist to the climax is so handled that it comes as a complete surprise.

STRAND

"I'LL TELL THE WORLD" If anyone started out to find the man most interested about the production of motion pictures in Hollywood, he or she eventually would end up in the home of Edward Sedgwick, veteran director, who made his bow to the industry as an actor in 1913, appearing for the old Lubin company in the "Battle of Gettysburg."

Sedgwick, who directed Universal's "I'll Tell the World," starring Lee Tracy, has at various times been actor, producer, scenario editor, writer and director in the course of 21 years in the film capital. Born in Galveston, Tex., he ventured the "show business" with his father, mother and two sisters, Josie and Elsie, who later became motion picture stars.

The "Five Sedgwick" toured every state in the union and seven foreign countries. Later, Sedgwick became a service man and a newspaperman, the latter occupation helping to fit him for the job of directing "I'll Tell the World," which is now playing at the Strand Theatre.

In the cast of "I'll Tell the World" are Tracy, the beautiful blonde Gloria Stuart, Roger Pryor, Onslow Stevens, Alec B. Francis, Lawrence Grant, Hugh Enfield, Herman Bing, and many others. The story deals with the loves and adventures of a correspondent for a world-wide newsgathering agency.

Once It Was Her Friend But His Family Lost Most Of Wealth

By DAN THOMAS (S.P.A. Daily Record Writer) HOLLYWOOD — In pictures a brief 18 months and on the threshold of stardom, Jean Parker's principle thought is of Francis Lopus, the "only boy I ever cared for in my whole life."

Reams could be written about this 17-year-old brunette who was plucked from a New Year's Day Rose Parade float and cast into the movie spotlight, but nothing could more clearly reveal her character than her thoughts of the boy she loves.

When they met as high school students in Pasadena, about 15 miles from Hollywood, Lopus was the son of a wealthy family with all the worldly possessions a youth could desire. Jean, a poor girl working her way through school, eighteen months have completely reversed their positions.

Lopus' father died and his wealth shrank to practically nothing. Jean, on the other hand, has skyrocketed through the cinema heavens and now has all Hollywood at her feet.

Yet, her thoughts are of Lopus and what effect her tremendous success will have upon their romance.

"I am afraid of what people will say," she told me at lunch the other day. "Not that it makes a particle of difference to me, as he is the only boy I ever have known for whom I really care. But such a situation is tough on any man."

That Jean will not let temporary screen fame, no matter how great that fame may be, alter the course of her personal life—and I am confident that she won't—is one of the many proofs that she deserves the starring honor which has been bestowed upon her.

And to be starred by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, which means having her name placed alongside those of Garbo, Joan Crawford, Norma Shearer, Jeanette MacDonald, Helen Hayes, and Jean Harlow, is an honor.

Now that she has been elevated to stardom, this seems little doubt as to Miss Parker's future. She is the type of star the screen needs. Charming, beautiful, and completely wholesome, she never could have anything but an uplifting influence in any picture.

As a matter of fact, she would be completely misplaced in any but the cleanest of films. Away From Pampering Little Shirley Temple has been taken away on a vacation—her first since she made her sensational hit before the cameras more than six months ago.

"It isn't so much that she has been overworked as it is that I want to get her away from the continued praising and petting she receives from everyone," the child's mother declared just before they departed for an isolated mountain resort, where it is hoped Shirley can spend a month as a normal child instead of a pampered movie star.

Although she is facing a pretty tough job, Shirley's mother is trying to keep her a normal youngster, despite the fact that everyone in the studio caters to her every whim.

A Real Reel Mother Whenever you're speaking of movie mothers, don't overlook Rose "Ma" Curley. In addition to playing mother roles on the screen for years, Mrs. Curley in real life is the mother of 16 children. That's why she is so good before the camera. No director has to tell her what to do.

Sticks To Hollywood Although she may never be a glittering star again, Betty Blythe is going to stick close to the film colony. And when she isn't acting, she'll write about the activities of others. After completing a role in "The Scarlet Letter" recently, she enrolled for a course in journalism at the University of Southern California.

HOLLYWOOD — Random thoughts of a movie columnist: Evelyn Brent certainly wasn't born under a lucky star... her first marriage went to smash several years ago and now her second one is on the rocks... and she hasn't been able to get a break in pictures of late... but prospects are bright or now... she has three offers...

George Bancroft has popped up again... he does every so often. "Wonder what a baby thinks about when they're trying to get him to do a cute trick for the camera."

Mae West never will lose out through having an inferiority complex... neither will Carl Brisson... wonder how long Katharine Hepburn is going to avoid the press... somebody should tell her that we really aren't such bad fellows.

It doesn't seem right to have Marlene Dietrich living in Colleen Moore's big home... there always used to be so much activity there... it's about time for Lee Tracy to start a new picture... wonder how the story got out that Clarence Brown was planning a solo flight across the Atlantic... Brown is a cautious flyer... looks as though Jack Gilbert never will get back to work unless his fans register a violent protest with Louis B. Mayer... he's still getting paid though.

KEYPORT, July 20.—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pellegrini of Perth Amboy were the Tuesday evening guests of Mrs. Elissa Newman of Main Street.

Miss Sylvia Jaffee and her orchestra will play Saturday nights at the Monmouth Wine and Liquor Company's bar and restaurant.

Thieves broke into the Ackerman Brothers store on Front Street Monday night. They stole fan belts, tires, tubes, bulbs and other accessories. Entrance was gained through a rear window. As the store backs up on the Bay, it is likely that the robbers took their loot away by boat. As yet the police have no clues.

Twenty-two attended the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club, held Tuesday evening at the Raritan Inn. Frank Payne was the guest speaker. His topic was "Highway Safety." Arne Kalma won the attendance prize. George Porter led the community singing. For the present all meetings will be held at the Inn. For each child who brings in a quart of Japanese beetles, the club gives a prize of a ticket to the movies, and $1 is presented weekly to the one bringing in the most. The grand prize will be given in August to the child bringing in the largest total.

ITALY DOES JUST OPPOSITE FROM U. S. IN GUIDING LABOR

Workmen Have No Liberty Whatever Under Rule Of Mussolini; Penalties Severe

By WILLIS THORNTON (NEA Service Staff Correspondent)

If Roosevelt were Mussolini, and had brought the United States Fascism instead of a New Deal, the average American workman would find himself in a position in many ways the exact opposite of where he is today.

He would just have received a wage cut of from 10 to 20 per cent. He would pay dues to a labor syndicate, whether he belonged to it or not.

He would be forbidden to strike. He would be paying a bewildering array of small consumption taxes, on his mandolin, his parlor rug, his game of billiards.

His children, boys and girls, would be enlisted in his mass organizations with military discipline.

He would be, not an individual and a free man, but a self-sacrificing cog in a machine which makes "the state all, the man nothing."

Deep Study of Fascism

This picture of the average man under Fascism is drawn from one of the most elaborate and detailed studies of Fascism ever made, appearing in the July number of "Fortune," which devotes its entire issue to a series of studies of phases of life today under Mussolini's Fascist State and the new Corporate State which is rising inside it.

Contrasts between the Italian and American plans for fighting world-wide depression and unrest are made clear by these studies.

First, Italy is definitely committed to deflation, whereas the United States is still potentially, and to some extent actually, inflating.

Courses Directly Opposite

That means that Italy is resolutely going through with a program of wage-cutting, and trying to force down prices of rent, clothing, and food in proportion. The United States is arising wages and prices, and trying to see that prices do not rise enough to cancel wage increases.

Each country did these opposite things for much the same reasons. Each found that foreign countries could not buy a good thing.

So Italy took the course of cutting its wages to the point where it could produce as cheaply, say as Japan. The United States preferred to cut the gold value of its money so that foreign countries suddenly found their money worth more dollars, and could again buy from us.

Italy has resolutely remained on the gold standard, but has been forced to restrict the flow of gold from the country. And this gold basis is getting wobbly.

Labor Loses Liberty

The newest Fascist development, the Corporate State, closely defines the position of labor. Its independence is gone. It is part of and subordinate to the state, and so is capital. In Italy, the state is all.

Factories, both owners and workers, farms, both owners and workers, are alike swallowed up in the new Corporate State.

The Corporate State is something like a combination of the AAA and NRA, raised to the Nth power, and provided not only with a full set of teeth, but also with spurs and harness.

Governed by Contracts

Almost every workman in Italy is governed by a contract between the syndicate in his trade and the organized employers in that trade. This is a little like the U. S. codes, but far more inclusive.

As few as 10 per cent of the workers in any branch of industry may organize a syndicate. They negotiate a working agreement with as few as 10 per cent of the employers, and then every workman and every employer in that industry not only has to abide by the terms of the agreement, but has to pay dues to the syndicate, whether he belongs to it or not.

Employment is almost all through state agencies, and employers must give first preference, in order, to old Fascist Party workers, syndicate members, war veterans, and new party members. Wages must be set to correspond to normal exigencies of life, to possibilities of production, and to output of labor.

Piecework rates must be such that the average able workman can earn above the basic rates. There must be a weekly day of rest, annual paid vacations after the first year, a discharge wage.

Severe Penalties Provided

But there are also severe punishments for any breaches of discipline that interfere with production. Strikes and lockouts are strictly prohibited.

Heads of the labor syndicates and labor courts hold office only at the pleasure of the Fascist government.

Real wages in Italy are low. In 1920 the International Labor office at Geneva set them as the lowest in Europe. Since then real wages in Germany have sunk still lower.

The burden of maintaining the Fascist state falls heavily on the common man in Italy. Only 20 per cent of the revenue comes from income taxes, which go no higher than 25 per cent and cut down deep into the small income.

Little Fellow Pays

Consumption (sales) taxes make up almost all the revenue, and the little fellow pays.

The similar point in the Italian recovery effort is in the liberal use of government credit to stimulate business through great public works programs, and to raise falling enterprises and situations. In doing this, Italy has taken over more industries and enterprises, and now owns outright most of the railroads, shipping, postal and tele-

LEOPOLD WORKS FOR HIS LIVING

He's King But It Costs Him More Than He Makes Per Year

By MORRIS GILBERT (NEA Service Staff Correspondent)

BRUSSELS—Sharp at 8:55 o'clock any week-day morning, a sombre limousine turns swiftly into the Place des Palais here, slows down, enters the main palace gates, and rolls under an arch into the central courtyard.

The limousine—it is, of course, a Mierva, Belgium's most famous make—is bringing Leopold III, fourth King of the Belgians, to work. He is at his office desk at 9 o'clock.

There is no footman on the royal car. Leopold, like his father a lover of motors, would prefer to drive himself, but does not do so when going to his office. With him in the limousine is the equerry who happens to be on duty.

If Leopold is holding audiences, which happens practically daily, he will be wearing the uniform of commander-in-chief of the Belgian army. Otherwise he will be in mufti, which he prefers.

There is no formality about Leopold's arrival. A soldier or two on guard in the woolly-looking greenish khaki of the Belgian troops, presents arms. A big Belgian flag flutters to the top of the pole on the central mansarded cupola on the palace, and comes down again to half-staff, since the court is in mourning.

Worker Like Predecessors

It isn't strange that Leopold works hard. He doesn't forget that the first Leopold was invited to come to Brussels and take the throne as "King of the Belgians," not "King of Belgium." Also that the people require him to swear to uphold the constitution. Also that he rules by the will of the people and not through any so-called "divine right." He doesn't even have a crown, and there is no coronation ceremony for a Belgian monarch.

All of Belgium's kings have been workers. The first one had to organize his country which had just wrested itself free from Holland in the Revolution of 1830. He had the powerful support of his little niece Victoria, when she became Queen of England a few years later. Leopold II was the great Belgian empire-builder. He developed the Congo as a vast and limitlessly rich domain, and practically forced it down the throat of parliament as a colony which the stolid burghers of Brussels and Antwerp weren't at all sure they wanted. Grudgingly accepted in those days, the Congo is now a vital source of Belgian wealth and is still capable of enormous development.

Authority On The Congo

It happens today that the Congo and Belgium's other colonies are specialties of King Leopold III. Other parts of his royal job are less familiar to him, and he is working overtime "boning up" on these subjects. But nobody can stick him on the Congo.

State Comes First

Private property and private initiative are encouraged, with the understanding that if either gets in the way of the general purposes of the state, the state will take it over.

People Still People

But it is still a country, it is still a government, they are still people. In Italy, the Fascist conception is that government is a means toward creating a state which embraces every activity, every thought of the people.

If Roosevelt should suddenly turn Mussolini, and adopt this platform of "Ever thing for the state," many an American hearer would murmur "What is the man talking about?"

RED BANK SCHOOL VOTE POSTPONED

Improvements At Two Other Buildings Will Be Passed On

(By Staff Correspondent)

RED BANK, July 20—Because of opposition which has been voiced against the building of any addition to the present high school before improvements have been made to the Mechanic Street and River Street Schools, including additional rooms, the Red Bank Board of Education has decided to submit two propositions at the coming school election instead of one.

In place of giving voters an opportunity of voting for or against the proposed 18 room addition to the high school, citizens will be given three alternatives: The option of voting for the high school improvement, voting for the addition of six rooms to the River Street school, and four to the Mechanic Street School, or voting against any expenditure for either of these purposes.

As a result of the change of plans the Board has decided not to hold the special election scheduled for July 31, but to set a date in the near future. It is necessary first to obtain federal consent, since the PWA grant and loan of $215,000 was granted specifically on plans for the high school improvement. However, no difficulty is anticipated since the alternative plan would entail an expenditure of approximately $150,000.

The note book snapped back into the king's pocket. The audience was quickly over. Leopold, like his father, is a miser where time is concerned.

Wrote Stirring Speech

Ministers hardly had to wait a day to sample the new king's mettle and his independence. On his hurried return from Switzerland to the coffin of his father, he was approached by officials who wished to advise him as to what he should say in his speech from the throne. "This is not the time to consider it," Leopold responded. "My father is not yet buried."

Royal Salary Limited

Incidentally, he isn't any too well paid. At current rates, his "civil list" or royal salary amounts to about $419,000 a year, out of which he has high fixed charges. In fact, it's a losing proposition, and the Belgian royal house has been paying its way out of its own private fortune for many years.

Leopold receives certain ministers each morning. These bring to him the special problems that have arisen. If he wants expert advice on something, he sends for the expert. He, like his father, is impatient—though courteously so—over insufficient knowledge.

Years ago the present king got the memorandum habit. He carries a notebook in his left hand suit pocket. A visitor, the other day, came to tell him about unemployment in a neighboring country.

"How much is the unemployment, by the latest figures?" Leopold demanded, reaching for his notebook.

"I'm not quite sure," the other answered.

The ministers shook their heads. There was nothing.

"That is what I wanted to learn, gentlemen," said Leopold. "I bid you good day."

The speech turned out to be an effort of surprisingly fine quality. It impressed hearers by its sincerity, its simplicity, its depth. It was far more than a state paper. It was a human document, and it stirred Belgium from the North Sea to the Ardennes.

FORMER POLICE CHIEF PLEADS TO PERJURY

MT. HOLLY, July 20—(P)—John S. Costa, former Toms River chief of police, yesterday pleaded guilty to a charge of perjury.

He has entered a plea of not guilty, as did his brother-in-law, Arthur J. Weeks, of Toms River, and they were scheduled for trial next Monday. Weeks did not change his plea. They were indicted after they had testified in a $30,000 damage suit.

HIGHWAY SIDEWALKS

Construction of highway sidewalks with CWA funds, if carried out in the most practical and economical manner so as to benefit the greatest number of people on those roads most needing the work, would be of a great help not only to pedestrians but motorists. The freeholders this week approved a plan for using CWA funds for this purpose in Monmouth County and there is the possibility that the project will be carried out.

Highway sidewalks have been constructed in other sections of the country and thus far there does not seem to be any fault found with them. In fact the only apparent reason for not building more of them is the cost. Most motorists will realize the value of such paths on certain roads in Monmouth County. One has only to read in the newspapers of numerous deaths caused by the presence of pedestrians on roads that were built only for autos, to realize that something should be done to help both pedestrian and driver. Many states have laws governing pedestrians on roads, but the laws are largely ineffective. Some states require that pedestrians walk "against" the traffic—that is, facing the front of the cars on their side of the road. Such practice is presumably intended to help the pedestrian know when a car is approaching. However, it does not help much if the pedestrian acts as if he were an automobile himself and takes half of the road, especially if another car is passing in the opposite direction at the same time. Some states have made it mandatory for pedestrians to carry tail lights (red lights hung over their backs or on their belts) or carry flashlights or lanterns, but these laws, too, are difficult to enforce.

A driver often is considered at fault if he knocks down a pedestrian on a highway, but in many cases it seems that the pedestrian is more to blame. It is not difficult for a pedestrian to step off the highway when a car approaches; yet many pedestrians nonchalantly saunter along, several feet in from the edge of the concrete, as if their lives meant nothing to them and apparently without regard for the safety of drivers. Granted that the driver is not proceeding recklessly and assuming that he is not able to turn out of the way at that point because of other cars or other reasons, it is difficult to see how the motorist can be blamed if the pedestrian is knocked down and killed. On the other hand, it must be admitted that in some cases the motorist could turn out if he wished to, and doesn't, or that in some instances the accident is caused by the car skidding off the roadway into a pedestrian, in which case the driver obviously is at fault.

Highway sidewalks need not be elaborate or expensive. If constructed of packed earth or gravel and placed a few feet away and parallel with the highway, they should serve to eliminate nearly all fatalities of this kind. Such paths would make road walking for pedestrians much safer and driving much more enjoyable for motorists. If the heavily traveled roads of Monmouth County had such paths, drivers would not have to worry constantly at night about the possibility of a pedestrian loomed up suddenly at the edge of the road and causing an accident. If the project is found to be practical and can be carried out without too great cost in this county, motorists in Monmouth would be pleased to see the work begin at once.

WHY GET SHOCKED?

A dispatch from Los Angeles telling about that malodorous "extra girl" trial asserts that sordid testimony in the case has "shocked women's club representatives" as they "awaited resumption of the trial." From what we have heard, it is easy to understand how even the most case-hardened person could have been shocked. Certainly there have been few trials in American legal history that "plastered the record with any more disgusting stuff than this one." And yet, one wonders if these estimable ladies were so shocked, why did they go to the trial?

So far, there is no law in this country compelling anyone to be a spectator at any lawsuit. When the testimony in a case is shocking, the free American citizen has the inalienable right of staying entirely away from the courtroom. In that way he doesn't get shocked.

BACK TO CANALS

It is interesting to note that Army engineers are busy these days discussing proposed routes for a new canal to link Lake Erie with the Ohio River. According to recent reports, the engineers now believe that a canal running from Rochester, Pa., to Ashland, O., would be the most feasible.

And all of this represents an odd way in which a whole cycle in transportation seems to be completing itself. Just about a century ago canals were being dug everywhere. Lake Erie was linked to the Ohio River by water, and the prosperity of the mid-west was greatly enhanced as a result. Then the railroads developed, waterways fell into disuse, and most of the old canals passed out of existence.

Now we seem to be rediscovering that there can be a place in a nation's transportation system for the canal, after all. After a century of progress we are returning to our old ways.

Now Lake Michigan is supposed to have turned up a sea monster. The Chicago World's Fair needed something like that, now that Sally Rand and her fans are gone.

An English magistrate stopped a violinist, among others, from playing on the street, on the ground that his violin was a nuisance. Don't let your son see this.

Terrier Tale

If you are news or magazine-minded and should happen to drop in at A. K. Bennett's uptown stationery store with the family pup in tow, the latter part of your family is quite liable to have to stop and give the canine counter-jumper before being allowed to enter. No, not by A. K. himself, who likes dogs as does his all grandson, "Bobby," whose wire-haired terrier it is who constitutes himself "dog-guardian of the gate" whenever another pup appears in the office. Now that the office is now known as over over the bounds of good breeding beyond a few warning barks. The perky little black and white morsel just what. It understood that any dog entering the Bennett store is expected to stay on good behavior. Perhaps there's a reason for this "canine snootiness" since the terrier came to "Bobby" from his cousin, William N. Klein, now of Claymont, Del., but for many years a member of the Bennett family circle in Long Branch. Mr. Klein has associated with J. J. Raskob of financial and political fame, for the last 18 years and the black and white, wiry-haired bit of dog was acquired from the famous kennels of his employer.

Quack Questions

First it's fish and then it's feathers that interest the sportsmen. Questions as to the length of the duck hunting season are occupying the minds of every true lover of the pastime. According to J. E. Finegan of Rumson, if duck-hunters don't want to "dunk" themselves in their blinds this fall, but will prefer to wait until waiting for a duck to appear, they should immediately raise themselves in support of the federal government proposal to limit the ducking season to two solid months as against the suggestion of the state commissioner which favors a shorter season period with intervening "dry days." Mr. Finegan feels as to the extensive period of the ducking season.

Take a Tip!

Atlantic City started something in the way of dog racing and it wasn't many moons before Long Branch captured a like idea. Soon the puppies will be racing around an Ocean Avenue track after the mechanical rabbit and under the glare of brilliant floodlights. Up at Entos, near Newark, this football field is used to wonderful advantage in the arena where popping motorcycles swirl around the curves of a fifth-mile circuit each Wednesday evening.

Terrible Teaberries

Twenty times three is 60 and that number of years ago Thomas McKenna of Long Branch advertised in the local paper a choice lot of powerful old apple whiskey at 50 cents a quart. Staggering is the line of wines and beverages his company had for sale, but 25 cents per bottle stood for gingerale and what that was final. Today genuine Jersey applejack is appraised at $2.60 a quart and what a tangle Editor Folwell of the Mount Holly Mirror crashed into when he recently dared to say 50 years ago a man named Stacy Taylor from Burlington County disposed of his famous applejack for 50 cents a quart and it was so potent partakers were soon numbered among those absent. After all those years he is said that what he thought genuine applejack was only teaberry brandy. True, the basis was applejack in which a quantity of wintergreen or as they are known in South Jersey, teaberries had been placed and left until the liquor had absorbed their flavor.

Air Bed Rooms

When the lights of Buffalo were vanishing in the purple night, Miss McMichael began making up berths. The gadgets were intriguing. She pushed buttons, turned chromium bolts, unfolded seats, attached rods to sockets, dropped the upper into position, unrolled bedding, let down familiar looking green curtains. Most of us tried to help, and the patient stewardess didn't once remind us that we were only in her way.

HIGHLY UNREAL, BUT SUITABLY PUZZLING

New Ellery Queen Thriller Is An Ingenious Book

By BRUCE CATTON

Detective stories these days are of two kinds—those which are mathematical puzzles, pure and simple, with plot and characterization having not the remotest resemblance to anything ever seen in real life, and those which are actually of some consequence as novels aside from their carefully-devised problems. The Ellery Queen books belong in the first group, as long as you remember that you won't be disappointed in them. If anybody like Ellery Queen ever started detecting in real life the whole police force would leap on him as one man and beat him to death with sticks; but while his adventures are fantastically unreal, they are ingenious enough for the most exacting reader.

They also keep the air in motion by use of fans, open shaded windows and similar devices. They also indulge in frequent cool baths. A sponge bath even with lukewarm water, or a shower bath, will bring down the temperature one or two degrees.

When a person suffers a heat stroke, he should be removed at once to a cool place in a recumbent position. A cold cloth on the forehead is advisable if the temperature is normal or slightly raised. If, however, the temperature is much below normal, or 98.6, it is well to use cloths, moistened in warm water, applied to feet and head. It is not advisable for those who are inexperienced to attempt to give remedies of any kind to people who are in a state of heat exhaustion or, indeed, suffering from shock of any kind.

STRIKES THAT FAILED

General strikes have never succeeded. If that in San Francisco does, it will run counter to almost universal experience here and abroad. It was 15 years ago that the United States had its only other general strike, also on the Pacific Coast, when 35,000 union workers walked out in Seattle in sympathy with striking shipyard workers. The traffic and business tieup was over in two days, thanks to the energetic measures of Mayor Ole Hanson. Within five days the shipyard workers, in sympathy with whom the rest went out, were back at work on the old terms.

The general's apology saved him a court-martial and the incident was dropped.

Business Anxiety

Even if every piece of regulatory legislation so far passed is admitted to be useful, there is still too much loose talk about what vast and startling reforms are still to be made. Between the threat of some measures which virtually provide for confiscation and the constant clamor of earnest young fellows who want to make over the world to their theoretical theories, it is little wonder that business leaders who must take all the risks, are so full content to stay close to the economic cyclone cellar.—The Cincinnati Enquirer.

The New Deal In Washington

By RODNEY DUTCHER (Daily Record Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON.—The "summer bachelor" situation here may not be as serious as some of our other situations, but it leads to just as much disturbance, delight, and talk as any of the rest. Everybody knows the New Deal couldn't get along without the females who act as assistants and secretaries to New Dealers.

If those females—they're not such sour members, either, Charlie—can have their dear hearts gladdened, it stands to reason they will be doing their jobs more gayly, energetically, and efficiently.

You see, this is a town where the girls outnumber the men. Males seldom are found weeping about that. But it's a great bore to single women and a positive agony to hostesses, who often have to kidnap grocery boys or taxi drivers to make their parties come out even.

But social life has suddenly gone topsy-turvy for us. Last year the wives and daughters of the New Dealers stayed through the heat, just to see the excitement. This summer most of them have been packed off to beaches, mountains, and countryside.

And the single gals are having a swell time. Anybody who tosses a party immediately runs into the problem of "too many men." A by-product of the situation is an epidemic of stag parties.

PAN-AMERICAN ROAD PROGRESSES

Alaska, Argentina Will Be Connected By Longest Path In World

WASHINGTON, D. C., — The longest road project in the world—the Pan American Highway—moved another step nearer to realization recently when Congress appropriated $1,000,000 to enable the United States to co-operate with Latin American nations in surveying and constructing this new link between the Americas. The sum of $75,000 was also provided for a continuation of reconnaissance surveys in both Central and South America.

"Caravans were trading over the ancient 'Silk Routes' between Asia and the Danube long before Europe ever heard of America. But despite amazing growth of transport in the Western World, to this day no wheel has ever rolled from North to South America—not even from the Rio Grande to Panama," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Linking Alaska with Argentina. "Yet for years men have dreamed of a great Inter-American Highway which might connect Alaska with Argentina. Links of such a royal road already exist. Even over the mountains in Latin America air passengers can look down on sections of such a highway, used by mules, trucks and motor cars. How to connect these separate links, how to bridge the gaps formed now by mountains and jungles, is the problem to which many governments in the Western Hemisphere give increasing thought.

"Mexico, for one, is hard at work on her link. So swiftly has she pushed construction that the 800-mile stretch from Laredo, on the Rio Grande, to Mexico, D. F., has already been often traversed, and is to be officially opened as an all-weather road within a few months—to which function Secretary of State Hull has been invited.

"Some pioneering tourists have already driven their cars not only through Mexico D. F., but on to Acapulco, historic port of the Mar. Its galleons on the Pacific coast. This Laredo-Mexico route is the eastern branch, through Mexico, of the Inter-American highway of the future. The western branch runs from Nogales, on the Arizona border, down the west coast of Mexico and thence inland, via Guadalupe, to merge with the main route, south from Mexico, D. F. First officially explored by a path-finding expedition sent out by the Automobile Club of Southern California, the latter route has since been covered by other motor parties, but requires further improvement, and in sections, much new construction.

"Traffic to Mexico. Incidentally, tourist traffic from the United States to Mexico has grown enormously in the past two years. In 1933, about 40,000 Americans visited Mexico. Traffic so far in 1934 is even heavier, and hotels are crowded. Formal opening of motor roads will vastly increase this.

"With a total length of some 12,000 miles from Alaska to Argentina, more than 4,500 miles, over a third of the proposed Inter-American highway, is now usable by motor cars in all weather, chiefly in the United States, Canada, Mexico, and Panama. Some finished stretches are also in use in Alaska, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Colombia, Ecuador, and Brazil. Although most of the roads which could be joined to form South America's part of any such great highway are already passable in dry weather, only insignificant stretches are usable in wet weather.

"Because of our own trade interests in Mexico and Central America, as sources of needed raw materials, and markets for our manufactures, the United States is most immediately concerned with the opening of the motor road from our southern border to Panama. This section is, in fact, the key to early completion of the whole project.

"At the request of the State Department, the United States Bureau of Public Roads, aided by highway engineers of the Central American countries concerned, has made a reconnaissance survey of the route from here to Panama. Of the 1,500 miles of highway through Central America, about 500 miles are open to all-weather traffic.

"The survey points out that a road through Central America would penetrate regions that could supply the United States with such needed things as rice, cinnamon, camphor, quinine, rubber, copra, vegetable oils, gums, hemp, etc.

"In further study of trade advantages such a road to Panama would bring us, made in co-operation with the Department of Commerce, the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads' report says: 'Through these countries, and the Caribbean region in general, have been regarded as high-production-cost areas, the cause of this is traceable primarily to lack of cheap transportation, and not to any inherent difficulties of resources, or man-power. Adequate highways connecting with the present short water hauls will do much to remedy existing deficiencies. These apply chiefly to agriculture, which will doubtless dominate this region for centuries to come; yet they also pertain to lumbering, with vast hardwood forests thus far undeveloped, and to mining, with mineral resources still undetermined.'

"With the funds recently made available by Congress, a definite location survey of the road as far as Panama, and a reconnaissance survey of the section from Panama to Argentina, will be made. Such a survey through South America would be highly useful to each country traversed, as a guide to future road-building programs.

South America Crossed. "According to E. W. James of the United States Bureau of Public Roads, a motor truck has already been driven from Rio de Janeiro across Brazil, through Bolivia and across the Andes into Peru, in spite of the 100-mile gap—impassable for wheels—between Cochabamba and Santa Cruz. To cross this gap took a month. The truck had to be taken apart, and carried on mule back!

"The 2,500-mile drive from Santiago, Chile, to northern Peru has also been made by two automobiles, although they did not attempt to cross the trackless wastes of southern Ecuador. But farther north, in dry weather, one may now motor from central Ecuador, northeast through Colombia and Venezuela, to Caracas on the Caribbean coast, or to all South America, open the year around, are those about Bogota and Rio de Janeiro.

"In brief, the main problem of this great project, as regards South America, is one of changing about 5,000 miles of 'dry-weather' roads to 'all-year' roads, and of constructing some 1,500 miles of new roads through most difficult country. So far, no final survey or estimate of cost for this task has been made.

"At the Alaska end, from Fairbanks to the Canadian border, some 90 miles of road are finished, with 180 miles to be built. In Canada, between the Alaskan border and Hazelton, British Columbia, about 1,600 miles of road are yet to be built, although cars run the year around on the 350 miles south from Hazelton to Vancouver.

"So many highways cross the United States that the American section of the proposed 12,000-mile road—when finally designated—can be easily reached from any American point. The main branches south, however, will cross the Mexican border at Laredo, or Brownsville, Tex., and Nogales, Ariz.

"To pay for such a completed Inter-American road, various plans are advanced, including local gasoline taxes, road and bridge tolls, concessions, and outright appropriations by nations along the route. More than likely, if and when a road is finished, the United States will be asked to take the lead in some form of international agreement for financing the project."

velopments was made by Mr. Swan, who reported: "It is highly improbable that the present rate of growth in the high school enrollment will be maintained for more than 10 years. As the contributing areas outside of Red Bank increase in population, they will provide high schools of their own."

"In 1930 Mr. Swan found the high school overcrowded. However, he discovered that there is 'remarkably little crowding in the elementary and junior high schools.' One shortcoming, described as 'serious,' was unavailability in the absence of adequate play space in connection with the various elementary schools.

"It is important that the young children be provided with enough play space area so that they can be kept off the streets during recess and after school hours," he wrote. The Mechanic Street school, which is 60 years old, was reported as in excellent condition and comparing favorably with buildings of later date. The complete text of Mr. Swan's report, relating to the school system, was as follows:

Prospective Enrollment. "From 1920 to 1927, the enrollment in the elementary schools and in the junior high schools of the Borough of Red Bank increased from 1,775 pupils to 2,062 pupils. From 1927 to 1930, however, the registration for these grades declined. In May, 1930, there were only 1,792 children enrolled in the kindergarten and grades one to nine. The opening of the parochial school in Red Bank during this period was responsible for the decline in the public schools. After a short period of readjustment, it is expected that the growth will be resumed at the rate which existed between 1920 and 1927, or about 25 per cent per decade.

"The senior high school has had an unusually large growth during the past 10 years. In 1920, the enrollment in the 10th, 11th and 12th grades, which constitute the high school, was 312 students. By May, 1930, this number had increased to 604, a growth in 10 years of 93.5 per cent. The explanation for this growth is that Red Bank is not growing as rapidly as contiguous areas. Those surrounding communities, while they provide schools for elementary school children, cannot afford to build high schools, and consequently many of their pupils when they reach high school age, attend the Red Bank high school. About 25 per cent of the total high school enrollment is from Fair Haven, Rumson, Little Silver and other communities in the vicinity.

"It is highly improbable that the rate of growth in the high school enrollment will be maintained for more than 10 years. As the contributing areas outside of Red Bank increase in population, they will probably provide high schools of their own.

DESIGNER BEGAN AT AGE OF FIVE

By MARIAN YOUNG

NEW YORK—"But mamma, I don't want my doll's new dress to look like those in the picture book. I want her to wear this one." And Julia Boyd, aged 5, held up a tiny frock that she had cut out herself. Thus, the fair-skinned, brown-eyed child laid the foundation for a career that was to make her one of the outstanding designers of patterns in this country.

Today millions of women look to Julia Boyd for inspiration and guidance as to what clothes to wear and how to make the costumes themselves. And no one is better equipped to give out such information. Her entire career has been devoted to figuring out the specific clothes needs of women of all walks of life.

"To me," said Miss Boyd, gesturing with her long-fingered hands (the hands of the genuine artist), "morning frocks deserve as much attention as frothy evening and afternoon creations. Most women are trying more and more to look attractive in the kitchen as well as on the street, at tea or when going to a formal dinner. It is up to me—as a designer—to supply beautiful fashions for every hour of the day." And she puts her ideas into practice.

"I am intensely interested in the woman who sews or who wishes to learn to sew. I know that she invariably has a minimum of time to spend with her needle and so I insist that the patterns made from my designs be easy to follow, interesting to work with. Home sewing is a form of recreation to many girls and I try never to forget that when I supervise the planning and cutting of patterns."

This typically American designer—she was born in Indiana—is no one to sit back and rest after

Collogg's ALL-BRAN Corrected His Constipation

If you are troubled by common constipation, read this letter: "Just a word in appreciation of what your ALL-BRAN has done for my health. For years, I had been dosing myself with pills and other dopes for constipation. I decided to try Collogg's ALL-BRAN. Now I am in good health, and haven't taken a drop of medicine for six months. Those—Little, 564 E. Wheeling St., Lancaster, Ohio."

Headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness—any one of these may be caused by common constipation. Yet this condition can be corrected, usually, by eating a delicious cereal.

Tests show Collogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to help promote regularity. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. How much safer than patent medicines! Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. In some cases, with each meal.

Rumson Opens Herbert Memorials with 18-7 Victory

Erickson Returns to Ocean View Ring Tonight to Battle Lew Feldman

Mon. County Outfit, Spotted Four Goals, Stopped by Baldings

By G. EARLE JOLINE

RUMSON, July 20.—Rumson's galloping quartet of poloists ran rough shod over Monmouth County Country Club in the opening match of the H. L. Herbert Memorial tournament at Rumson Country Club yesterday and won as they pleased, 18 to 7.

The squad made up of Gerald Ivor and Barney Balding and young Sheldon Prentice, of Harvard, clicked after the second period in this game and with a display of close-knit team work and almost perfect hitting ran wild in three of the six periods to completely subdue the Easton town Club's outfit which included Billy Reber, Buddy Combs, Ben Gatins and Billy Foales.

The Monmouth team went into the match with a four-goal handicap, but this was overcome in the second period when the Rumson team collected a total of five goals. They tallied two in the first when Prentice got away on short runs and completed two perfect shots for the scores.

The second chucker saw the Rumson team clicking with unusual smoothness and their opponents were outplayed at every stage of the period. Combs scored one for Monmouth on a free hit and after that the Rumson squad went to the fore and were never headed or even threatened with loss of the leadership.

Superior Mounts. Concerted team play, more accurate hitting and superior mounts were the contributing factors in Rumson's overwhelming victory. Rumson was always out in front when there came a race for the ball or when one of the team members started down the field with it. Gerald Balding, who played with one of the British international teams a few years ago, rode Miss Sylvia White's champion polo mount, Listen, in the second chucker and some fast riding was witnessed during the action of the session. The Rumson team led 7 to 5 at the end of the chucker.

The action was slow at the start of the third but picked up as the period wore on and at the end Rumson added one point when Barney poked the ball across the line on a pass from Ivor. Barney scored again to start the fourth and counted another when Gerald took the ball almost the length of the field and completed a perfect pass to his younger brother.

Rumson had two other big scoring periods besides the second. In the fifth and sixth chucks they scored four goals while they held the Monmouth team to a single tally. Rumson by virtue of its victory over Monmouth won the right to meet Rube Williams' Austin team in the semi-final match on Sunday. The first semi-final will be played tomorrow when Burnt Mills and Army clash in the Junior final match.

ASBURY ATHLETIC CLUB SHAKE UP REPORTED, DENIED

Casale Denies He Is Out as Convention Hall Matchmaker; Card Set for Thurs.

(Special to The Record) ASBURY PARK, July 20.—The report persisted today that the match-making affairs of the Asbury Park Athletic Club, sponsor of weekly boxing shows at the Convention Hall, would shortly be in other hands. Jerry Casale of Long Branch, matchmaker at the club and the one primarily responsible for its organization, vigorously denied any behind the scenes shifting, declaring only that a new policy would be put down and that prices would be cut downward.

Despite conflicting reports about the club's matchmaking job one thing appeared certain and that is that there will be fights at the Convention Hall this Thursday night. The majority of talent signed is of the local variety and all the boys on the card have appeared to advantage here on other occasions.

In the main go the fans will see Jack Ennis, durable local youth who has been going great guns lately, pitted against Mickey Button, of Newark, whose uninterrupted string of victories in local rings has made him a great favorite with shore fans in the star bout.

In the semi-final, "Nut" Capabianco, popular local youth, whose brawling fists have lifted him from the ranks of the preliminary boys, is slated to clash with Joe Caprio, of New Brunswick, a boy who a few seasons back was standing the best of the local talent on its collective heads while in another sparkling bout Johnny Briggs, Long Branch's dusky smashing right hand puncher, clashes with Frank "Blackie" Julian, of Passaic, who will be remembered by local fans for a great battle he fought not long ago with Ennis.

In the first of three four-rounders, Lou De Santis, one of the best local purists to be developed in the local Golden Gloves tourney, makes his pro debut.

He will be remembered by amateur fight fans as a tough youngster with almost no knowledge of the finer points of boxing but possessed of a punch which stiffened many of his amateur playmates.

His last amateur effort was in the ring at the Convention Hall Wednesday night when he had an amateur opponent from Newark slug-dizzy several times to cap a clean-cut decision although the Newarker outweighted him some dozen pounds. In Lee Tremmel, of this city, his opponent, he meets one of the most persistent of his challengers to the title of best flyweight in Monmouth County and one whom he has met several times in thrilling amateur tussles.

Tremmel lost no time in turning pro when he learned that Lou had deserted the amateur ranks and begged for the first crack at the Long Brancher.

Eddie Beams, of Freehold, meets Nick Perna of Red Bank in the second four-rounder. Johnny Smith, Long Branch feather, meets Tommy Cosentino, of Red Bank in another four.

FAVORITES ADVANCE IN DEAL TENNIS

Wacht and Berger Enter Quarter Final Round with Easy Victories.

(By Staff Correspondent) DEAL, July 20.—The men's singles championship at the Deal Tennis Club, reached the quarter-finals yesterday as the original field of 32 was cut down to eight players. Those who are considered to be the favorites came through in fine style.

The tournament, which yearly draws a large crowd of tennis aspirants from the surrounding shore municipalities, proved no exception this year, and the entry list was as large as always. The results:

First Round: Upper half—H. D. Rothschild defeated B. Berlinger, 6-0, 6-3; Charles Kehoe defeated Maury Salstein, 6-1, 5-7, 6-2; E. E. Cosden defeated Peter McDonnell, 6-2, 6-3; Al Kosmer defeated Billy Lovene, 6-0, 6-4; Leon Shusterman defeated Billy Pilon, 6-3, 6-0; Leslie Jahn defeated Jack Milner, 6-0, 4-6, 14-12; E. Kaufman defeated Jonathan Harris, 6-2, 6-0; Alex Braliove defeated Walter Strecker, 6-1, 3-6, 13-11.

Lower half—Julius Wacht defeated Robert Demuth, 6-1, 6-4; Newton Kutner defeated John McDonnell, 6-1, 6-1; Harold Friedman defeated Bob Norman, 3-6, 6-0, 6-3; S. Spitzer defeated Ted Taussig, 6-0, 6-1; Steve Bamberger defeated Henry King, 6-3, 6-4; R. E. Johnston defeated Henry Leslie, 6-4, 6-4; J. Rhome, Jr. defeated A. Kutner, 4-6, 6-1, 6-3; Sid Berger defeated Rodney Haines, 6-2, 6-2.

Second Round: Upper half—Rothschild defeated Kehoe, 8-6, 3-6, 6-4; Rosener de-

DEAN, SCHUMACHER MASTER LIVELY BALL

Card Ace Has Won 17 and Lost 3 Games to Lead National League.

(By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR., Associated Press Sports Writer) At least two pitchers in the National League, Jervene Herman (Dizzy) Dean of the Cardinals and Harold (Hal) Schumacher of the Giants, have earned the privilege of wearing slightly superior looks when any mention is made of the liveliest ball used in the senior circuit this year.

Each of them could boast today of nine straight victories, the best winning streaks of the season. Dean was the leading finger with 17 victories against three defeats and Schumacher was tied with Fred Frankhouse of Boston for second place with 14 games won and four lost.

The eccentric Dean chalked up his ninth consecutive triumph yesterday when he stopped the Braves with seven hits to gain a 4 to 2 decision over Bob Smith. And he took one of his few "jinxes" in doing it for it was his first triumph in Boston in more than two seasons. In addition he batted in the winning run with a long fly in the sixth after Spud Davis, Ernie Ott and Leo Durocher had connected for singles.

Schumacher continued to show the "Indian sign" over the Red last Wednesday night when he had an amateur opponent from Newark slug-dizzy several times to cap a clean-cut decision although the Newarker outweighted him some dozen pounds. In Lee Tremmel, of this city, his opponent, he meets one of the most persistent of his challengers to the title of best flyweight in Monmouth County and one whom he has met several times in thrilling amateur tussles.

These two victories failed to alter the upper part of the league standings as the second-place Cubs also came through with a victory, beating the Phillies 2 to 1 when Pat Malone and Lonnie Waneke got together to hurl a four-hit game.

The other first division team, Pittsburgh, ran into trouble however when Linus (Junior) Frey of Brooklyn broke up an elbowing argument between Bill Swift and Relief-Finger Emil Leonard by socking a home run with one aboard after two were out in the ninth to give the Dodgers a 4 to 2 decision over the Buccos.

The Ruth-less Yankees recovered some of their recently lost ground in the American League race when they edged out Chicago 4 to 3 while rain kept Detroit and the Athletics idle. Ben Chapman provided the difference between victory and defeat by driving in three runs and scoring another as he hit a single, double and triple. The triumph left the Yanks just two games behind the Tigers.

AMERICANS MEET AUSSIES TOMORROW

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 20.—(AP) Tennis stalwarts of the United States found themselves two jumps from the Davis Cup today—both of them long ones.

Easy victors in the American zone of cup competition, Frank Shields, Sidney Wood, George Lott and Lester Stoefer, will stack up against real opposition when they take Wimbledon's famous center court against Australia in the inter-zone finals starting tomorrow.

Shields will meet Jack Crawford and Wood will face Vivian McGrath in the opening singles matches. After a one-day lull over Sunday Stoefer and Lott will team against Crawford and Adrian Quist in the doubles on Monday. The final two singles matches Tuesday will send Wood against Crawford and Shields against McGrath.

Without minimizing the Anzacs' strength, most tennis experts felt the United States should be rated a well-defined favorite to eliminate Australia and thus gain the right to face Great Britain in the challenge round next week.

feated Cosden, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3; Jahn defeated Shusterman, 6-0, 6-3; Braliove defeated Kaufman, 6-0, 6-3.

Lower half—Wacht defeated Kutner, 6-2, 6-4; Spitzer defeated Friedman, 6-3, 6-3; Berger defeated Rhome, 6-1, 6-2.

FIREMEN TRIM COPS, 16-13, IN ANNUAL CONTEST

Lively's Delivery Baffles Officers in Game on Firemen's Field Yesterday.

Firemen's Field was the scene of a gala occasion last evening, as the baseball teams representing the firemen and the policemen of this city clashed in a historic rivalry that will long live in the minds of the residents. The firemen had the better of the encounter, and after five innings of hard and strenuous exertion they won by a score of 16 to 13.

A seven-run rally in the last inning made a close contest out of what was for a while a run-away victory for the red-coats. The cops were striking futilely at Lively's offerings and couldn't succeed in scoring more than several runs each inning.

Meanwhile the firemen were going strong. Five in the first, five in the second, two in the fourth, and four in the fifth kept their score mounting steadily higher, while, until the last inning, the policemen had to be satisfied with a measly bunch of six runs.

It was a grand and glorious contest from beginning to end. The pitchers had occasional difficulties in putting the ball anywhere near the plate, but the batters always played the part of the gentlemen and struck at most anything, within reach or not.

The errors were divided about evenly, but both teams will probably feel better if we forget all about the fielding. Some of the older men found it not so easy to jump around and handle these hot grounders.

The box score: Firemen AB R H PO A E Connors, 3b 3 2 2 Luther, ss 3 1 0 Dempsey, 2b 3 2 2 Presley, 1b 4 2 0 Brown, rf 4 3 1 Horke, cf 4 1 1 Wright, cf 2 3 1 Schebell, c 2 1 1 Lively, p 3 0 0 Totals 28 16 30

SHIKAT AND M'LAIN ON ASBURY MAT CARD

(Special to The Record) ASBURY PARK, July 20.—Wrestling returns to the Convention Hall Monday night after an absence of two weeks during which Queen Thalia and her court held sway, with Dick Shikat, former champion of the world, meeting Maves Mc'Lain, the ex-grid star from the University of Iowa. In one other appearance along the shore this season Shikat defeated Dick Wyckoff in 35 minutes at Long Branch a week ago last Wednesday night. The pair are scheduled to grapple to a finish with one fall to decide.

A 45-minute battle brings George Manich of Belmar out against Ernie Stevens. Manich has had many matches in this vicinity and is generally regarded as the state champion.

Two 30-minute bouts complete Alex Coleman's card. In one Hans Steinke, the German oak, tackles Charley "Buck" Weaver while in the other Phil Mofugi takes on Gene Bruce, the Scandinavian.

HITCHCOCK IN EAST-WEST NEW YORK.—Tommy Hitchcock, one of the three 10-goal ranking polo stars in the United States, will again play for the east during the East-West polo matches in Chicago this summer. Tommy was injured during the inter-sectional contests last year.

Fighting Swedish Wop Back with Additional Poundage for Feldman

Tiger Hall Returns to Ring Wars Against Al Trulmans of Baer's Camp

Ocean View fight fans will see a different Johnny Erickson in action here tonight than the tough fighting Swedish Wop who lost to Kid Chocolate here two weeks ago in a sizzling 10-rounder. There were plenty in the house that night who thought the white boy kicked the Cuban but the referee was not among them so Chocolate marched away with the lion's share of honors.

Chocolate had never been defeated for the featherweight title and Erickson, with a sharp eye to business, figured that if he entered the ring at 126 pounds and won from the Keed he could lay claim to the world's featherweight title. Well, to make a long story short, Erickson came in at 126 but the hard training and drying out to make the weight apparently sapped his vitality. It will be a different story tonight for Johnny will enter the ring nearer his best fighting weight, 130 pounds.

With the few additional pounds, so important to the small boys, and the extra strength that goes with them, Erickson should give Lew Feldman, the 26-year-old New York featherweight, the time of his life.

Feldman not only holds a decision over Freddie Miller, the N. B. A. champ, but is also the fighter to hold a decision over Mike Belosice, designated by the New York State Boxing Commission to meet Baby Arizmendi, the Mexican, for the featherweight title. He has also defeated Kid Francis, Jerry Mazza, Pete De Grasse, Johnny Pena, Jimmy Vaughn and Tommy Paul when the latter was recognized as the N. B. A. champion.

He has gone 25 rounds against Chocolate dropping two close decisions. Erickson and Feldman travel 10 rounds tonight.

Al Trulmans of California, whose only appearance since he helped whip Max Baer into shape for his title bid, resulted in a victory over K. O. Burns of Baltimore in the Convention Hall ring, stacks up against a formidable foe in Tiger Hall, the fighting Long Branch colored boy. The pair stop through six rounds in the semi-final bout.

Another six rounder pits the popular and classy Young Canada Lee against DeMasco Ceda of Puerto Rico. Lee stood the fans on their collective ears here two weeks ago when he defeated Joe Novellino in a whirlwind contest. Ceda and Lee recently fought a draw in a New York ring.

Two four rounders complete the card. Having completed 100 amateur fights Joe Baez of Puerto Rico will appear in his first pro fight against Irish Johnny Grant of West New York. Baez is a stamplate of Sixto Escobar, the bantam champ. The other go brings Tommy Payne out against Steve Clinton of the U. S. Naval station at Fort Hancock. The boys are middleweights.

SOPHIE KERR'S SUPERB LOVE STORY "STAY OUT OF MY LIFE!"

By Sophie Kerr

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JANE TEHRY comes to New York determined to show her home town and especially AMY JACKSON that she can make a success of her life. She has her best friend until HOWARD JACKSON broke the engagement. Jane forced on him the married AMY. Unable to bear the sight of Jane's happiness, Jane obtains a job in a New York real estate office.

Jane is clever and soon is making an excellent salary. She has an affair with ROGER THROUPE, who is married. Later she tries of him and when he offers to take the expense of their child, she disabuses him contemptuously.

In her desperate plight Jane turns to Amy for help. Howard is touring Germany and Amy comes to New York. She tells Jane the baby is born and she is horrified because Jane insists on giving her daughter away, agreeing to take the child with the understanding that Jane never shall reclaim her.

When Amy returns to Marburg with the baby she worries over what Howard will do. She tries to think of what she has done.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIX

PROFESSOR LOWE looked down at the tiny baby. "Amy, you must name her," he said. "This continual use of the feminine pronoun annoys me."

"Then you suggest something," Amy prompted. "All fancy and historical names barred."

"Too bad— was just going to suggest Boadicea or Xenobia or Cleopatra! But there's still Margaret of Navarre and Elizabeth and Mary or good Queen Anne, Helen of Troy, Calphurnia—"

"For heaven's sake, who was she?"

"Amy, I'm ashamed of you. Calphurnia was Julius Caesar's wife."

"Name her Catherine and call her Kitty for short," said Mrs. Lowe. "She's more like a kitten with its eyes not open than anything I ever saw."

They had reached the door. It seemed to Amy, entering, that there had never been any place so beautiful, so welcoming as that old house. The windows were open. The green garden beyond looked in at them. A lazy south breeze stirred the white curtains and brought the honeysuckle. "Oh!" she exclaimed, "I didn't know how sweet it was, or how much I missed it. And you've put flowers around—it makes me want to cry. I'm so glad to be home again."

They left her taking off her hat, opening her bags. As they drove away Professor Lowe said to his wife haltingly: "It has to come to all parents, I suppose, but I didn't know how much it was going to hurt, the moment when their child is definitely done with youth. I always think of Amy as such a lovely, happy young thing, and yet today—I realized—the first real touch of age. It wasn't the worry about Howard. She's been through something more, some difficult experience that's changed her and matured her. And I can tell you, my dear, it hurt me in a queer helpless way. That was why I talked so much nonsense about the infant's name."

"I know, I felt exactly what you mean. But it can't be done. We fathers and mothers can't shelter our children forever. If we did they'd only become cases of arrested development. Whatever Amy's been through is concerned with that baby, I'm sure of that."

"Yes, it must have been a struggle to decide to adopt a child without consulting Howard or any of her friends except that flyaway Jane."

MRS. LOVE looked sharply at her husband, wondering if he was as unsuspecting as she sounded. If he was she had better keep her own suspicions under cover for he was quite absent-minded enough to blurt them out at the time and place they would be most awkward. She herself was absolutely sure about the baby, and her old dislike and resentment of Jane's influence over Amy quickened into life.

She recalled that in her letter telling of the adoption Amy had said that it was a child whose mother did not want it, would not keep it. "Amy will never tell me anything more," she thought. For her own self-respect she added: "And I shall never ask her."

Behind them Amy was hurrying about her house, her fatigue, her strain vanishing under the delight of being with her own again. The baby cried with hunger. She must leave her and go into her homely neat kitchen to prepare fresh food. Everything seemed to welcome her. Everything was in place, responded to her hand. She did not need to fumble or hunt for anything. The walls of the baby went on steadily while Amy poured and measured and tested, and when she ran back upstairs with the bottle and tucked the nipple into the mouth of the wriggling yelling mite, her gurgle of surprise and her greedy sucking made Amy laugh aloud.

"I'll call you Piggie instead of Kitten," she told her, but the baby was too intent on eating to notice the threat. When she was satisfied she dropped off into instant, easy sleep. Amy held the empty bottle and watched her for a few minutes. "She's certainly getting less red and more pink. She looks almost like a real baby now. I do hope she'll be pretty. And I do hope she won't look like Jane—or be like Jane. I must stop thinking about Jane, I must forget her entirely. It's heavenly to be home. If only Howard were here it would be perfect."

HER thoughts marched on, mingling Howard and the baby. One thing she meant to do, tell Howard the whole story of the child, holding back nothing. Then they would put the secret away, never to allude to it, bury it. She had no real misgivings as to Howard's willingness to have the child in their home. Howard would say that she had done the only possible thing.

Downstairs Mrs. Lowe was rapping at the door. "I've got the cradle. Come and look, Amy. Where do you want it?"

It seemed the best plan to Amy to have the baby in her own bedroom until she was a little older. There was an unfurnished room beside her own that would do for a nursery later.

"It's a very old-fashioned cradle," said Mrs. Lowe, "but it's in good condition and the sides are high enough for safety. You could take the rockers off, I suppose. I believe it's not considered the thing nowadays to rock babies to sleep."

"This baby is going to be rocked to sleep," said Amy firmly. "And maybe it she sleeps in an old-fashioned cradle she'll grow up to be a nice old-fashioned girl."

"It doesn't exactly follow. But don't let's start the argument of heredity versus environment. Personally I've always bet on heredity."

"Oh Mother, have you! But you can't be sure!"

There was such dismay in Amy's voice that Mrs. Lowe's suspicions became a certainty. This was it, it must be, Jane Terry's child! "No, silly, of course I'm not sure. Nobody's sure. Don't the best families always have a black sheep, and don't some of the meanest, most low-down people imaginable have children that are perfect models? The only thing to do with children is to keep them healthy and teach them manners. They're bound to make their morals for themselves."

AMY did not carry the argument idly. But in the days between her own home coming and that of Howard, she thought of her mother's frank statement of uncertainty—when she had any time to think at all. She had a great deal to do and she was glad of it, for again there was a lapse in messages from Howard and Professor Elliot, and the suspense was hard. All of her Marburg friends came to see her, excited and amused by the baby, some of them exceedingly curious as well.

She had to parry and evade their questions as well as she could, but she was glad none of them even remotely suggested that it might be Jane's child, not even Miss Rosa, who commented that anyone who took a child to raise was surely a glutton for trouble. The baby was growing, becoming active, noticing light and movement and taking on the pink and white curves of a healthy, proper infant.

Amy had come home late in August and it was late in September and the first semester of the college year had commenced—with much uncertainty and confusion as to the geological courses—when, one morning, very early, the telephone rang. Half asleep Amy reached from her bed and put the receiver to her ear. The connection was bad and someone was talking very fast, slammering the words, and at first she couldn't make it out. Then she heard:

"Darling, darling, darling!" came the faraway rushing voice, "hurry, speak to me, I've been nearly crazy—"

CHOCOLATE ONCE WAS $5 A POUND

Cocoa Was Used 1,000 Years In America Before Europeans Came

WASHINGTON, D. C.—"The fight being waged to save, from a destructive plant disease, the famous cacao plantations of Trinidad, West Indies, brings into the news, an unusual, two-fold industry," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Not only does the cacao bean supply the producers of candies and sweetmeats with a unique solid ingredient and flavoring, but it furnishes 'the makings' for a hot beverage, surpassed in world importance only by coffee and tea."

Gift of New World
"Chocolate was a gift to man's palate from the Western Hemisphere," continues the bulletin. "Like tobacco, the potato, and a number of other plant products, it was taken back to Europe by explorers soon after Columbus opened the road to the New World, and launched on the way that has led to world markets."

"In trade circles today three terms are used: Chocolate and cocoa, and cacao. The tropical tree which is the source of chocolate is called the CACAO. In its leathery, cucumber-like fruit are cacao pods which contain CACAO beans. But when the beans are roasted and ground, and much of the fat is pressed out, the remaining brown substance (ground to a dry powder) is COCOA. If the fat is not pressed out, the darker substance is CHOCOLATE."

"Credit for the manufacture of chocolate from the hidden seed of an unprepossessing fruit belongs to the original inhabitants of Mexico. In 1519, when Hernando Cortez invaded that country, he discovered that the cacao tree was widely cultivated. The natives had concocted a drink called 'chocolate' or 'caca-huatl' from which have come the names 'chocolate' and 'cocoa.' Frothing pitchers of chocolate were served by Montezuma when he entertained Cortez."

"Arrived By Air"
"Students of American native customs have estimated that the drink was in use 1,000 years before the arrival of Europeans. According to Mexican mythology the seed of the cacao tree was carried from a New World version of the Garden of Eden into Mexico by Quetzalcoatl, God of Air. The fruit, it is related, was a favorite food of the gods. The great Swedish botanist, Linnaeus, christened the fruit THEOBROMA CACAO, meaning in Greek 'Food of the Gods.'"

"Cacao was used as a means of barter and the payment of tribute by the Aztecs and Mayans. A man's wealth was often judged by the number of cacao beans he possessed. In Mexico a good slave could be purchased for 100 beans."

"Its highly concentrated food value, low cost of production, and numerous uses have stimulated cacao cultivation to such an extent that now it is grown in practically all tropical countries. The wet tropical areas of the West African colonies of Great Britain and Portugal, and the South and Central Americas are especially well suited to the cultivation of the trees."

Gold Coast Producer
"The introduction of the cacao tree in Africa has resulted in a remarkable growth of the industry and economic development of the continent. The Gold Coast has taken first place away from Brazil in the world's production of cacao. What were once trackless and useless African jungles, inhabited only by savage bushmen and wild animals, today are cacao plantations operated for the most part by natives."

"As an international commodity, the cacao bean has grown in importance to such extent that the United States alone, in 1933, imported 474,270,000 pounds, valued at $18,739,000. The United States is by far the largest consumer, cacao ranking 16th in value on our list of imports. Germany, Great Britain and the Netherlands follow in the order named."

"For many years the Spaniards of South America and of some of the West Indies monopolized the cacao industry. Chocolate was introduced into Spain by Cortez and his conquistadores about the beginning of the 16th century, but the process of chocolate manufacture was kept a secret for almost 100 years. In 1606, an Italian discovered the method of preparation. Shortly afterwards, monks and travelers spread the news throughout Europe. The 17th and 18th centuries found the popularity of the drink steadily increasing. Cacao houses were established in England, as well as on the continent."

Sold At $5 A Pound
"Chocolate, however, was a luxury which only the rich could afford, since it sold for as much as

$5 a pound. Today, good chocolate can be purchased for a few cents a pound, and is consumed in one form or another by millions of people throughout the world over.

"Modern methods of cocoa and chocolate manufacture differ little from those used by primitive-people centuries ago. In Mexico, the natives roasted the beans and then ground them between two warm flat stones until a fine paste was obtained. This was sometimes mixed with maize (corn) and flavored with vanilla and spices. The paste was melted into forms desired and allowed to cool. Modern preparation of the commodity is more scientific and thorough, but the principal steps taken are much the same."

"Cocoa butter is an important by-product of the cacao bean, which contains 50 per cent fat. The butter, removed by crushing the beans under hydraulic pressure, is extensively used in confectionery, and in pharmaceutical preparations. Almost every household has some commodity that contains this vegetable fat. Cocoa butter is an ingredient of many soaps, pomades, perfumes, ointments, plasters and cosmetics."

MORRELL STREET MAN IS REPORTED MISSING

Mrs. Woodrow Herbert, 51 Morrell Street, reported to police that her step-father, Aaron Jones, 31, has been missing from home since Wednesday.

She said he failed to return from work at the Ebaner plant in Red Bank and authorities there were asked to make an investigation. Jones, known as "Red," was described as being 6 feet tall and weighing 156 pounds.

New Crop of Graduates Left High and Dry

Dorothy Dix

"Where Do We Go From Here?" Asks Sweet Girl Graduate, Bewildered by a World That Seems to Have No Place for Her—"Prepare Yourself for Work You Like!" Urges Dorothy Dix

THESE days the land is filled with sweet girl graduates standing without the schoolroom doors that have just closed behind them, and asking, in the words of the old song, where do we go from here? For the first time they have come to grips with reality. For the first time they have been left to stand on their own feet with no helping hand to support them, and they are as frightened and bewildered as lost babes in the forest. For, while they have been taught all of the sciences and arts and instructed in the arts and sciences, no one has taught them anything about the art of making the most of themselves, or how to make a living.

Naturally, the ultimate ambition and the fixed intention of all of these girls is to marry, but there are no orange blossoms in sight and, while they await the coming of Prince Charming, most of them must earn their bread and butter, and they have no idea of how to set about doing it. Their heads are full of nebulous dreams about going to Hollywood and becoming famous movie stars with fabulous salaries. Or of becoming Jane and Fortune with a novel that becomes a best seller. Or they think it would be romantic to be an interior decorator and fun to run a tea shop.

But one look in the mirror wipes Hollywood off the map for them. One try at writing convinces them that dashing off a novel isn't a matter of an idle hour. And common sense suggests that it takes training and experience and money to make a success at running any sort of shop. And so these children, finding what they consider attractive ways of earning their bread and butter barred to them, sit down helplessly to wait, like Mr. Micawber, for something to turn up, or else drift into any kind of occupation that comes their way without any regard for their fitness for it.

This is a great pity, for work is either a curse or a blessing, according to whether it is congenial or distasteful to us. If we are doing the thing that we like to do, the thing that thrills us through and through and that keeps us keyed up and on our toes with interest all the time, we get out of it the biggest kick that life has to give us. But if we have to do the work that bores us, work that is nothing but dull, meaningless labor given in exchange for a few dollars, then indeed does it turn life into cinders, ashes and dust.

So I would urge you girls to sit down and have a quiet session with your own souls and try to find out what Nature intended you to do before you choose an occupation in order that you may pick out some line of work in which the pleasure you get out of doing it will be just as high, and in order that you may succeed, because you have to put your heart as well as your back into anything to make a go of it. No one ever does a hateful task well.

And don't delude yourself into thinking that it does not make any difference what you choose as an occupation because you will soon get married and you expect to work at it such a short time. Husbandry does not hang on every bush in these days, and even when a girl gets one she is by no means sure of keeping him, or that she won't have to support him.

So look upon your work, whatever you choose, as your life-work and prepare yourself to do it well. Remember that your pay envelope depends entirely upon your craftsmanship, and that you will have to work just as hard and as long hours for small pay if you do poor, sloppy work as you will for high pay for expert work. The difference between a $10-a-week cook and a $10,000-a-year chef is the difference in skill.

Don't go into some occupation for which you have neither talent nor taste, because it sounds grand and important. A girl once told me that she intended to be a poet because she had always thought that writing poetry was such a romantic way to make money. There are thousands like her. Girls who can't act, who starve along trying to get on the stage. Girls who have no gift for writing who toil from youth to age trying to write stories or plays that are always rejected. Girls who try to be secretaries without even knowing how to spell. The horde of women who work so hard and get nowhere and who are always hungry and shabby because they had a false pride that made them waste their lives attempting to do work for which God gave them neither the brains nor the skill.

Remember always that it is the plain, practical, everyday work for which there is the greatest demand. People can live without the ornaments, but they cannot live without the necessities of life. They can live without art or music or books, but they have to have clothes to live in. There have to be cooks and chambermaids and boarding-house keepers and dressmakers and milliners and clerks and stenographers, and the girl who makes herself an expert in any of these lines has something to sell in the market place that the world wants and for which it will always pay. And it pays just in accordance with her skill.

And if you choose one of these honest ways of making a living you will be filling yourself in the best possible way to be a good wife and mother when you DO marry. Your years of training will not be lost, as they would be if you were a doctor or a lawyer or a concert singer or an actress and had to give up your profession when you married. You simply carry over your knowledge and be a better cook because you went to your domestic science, or a better manager because you were a business girl, or a better mother because you were a trained nurse.

So study yourselves, girls, and pick out the work that you like best. DOROTHY DIX.

Biblical Pageant is Presented in Convention Hall

ASBURY PARK, July 20.—The Biblical pageant "Let There Be Light" was presented yesterday afternoon in the Convention Hall at 3 o'clock under the direction of Mrs. John W. Tucker. Preceding the production G. Howard Scott played and also during the performance.

The soloists were Helen Harcourt Williams, Dorothy Wilson Heullitt, Ruth Muth and Kathleen Sitt. A number of the local clergy took part in the pageant. Rev. Otto L. F. Mohr, pastor of the Reformed Church in the role of the prophet read the scripture and text of each episode as it was portrayed.

PLAN BEACH PARTY The Ladies Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 274, of this city, will hold a beach party at the North Long Branch beach tonight. The affair will get started between 7:30 and 8 o'clock with Mrs. Carrie Lane, Worthy Mistress, in charge of the arrangements. A large attendance is expected as all members have been urged to bring their friends.

Spanish Delicacy Built on Scrambled Eggs

Chopped Pimento, Ham, Onion and Shrimp Used

(NEA—Daily Record Writer) From El Chico, New York Simple dishes meet with the greatest approval in this country. Of course, the average American likes recipes that are nourishing and appreciates having them dressed up in new ways now and then but, generally speaking, in contrast to the European's ideas, he prefers food that digests easily and takes little time to eat.

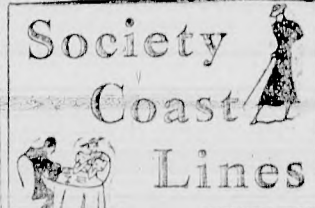

For instance, Spanish cooks an entire luncheon or supper use scrambled eggs, that typically American dish, and build around the fluffy yellow mixture. Here's the way it's done at El Chico, a New York night club:

One of Treats of Trip Was Dalton Orchid Exhibit

RED BANK, July 20.—About 275 persons went on the third annual garden tour sponsored by the Monmouth County Organization for Social Service yesterday afternoon, starting at 1 o'clock from the Molly Pitcher Hotel, Riverside Avenue.

The tour wended its way first to the estate of Alfred Lichtenstein on Riverside Drive, where the group alighted to view the beautiful garden, next stopping at the garden of Mrs. Dexter Blagden, also on Riverside Drive. Mrs. Blagden was scheduled to serve tea at her home but because of the illness of her husband, Mrs. Harold Hartshorne of "Halcyon Bight", chairman of the tour, offered to substitute. However, Mrs. Blagden insisted that the tour visit her garden as it is especially beautiful at this time of year, and she wished to do everything to aid the Social Service in its annual event.

Bank on Frequent Home Facials To Keep Up Your Appearance

The third step in a quick home facial treatment is illustrated above. Having put on and removed cleansing cream, the model pats her skin with a home-made cotton pater that has been dipped in cold skin tonic.

By ALICIA HART (NEA—Daily Record Writer) Girls who put aside thick creams and lotions, substituting liquid cleansers, soap and water and skin tonics during the summer months, should give themselves an occasional refreshing home facial.

A simple complexion treatment not only improves personal appearance as well as morale but keeps the skin from getting dry and rough. Try one the next time you have a very special dinner date and see how much more charming you'll look.

First of all, clean face and neck with a quick-melting cleansing cream. Wipe off with soft tissues, using upward and outward movements and then, with a thick cotton pad that you can make yourself, pat on cold skin tonic. Remember to keep your elbows up and arms relaxed while you're applying and removing the preparations.

Now open the pad, dip it in the water, spread it over your face and lie down for 10 minutes. Close your eyes, relax your body and try to rest your mind, too. Stop thinking entirely if you can. If not, concentrate on pleasant things.

When you get up, smother on a cooling foundation lotion. If you use one of the new, luxurious protective creams, thin a bit of it with cold skin tonic until the mixture is about the consistency of milk. After you've used it apply make-up.

Living with Eskimos is a wonderful character builder for any youth.—Rockwell Kent, famous artist.

Babe Ruth has hit his 700th home run, but a far greater record is the number of times he's outlived his scheduled retirement.

What the people of this country really want is prosperity, not a sea for material growth, but for physical and material possession.—James R. Bancroft, president, American Institute of Finance.

Although there are arrangements for shooting them on a large as possible scale, nobody has started any protection-for-humans sanctuary where they cannot be shot.—George Bernard Shaw.

SAVE THE JUICE Don't throw away juice from canned fruit. Put it in a jar in the icebox and use to give variation to iced beverages.

Meat and Vegetable Hash One-half pound round steak, 1-2 cups chopped raw carrots, 2 cups chopped raw potato, 3 onions, 1 cup milk, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, coarse buttered crumbs.

Put meat, carrots, potatoes and onions through food chopper. Mix thoroughly and add milk and seasoning. Put into a casserole cover with buttered crumbs and bake one hour in a moderate oven (275 degrees F).

Hodge Podge One pound shoulder of lamb, 1 head lettuce, 2 cups peas, 4 or 5 green onions, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 cup water.

Chop meat and brown slightly in butter melted in sauce pan. Add lettuce cut in slices, onions thin sliced and water and simmer 45 minutes. Add peas, salt and pepper and cook 15 minutes longer. Stir gently with a fork to prevent sticking, but take care not to crush peas. Serve very hot.

THE TINYMITES

Story by Hal Cochran - Picture by Geo. Scarbo

Brave Scouty thought to himself, "I am thrilled over... I only hope that I can safely reach the distant camp... Then I'll spy on the Meaney Men, and crawl back to our camp again... I wonder why each Meaney is a tricky little scamp... Poor Scouty, though, fell in a trap. He stopped to take a little nap, and several Meaney Men came out and saw him on the ground... One whispered, "Get some rope. We'll tie this lad real tight, 'cause he's a spy." When Scouty woke up, with a start, his hands and legs were bound... "Ha, ha. You will not spy on us. And don't you try to start a fuss," exclaimed one of the Meanies. "You're a prisoner of war!"... "Poor Scouty knew it was no use to try and work the tight rope loose. He eyed the band of Meanies, wondering just what was in store." (Copyright, 1934, NEA Service, Inc.)

BRIDGE

CONTRACT—How to Score It
By WM. E. MCKENNEY
Secretary, American Bridge League

Today's Contract Problem
Here's the eighth of 13 playing problems by Henry P. Jaeger. North has the contract at three no trump. No opposite bidding. East's opening lead is the Jack of spades. Par on the hand is to make contract, with the king of diamonds in the West hand.

You know, it is strange that when a difficult hand comes up in a tournament you will usually find that several of the good pairs will find the play. But all of them usually trip on these insignificant plays—ones that tantalize you.

The whole secret of today's

Duplicate—All vul. Opening lead—A ♠. Dealer—South.

South West North East
1. N. T. Pass 2. N. T. Pass
3. N. T. Pass 4. Pass Pass

hand is that you must learn to distinguish between a deuce and a six. When the hand goes down, you see that you have no suit with which to work except diamonds and that to make your contract, you will have to take a spade finesse, praying in the meantime that the ace of diamonds is in the East hand.

Now, in order to do all these things, you must have sufficient entries.

South's bid of one no trump shows a hand containing at least 3-2 primary tricks. When North responds with two no trump, he is saying that at no trump he has two probable entries.

The Play
West's opening lead is the queen

MATAWAN OFFICER AVERTS EXPLOSION

Gasoline Truck Trailer Breaks Loose, Pitches Down Ravine; Traffic Tied Up

(By Staff Correspondent)

MATAWAN, July 20.—Clear thinking and quick action on the part of an officer on the local police force here last evening prevented what might have been a dangerous explosion and an equally disastrous fire when a gasoline truck trailer broke loose from the truck, careened across the highway and pitched down a ravine.

The policeman, Officer Ritter Johnson, on traffic duty on State Highway No. 4 near Buttonwood Farms here, rushed to the scene shortly after the trailer, struck a glancing blow by a passing car, broke loose from an Atlantic Reifining truck bound south on the highway and pitched down a ravine after striking two telegraph poles and crashing through the paving at the ravine.

The trailer, valued at $8,000, was completely wrecked but the danger, the officer saw, lay in the 600 gallons of gasoline flowing over the highway and following the path of the trailer in its plunge down the ravine. Keenly aware of the danger of fire on the heavily traveled highway, Officer Johnson stopped all traffic both ways and sent in an emergency call for Chief Albert Matz, head of the local fire department, the firemen and police reserve.

The firemen speedily eliminated the danger of fire by covering the gasoline with gallon after gallon of chemical, while the police took charge of the thousands of cars stopped by the crash, most of them bound to or from Asbury Park, Long Branch and other shore points. Another truck was called and soon after pulled the trailer from the gully.

John Pokryska, of Newark, driver of the truck, was uninjured as was Frank Grillo, of Perth Amboy, driver of the light truck which struck the trailer.

Grillo, who was found to be without a driver's license, was held temporarily and then released to return for hearing today or tomorrow.

Gas company officials, who were speedily on the scene, were unanimous in their commendation of the action of Johnson and the members of the fire department, which, they agreed, might have resulted in a much more serious accident.

Nearly a thousand cars, it was estimated, were halted at the scene for some time before the tangled traffic conditions could be relieved and traffic resumed.

TWO CARS DAMAGED IN EATONTOWN CRASH; ONE OCCUPANT INJURED

EATONTOWN, July 20.—A head-on crash at the corners of Clinton Street and Main Street caused appreciable damage to two cars late last night and resulted in an occupant of one of the cars having to be taken to the Riverview Hospital by the Eatontown Ambulance Corps.

Florence Schapen, of Newark, who was riding in the car driven by Jack Reichenstein, also of Newark, was the individual who was hurt. She received lacerations of both legs and was treated at the hospital.

The other car was driven by Ruth Van Why, of Roselle. Reichenstein was driving north on Main Street when the accident occurred.

Chief Harry Kirkegarde investigated the mishap, but no charges were made.

JURY TO BE RECALLED IN MIKE DRIES CASE

TOMS RIVER, N. J., July 20.—(P)—The Bergen County grand jury will be recalled today to consider the case of Abe Byer, of Trenton, who is charged with hiring and aiding the three youths who killed Mike Dries, Trenton bootlegger and racketeer Aug. 1, 1933.

James Duncan, 21, was convicted of first degree murder in the Dries case Monday. The other two defendants, Walter R. Bennett, 23, and Donald Tremper, 21, were found guilty of second degree murder.

It is of no use to threaten of scold us.—Dr. Hjalmer Schacht, president of the German Reichsbank.

Q. Then did they come to you?

A. A statement, what happened when we took Johnson to Freehold. They came to Giovanni Siciliano and he made another statement.

Q. Then did they come to you?

Roder Says Powder Test Seemed Real

Roder further admitted he testified before Magistrate Andrew that the powder contained heroin but protested that he was not quite sure of the presence of the narcotic and asked that a postponement be taken.

He recalled under questioning also that Judge Andrew had spoken to him about bringing the matter to the attention of the federal government.

Q. And you described his conversation with you, in the report, as follows, did you not: "After the hearing was over, Justice Andrew then asked me what I wanted to do about bringing this case to the federal court, as he would not have it there, because he stated that the District Attorney's office in Freehold was under investigation and it would not be so good there."

A. That statement was made.

Canning Testifies
Harold M. Canning of the Asbury Park Press testified to attending the meeting at the home of Councilman Henry on the night of March 6 and the events of the following day.

Q. On that day did you have a conversation with one William Sneider?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. During the course of that conversation or about at the end of the conversation do you know whether or not a copy of the extra edition of the Asbury Park Press was given to Mr. Sneider?

A. Yes, I gave Mr. Sneider a copy.

Q. Approximately what time of the day was that?

A. I should think about 5 o'clock. I am not sure of the time.

He admitted under questioning he thought he saw Wayne B. McMurray, City Clerk Loog and Councilman Digney at the office at that time. Then under cross examination he was asked:

Q. After you were subpoenaed before you went on the witness stand, you were interrogated by Mr. Carton, the prosecutor, were you not?

A. Yes, Sir.

Q. Just what did he tell you?

A. Prior to my being on the witness stand now?

Q. Yes.

A. It was yesterday.

Q. What did he say?

A. He asked me if I knew anything more about the case and I said "No." He said, "Well, you might as well tell all you know now. Mr. McMurray is out after Judge Andrew's testimony yesterday."

That question and answer led the attorneys into a long argument which resulted in bringing out the old story of Canning's arrest for questioning at the time the case was forming.

Tells of Extra
Sneider followed the witness on the stand and testified to obtaining the copy of the Press extra at 5:30 o'clock, and Thomas Tighe, city editor of the Press, later set the time of publication as the same.

Sneider was asked:

Q. As a result of your talk with Mr. Canning, did he give you anything?

A. At that time Mr. Canning asked me to sit down in his office and wait a minute, he was busy preparing copy for an ad. I sat there and waited about 10 minutes, reading a copy of the current issue of The Press. He suddenly came up and said, "Wait a minute," and as I turned I saw a boy coming down from the upper floors of the office and drop a bundle of papers. He handed me a paper, and I said, "What is this about?" And he said:

Q. Is this a copy of the paper he handed you?

A. It is.

Q. At about what time was the paper handed you?

A. Four twenty or 4:30, thereabouts, because I left The Press office at twenty-five to five.

Questioned about affidavits he signed after returning from Freehold where Johnson had been jailed, Gavina Gatta said he was then taken to the home of McMurray.

Statements Made
Q. They started talking about when you took Johnson to Freehold?

A. Yes, sir, then we all sat down. Burke's brother, he made a statement.

Q. Burke's brother made a statement?

A. A statement, what happened when we took Johnson to Freehold. They came to Giovanni Siciliano and he made another statement.

Q. Then did they come to you?

A. Yes, I gave Mr. Sneider a copy.

Q. Approximately what time of the day was that?

A. I should think about 5 o'clock. I am not sure of the time.

STOLEN A. P. SCRIP IS LEFT ON TABLE

$1,071 Taken from Office Is Found at Point Pleasant Night Club

(By Staff Correspondent)

ASBURY PARK, July 20.—The $1,071 of municipal scrip which disappeared from the cashier's window in City Hall here last July 10 was left on a table in a Point Pleasant night club by a prominent resident of this city several nights ago, according to a report current here today.

As far as Giles goes, his stand on the entire affair has been one of neutrality. It was he who denied the theft had occurred although precautions taken at City Hall belied this attitude. It was understood that he was contacted by City Manager Carl H. Bischoff immediately after the latter learning of the loss and was instructed to get busy.

The scrip disappeared from the cashier's cage at 3 o'clock in the afternoon while no one was watching it.

The circumstances under which it was reported discovered are as nebulous as those under which it disappeared. Police declined to discuss the case and no one at City Hall cared to take the responsibility of making a statement concerning the missing money.

FISH HOOK WOUND SENDS ANGLER TO HOSPITAL

NEPTUNE, July 20.—Neglecting to care properly for a puncture in a finger of his right hand caused by a fish hook several days ago may prove to have serious consequences for a Long Branch angler, who was admitted to the Fitkin Hospital here at midnight last night.

The wound, in the hand of Munroe Johnson, 34, of 189 Edwards Avenue, whose hand had become infected, was treated and remained at the hospital.

Other persons seeking treatment at the local dispensary last night included Henry Hammond, colored, an employee at an Ocean Grove cafeteria, suffering from injuries to his left arm, and Percy Hall, of 410 Langford Avenue, Asbury Park, who received a laceration between the fingers of his right hand while at work in the Asbury Park coffee shop. Both were treated and released.

At 7:05 o'clock this morning, Isaac Wolf, of 459 Forsgate Avenue, Brooklyn, was rushed to the local institution suffering from severe pains in his left side. Wolf, a guest in an Asbury Park hotel, was admitted.

A. P. WOMAN AWARDED $2,728 FOR BACK BOARD

FREEHOLD, July 20.—Mrs. Anastasia Bates, Asbury Park, for a balance due for the board of Mary Heberle at periods from July, 1932, to May 17, 1933, when the latter died, secured an award of $2,728.50 against Alice Bernard, administrator of the Heberle estate, in a suit heard by Circuit Court Judge Rulif V. Lawrence and a jury yesterday.

The plaintiff was represented by James D. Carton, Jr., and the defendant by Herman Anskstein, New Brunswick.

Stories about subversive influences in our government are just plain bunk.—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson.

A. Then they came to me and I made another statement.

Q. Was the statement written down or typewritten?

A. Typewritten?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who typed the statement?

A. Mr. McMurray.

Gatta claimed some of the statements put in the affidavit were not true but under cross-examination admitted he had not signed it then, but the next day at police headquarters, and that he could not state if both statements were the same.

State Rests Case After 26 Witnesses Are Heard

during the morning concerning the money that at few times has been pierced by his opponent. In fact it was not until yesterday that Leonard was able to score to any great extent in cross-examination and the few vulnerable spots in the State's armor he found would not seem to offset the preponderance of testimony that has been placed in the hands of the jury.

Before the case is placed in the hands of the defense today, Judge Ripley must rule on a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal offered by Leonard immediately at the close of the State's work yesterday.

Seeking a directed verdict favoring all four defendants and each separately as well, Leonard cited four counts upon which his motion was made. During a long hour of address, he set forth to the court his grounds for the motion. At one juncture of the proceedings when Leonard had completed his motion and Carton had had the small opportunity he desired to answer him, Judge Van Riper was heard to say, "I deny the motion," but his decision was lost as Leonard again opened the discussion.

It was then that the court announced that it would take the motion under consideration and rule on it at the opening of today's session.

Leonard, in citing his reasons for the motion of a directed verdict, first said there was nothing in the proof submitted by the State against the defendants in that George Fleming, Negro special officer who made the alleged "buy" had signed the complaint against Leonard and Johnson, Silverstein's colored chauffeur. The defense attorney then declared that a copy of an affidavit signed by Gavina Gatta, contained nothing that implicated Silverstein and thirdly declared there was no proof that the defendants caused the extra edition of the Asbury Park Press, containing the account of Johnson's arrest, to be published. Leonard then stated that no statements or innuendoes against Silverstein were contained in the extra edition.

His fourth contention, Leonard said, was that the indictment contained nothing to charge the defendants with violations of the crimes act.

Brief as his response was, Assistant Prosecutor Carton replied to each of the counts. He declared there is proof by Fleming's testimony that he actually signed the complaint against Johnson because, he said, he was forced to do so by Digney and Loog. As to the second count, Carton referred to a portion of Gatta's affidavit in which he quoted Johnson as allegedly saying, "I can make it hot for Silverstein if I want to." The affidavit signed by Gatta, was made by McMurray after Gatta and two others had transported Johnson to county jail following his arrest.

Carton said Leonard apparently lost sight of the fact that Loog before Digney, according to testimony, had told Fleming, "The Doc won't feel so good after he sees this." That was in reference to the extra edition published by the Press, and the prosecuting attorney went on to state that also at the time of the publication of the extra, McMurray was in conference at the Press office with Loog and Digney, two of the defendants in the case.

As to Leonard's fourth contention, it was pointed out that in the indictment the charge alleged is conspiracy and that regardless of the outcome of the plans laid, if the steps to conspire are taken there are significant acts of guilt.

Five witnesses were examined during the afternoon session and two of them were called in connection with the testimony heard publication of the extra edition of the Press on the day Johnson was arrested.

In the morning, William J. Sneider told the court he had seen a copy of the extra at about 4:30 o'clock and when Thomas Tighe, city editor of the newspaper was summoned he stated that the edition was published at about 4:15 or 4:30 o'clock. He was followed on the stand by Max Barr, one of the two attorneys who defended Johnson in his hearing before City Magistrate William E. Andrew, who declared that when he left police court after the hearing about 5:05 o'clock. He was followed on the paper giving the details of the arrest and arraignment before reaching his office only two blocks away.

It was after Barr's testimony that Carton first announced that the State would rest, but with permission of the court he reopened the case to call to the stand Gavina Siciliano, one of the three men who transported Johnson to jail at Freehold.

Siciliano was called to the stand to corroborate the statement of Gavina Gatta, another of the three guards, who had previously testified that he had signed a statement which had been prepared by McMurray and allegedly related the conversation of Johnson during the trip.

Gatta had said that upon his return from Freehold he went to the home of McMurray where he answered questions put to him by Andrew. He did not sign the statement until the following day, however, he said, and when confronted with the statement was unable to prove that it was the same as that prepared by McMurray. He had alleged that some of the statements contained in the affidavit were false but under cross examination was forced to admit that he had not read the affidavit after it was completed by McMurray and before he signed it at police headquarters.

Affidavits had also been prepared for Siciliano and John Burke, brother of Capt. Edward J. Burke, and Siciliano was also forced to admit that he could not say definitely if the affidavits prepared by McMurray were the same as that which he also signed.

Called to the stand first in the afternoon was Dr. Isabelle Pons. She said she was engaged in clinical laboratory work and had some time early in March been called upon by Loog and another man who didn't know and asked to make a test of material to determine the presence of narcotic. She said she had refused to make the analysis, the doctor declared. That questioning was followed by Carton to add to the testimony revealed earlier in the trial that Loog and Digney had left Henry's house on the night before the arrest of Johnson in a quest of an analysis of the alleged dope for which $250 had been paid.

During the morning session of the trial, Max Roder, federal narcotic agent was cross-examined at length by Leonard and at one point admitted that he had obtained a positive test when the "dope" was analysed at People's Drug Store and at the Broadway Pharmacy in Long Branch. He said he discovered a purplish coloration in tests with sulphuric acid and formaldehyde, which led him to testify before

Andrew that he believed the powder contained a heroin.

Mayor Sherman O. Dennis was other witness during the morning session. He testified that he had discussed the case with anyone. He admitted he attended one of the meetings which An. row had said on Wednesday he and McMurray had called to discuss the case. The mayor told the court that he was just a meeting to discuss general city affairs.

Canning and Sneider were the other witnesses during the morning session.
