National Government Sweeps to Victory; Laborites Oust MacDonald

LABOR PARTY DOUBLES STRENGTH IN HOUSE

Liberals Suffer Heavy Losses; Lady Astor and Capt. Eden Win

LONDON, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin today gained a 3-to-1 decision on his demand for a mandate on rearmament and reconstruction.

Late returns from yesterday's election showed the National Government commanding a clear majority of the 615 seats in the next House of Commons, with the likelihood its final lead would be at least 200.

The Labor Party more than dcubled its strength and ousted the former head of the National Government, Ramsay MacDonald, in Seaham, together with his son, Malcolm, the Colonial Secretary, who ran in Bassetlaw.

Rural constituencies, reporting late today, were swelling the number of government seats.

Opposition Liberals suffered heavy losses as the voters chose between the National Government and the Labor Party.

The vote count up to 3 P. M. showed 366 National Government members had been elected to the commons and that the popular vote for National Government candidates was a majority of 1,300,000.

Anthony Eden, Minister for League of Nations affairs, was re-elected by the huge majority of 24,816. Sir John Simon, Home Secretary, squeezed back into his seat by a margin of 642 votes.

The Astor clan, headed by Lady Astor, the Virginia born peeress, had at least three successes out of

Mystery Men Mingle with Bargain Buyers; Sales Show Big Jump

Sixteen bright and shining silver dollars found their way into as many pockets of thrifty buyers this morning who took advantage of the bargains offered in the "Silver Dollar Day" sale being carried out by 36 merchants in the city.

The mystery men, who mingled with the shoppers in the business section, inquiring of apparent shoppers as to whether they had "Silver Dollar Day" coupons, which are given out by merchants participating in the event, gave out 16 silver cart wheels from 7 until 11 o'clock this morning and were still on the job this afternoon looking diligently for other shoppers with the necessary coupons.

Is Oldest Teacher in Point of Service in City; Board Regrets Resignation

Miss May E. Prentiss, veteran of 40 years of service in the Long Branch public school system, announced her retirement effective at the end of the present school year, to the Long Branch Board of Education last night.

Oldest teacher in point of service in this city, the principal of the Broadway Primary school, in her notice to the board, said she felt "that 40 years is long enough for everyone concerned."

The letter received by the board said:

"With your approval I intend to retire from school work, June 30, 1936.

Green and White Assn. Opens Drive for Support of School Teams

The Green and White Association opened its drive yesterday for 2,000 active members by Thanksgiving, through the medium of teams representing all the many civic and fraternal organizations taking part in the campaign as co-members of the association. William D. Crawford, chairman of the general committee in charge of arrangements, announced that 2,000 of each of the application and membership forms and auto windshield "stickers" were distributed to the various teams, and that a shortage in forms had necessitated an additional order for the supplies.

The appointment of Harlo A. Clark as chairman of the membership committee, in charge of details of the campaign for members, was also announced. Additional supplies of cards and "stickers" can be obtained from Mr. Clark today, and many teams which were unable to secure their quota yesterday were supplied with the necessary forms by him.

Among the details being handled by the membership committee is a daily check-up with the respective team captains of the progress of the campaign. All team captains are requested to report daily to Mr. Clark the number of sales by their teams, and also to check in with R. Clifford Errickson, chairman of the finance committee, or one of the members of his committee. Others on this committee, to whom returns will be made, are George Howland, of the Long Branch Banking Co., Samuel Morris, of the Long Branch Trust Co., and James Barbour, secretary-treasurer of the New Jersey Trust Co.

Congratulations to the association upon the scope and purpose of the organization were received from all sections of the city, where residents have expressed their willingness to co-operate heartily in the movement to secure permanent public support for all the athletic activities of the local high school.

CAPTURE OF HARAR NEAR AS DEFENDERS FLEE BEFORE ENEMY

Ethiopians Retreat After Pitched Battle, Leaving Important City to Italians

GUERILLA WARFARE HINDERS INVADERS

Natives Depending on Ambush Fighting to Halt Stronger Forces

(By Associated Press)

Italian correspondents in Ethiopia reported today the capture of the strategic city of Harar was imminent.

Dispatches to Rome said the Italian Colonel Maletti, leading a force of native soldiers, had advanced in the valley of the Fafan River to a position only about 28 miles "from his immediate objective."

Defenders of the Harar Region were reported retreating in disorder, after a pitched battle yesterday.

Harar, the second largest city in Ethiopia—Addis Ababa being larger—is just south of the important railroad connecting Addis Ababa and Djibouti, French Somaliland. Italian forces in both North and South are reported heading for this railroad.

They said prisoners told Maletti the soldiers he was driving back were the "flower" of Emperor Haile Selassie's army. They were said to be concentrating at Jijiga.

A mobile body of native warriors, ensconced in the heights near Azbi, ambushed the left column of Italy's northern army—General Mariotti's "mystery" unit of wild Danakil warriors—and fought a day-long battle before scattering to the south.

Only then was the Italian column able to occupy its immediate objective of Azbi, to the east of the main Italian front lines at Makale, with another mountain still separating it from Gen. Ruggie[illegible] Santini's column of Blackshirts.

An official Italian communique, announcing the conflict yesterday, said 55 Ethiopians were killed and some 100 wounded; 20 Italian Askari killed and 50 wounded.

MAY SELECT DURAND MAJORITY LEADER

Expect Monmouth Senator to Be Named if Loizeaux Declines Post

TRENTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—Senator Charles E. Loizeaux of Union, who many Republican Senators said could be majority leader of the 1936 Senate if he so desired, probably will not seek the position, it was learned in a reliable quarter today.

Should Senator Loizeaux decline to be a candidate, the post would go undoubtedly to Senator Frank Durand of Monmouth, at the organization caucus Tuesday of Republican Senators. John C. Barbour of Passaic, majority leader this year, will be named Senate president.

Loizeaux refused to say today whether he would be a candidate. Sources close to him, however, said the Senator did not desire to be either floor leader or chairman of the appropriations committee. As chairman of the appropriations committee this year, he devoted considerable time to state business.

Refusal of Loizeaux to accept the chairmanship of the appropriations committee would again throw Senator-Elect Lester H. Clee, of Essex, into the spotlight for the position. Governor Hoffman said last week he would ask the incoming Senate president to name Clee chairman, but some Republican Senators said they did not feel the assignment should be given to a first-year man.

HOFFMAN WARNS AGAINST ADDING TO RELIEF COSTS

Would Force Many Municipalities into Bankruptcy, He Tells League

SAYS LEGISLATURE MUST PROVIDE FUNDS

Opposes Diversion of Road Funds in Address at Asbury Park

By JAMES P. NOLAN
(Staff Correspondent)

ASBURY PARK, Nov. 15—Declaring that to throw the entire cost of relief upon the municipalities of the state would drive many of them into bankruptcy, Gov. Harold G. Hoffman in an address here last night, said it was the responsibility of the legislature to provide the funds to enable the State Emergency Relief Council to continue its operations.

The chief executive spoke at the annual dinner of the New Jersey State League of Municipalities which will conclude its 21st convention today at the Berkeley-Carteret Hotel.

The governor told the delegates that the New Jersey relief bill next year would approximate $28,000,000 and he scoffed at arguments that economies in state government alone would produce sufficient funds to care for the state's unemployed.

"Even if we fired everyone on the state payrolls and didn't spend another dollar for materials and supplies for the highways we would still be short in the amount needed for emergency relief," the governor said.

He added that even though the Works Progress Administration gives a job to every unemployed man in the state, the relief costs would still reach a staggering figure.

The governor reiterated his aversion to diverting highway monies, declaring "when we are building highways, we are not only giving men jobs but we are making a capital investment and we are going to have something to show for it in the future."

"While I recognize that state revenues as presently constituted cannot continue indefinitely to carry this extraordinary heavy relief load, I am not wiling to say that this burden must be handed back to local governments in the immediate future,' the governor said.

"Such action would invite con-

SCREEN LOVER AND WIFE SEPARATE

Clark Gable Is Too Temperamental, Mate Says; Divorce Denied

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Clark Gable, ranking lover of the screen, and his second wife acknowledged an "amicable separation" today, but Mrs. Gable said there would be no immediate divorce.

"Just a case of temperament," explained Mrs. Gable, 11 years the romantic film hero's senior.

"We are still good friends," said Gable in New York. "Mrs. Gable and I have separated and a property settlement was reached between us before I left for South America."

Mrs. Gable, at their exclusive Brentwood home here, said there would be no immediate divorce; that no "other woman" was involved, and that Gable's recent South American jaunt was not a factor.

"Clark has been working very hard within recent months, and has been very temperamental," explained Mrs. Gable. "Little differences, ordinarily of minor consequence, arose between us which, under stress, assumed grave proportions.

"I feel very badly about it. We both feel however, that it will be better to be separated for awhile."

Under their property settlement, she said, she will remain in the home, while Gable will live at a Beverly Hills hotel.

Regarded by film friends as "a man's man," Gable was mobbed by feminine fans in several cities on his recent journey. In Santiago, 100 women stormed his room, showered him with kisses, and stripped his

Future Punishment for Students Will Be Decided by Stone and Evans Jointly

City Magistrate Alton V. Evans and Superintendent of Schools Charles T. Stone will co-operate in the future to mete out punishment to delinquent schoolboys. Appearing before the Long Branch Board of Education last night to iron out a misunderstanding arising from his "sentencing" of four North Long Branch boys to do "extra time" in their classrooms, City Magistrate Evans told the members and Supt. Stone that he had no desire to make the schools a penal institution.

The magistrate appeared before the board after Superintendent Stone had indicated he would reject the "sentences" which Evans imposed rather than send the pranksters before the juvenile court. The boys were hailed into court for painting the sidewalks of the North Long Branch School Hallowe'en night.

Magistrate Evans expressed the opion to the board that he considered it a "good thing to continue," in minor cases where the boys are failing in their subjects.

"It was my thought," he said, "that forcing the boys to pay the damage is no punishment for them because the money comes from the parents."

Evans said he ordered the boys to remain in their classrooms after being advised that the teachers would be present.

"I don't want to and I can't impose upon the teachers and I don't want to interfere with the routine of the school," Evans told the board. "I am not trying to make the schools a penal institution but

Disposition of Securities of Late Millionaire Philanthropist Is Issue

A hearing before Vice Chancellor Maja L. Berry in Chancery Court yesterday to determine the disposition of an undisclosed amount of securities in the will of the late Park M. Woolley, millionaire Long Branch philanthropist was continued for one week.

According to papers filed in the case by the City Bank and Farmers Trust Company, trustee of the estate, securities included in the will were replaced by others after the document was made. The purpose of the petition was to determine whether the new shares should remain in trust or be placed in the residuary estate.

Involved in the suit were Mrs. Sarah Woolley, widow of the philanthropist, represented by Walter E. Cooper of Cranford; Mrs. Cornelia Woolley Hopkins Nathan, her daughter and once honorary police commissioner of Long Branch, represented by Jacob Steinbah, city solicitor and Miss Cornelia Woolley, daughter of Mrs. Nathan, represented by Maurice A. Potter, appearing for John W. Slocum.

The two petitions of the State Department of Health against the borough of Keyport and the city of Long Branch were continued to Dec. 19.

Sees Danger Ahead

GOVERNOR HOFFMAN

Who warned against shifting the whole relief load to municipalities, contending that such a move would mean bankruptcy for many boroughs.

SEES RELIEF BURDEN PLACED ON TOWNS

Barnard Warns Municipalities Need Will Continue for Years

ASBURY PARK, Nov. 15.—A warning to New Jersey municipalities that they must be prepared to take upon their shoulders the greater portion of the relief burden "now and five years from now and no matter what the state of business may be," was voiced by Chester A. Barnard, former chairman of the state emergency relief administration, in an address to the delegates of the 21st annual convention of the New Jersey State League of Municipalities here yesterday.

Barnard made his remarks at the joint meeting of the Overseers of the Poor and other municipal groups.

"I believe that, do what we may, we can't get by in New Jersey on less than $25,000,000 next year," Barnard said. He added that the figure would probably be at least $10,000,000 more than last year, and that the source of the monies as yet was undetermined.

"Five years from now the cost of caring for those needing support will be at least $10,000,000," the relief director said, "and that figure will stand no matter what the state of business may be.

"Municipalities should be prepared to take over a larger portion of the relief burden," he continued.

"I don't want to be a calamity howler or a scatterer of despair, but not telling you would be the opening of the door to very serious trouble," he told the overseers

Addressing them directly, he said, "I think everyone else is going to run out and leave you to handle the problem."

Barnard said the legislature should decide at its next session whether the cities, counties or groups fo cities are to handle relief problems in their immediate neighborhoods after the federal and state governments begin withdrawing aid.

He warned the officials that they must begin to formulate plans immediately to handle the problem, declaring, "if you don't begin to find a way to handle it, you are going to be in a jam and a very bad one."

The public, Barnard asserted, has an erroneous idea of what the relief problem is about and declared

1:30 Wall Street

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 — (AP) — More profit taking appeared in today's stock market, but it was not urgent and the list held to a fairly steady range.

Selective buying pushed up scattered issues substantially and the rails were again in demand at moderately firmer prices. The activity was considerably under that of the preceding session.

American Can and Case got up about two points each. Gainers of fractions to a point or so included Union Pacific, Santa Fe, New York Central, Chesapeake and Ohio, International Harvester, Pittsburgh Screw, Anaconda, Loew's, Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck. The steels, motors and utilities were narrow. Call money renewed at 3-4 of one per cent.

Soldier Makes Off with Wife and Car, So Angry Husband Maneuvers Former into Jail Term as Unlicensed Driver

SHREWSBURY, Nov. 15.—Private Glenn F. Smith, stationed at Fort Monmouth, is a reasonable man. But even reasonable men can be aroused when driven too far. And Private Smith was driven past the boiling point at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. As a direct result, a fellow-soldier, G. W. Goff, also stationed at Fort Monmouth, is now serving a 60-day term in the county bastile.

Not only did Private Goff take Private Smith's wife, Mrs. Edna Smith, to a local tavern, but he used Smith's car to do so, despite the fact that he had no license. Smith discovered his wife and car gone early in the afternoon, and after a little private sleuthing discovered both here.

The angry husband quietly got into his parked car, and lay down on the floor to await the return of his wife and rival, for whom he had planned a pleasant surprise—depending on one's viewpoint.

Shortly after, Chief of Police Harry Kirkgarde notified Recorder Elmer C. Wainright at Shrewsbury police headquarters that a soldier in uniform was hiding in a car parked outside a local tavern, with a revolver, and was waiting for someone to come out and become a target.

With siren roaring, Chief of Police Otto Herden hastened to the scene, under orders from Recorder Wainright. He discovered Smith, in uniform, lying on the floor of his car, waiting for the return of his wife and "buddy." No gun was found.

Smith told Chief Herden he wanted Goff and his own wife arrested, and all three were brought to police court here, where Recorder Wainright unraveled the claims and counter-claims.

For borrowing Smith's car and wife, there was no legal penalty, the court ruled, since neither had been stolen. However, for driving the car without a license, a fine of $100 was meted out.

Unable to pay this, Goff was sentenced to a 60 day hitch in the county guardhouse.

Smith also lodged a complaint against his wife, accusing her of permitting an unlicensed driver to operate their jointly owned vehicle. The minimum fine is $150, which Smith would have had to pay if he had been successful—a point he apparently overlooked. However, Recorder Wainright dismissed the complaint.

py in my work, but I just feel that 40 years is long enough for everyone concerned."

In accepting the announcement of her retirement, the board expressed keen regret over Miss Prentiss' determination to end her career in public school work. On the recommendation of Rev. Morton A. Barnes, chairman of the education committee, Secretary Harold N. West was authorized to acknowledge the retirement and "express in most appreciating terms," the gratitude of the board for her many years of service.

In commenting on Miss Prentiss' retirement, Rev. Barnes declared: "Miss Prentiss has an unusual and fine record of service. We will have to go a long ways to find the same devotion and interest in the work. Service like that deserves public acknowledgement."

His sentiments were echoed by other members of the board. Edward T. M. Carr declared the retiring pricipal "was very faithful and the parents of the children know just what she has done. She was an exceptionally good teacher."

Describing Miss Prentiss as "faithful and hardworking," Superintendent of Schools Charles T. Stone revealed that the retiring principal has been absent from her work because of illness only two or three times durig her 40 years of service and not at all in the last 15 years.

Miss Prentiss began her teaching career at Sea Bright when that community was a part of Long Branch. After four years at Sea Bright she was transferred to the Broadway school and has acted in the capacity of principal ever since.

LECTURES ON ART PLANNED AT SCHOOL

Board of Education Will Finance Series; School Reports Heard

The Long Branch Board of Education allotted $200 to defray the cost of an art lecture series to be held in the public schools this winter, at its regular meeting last night. Superintendent of Schools Charles T. Stone said that under a plan recommended by Miss Dorothy Bergen, primary supervisor, Miss Dorothy Wilkinson, of the Horace Mann School of New York, would make four appearances here to lecture on fine arts to pupils and teachers.

The board granted the use of the Long Branch High School auditorium to the Monmouth County Round Table to hold two of its public forums. Dr. Harry Overstreet will speak on Dec. 5 and Will Durant will be heard in a lecture Dec. 18. The former forum was scheduled to be held at Red Bank and Durant was originally scheduled to speak at Freehold.

Superintendent Stone submitted no formal report but outlined to the board members the work within the schools by which, he said, "We are working for a better type of democracy."

He discussed new types of report cards to be used in the schools and submitted a voluminous report compiled by Miss Bergen on "Social Studies with Integrated Learning," recommended for elementary school curricula. Activities during education week and book week were also described by the superintendent.

The board was advised by Fire Chief George Sperling last night that "imaginary" fire alarms had been provided for the public schools. Under the system, principals in case of fire, would notify police headquarters from where the alarm would be turned in from the nearest box. The original box numbers will be changed under the plan, Sperling explained so that the number "one" would be added, designating a school fire.

The schedule as outlined by the fire chief is as follows:

North Long Branch School, 561; Liberty Street, 511; Gregory School, 631; Broadway School, 371; Grammar School, 231; Garfield School, 331; West End School, 611.

Three bids were received for making repairs to the asphalt roof of the Gregory School and referred to Secretary Harold N. West. The bids and alternates, based on the application of asphalt: William Herbert & Sons, Long Branch, $318; J. N. Bearmore, Asbury Park, $242, $364; Richard Warwick, Long Branch, $395, $450.

Preliminary plans were made for entertaining members of boards of education of communities sending pupils to Long Branch and their wives at the Senior High School. The tentative date was fixed at Dec. 11, under the recommendation of Principal William E. Cate.

The board authorized the transfer of $500 to the text book account and a similar amount to the supplies account for the teacher's salary account.

JUSKA DISCUSSES FIRST AID REPORTS

State Council of First Aid Squads Meets at Hall in West Long Branch

(By Staff Correspondent)

WEST LONG BRANCH, Nov. 15.—"Legal Technicalities" was the subject of Assistant Prosecutor Edward Juska's talk before the New Jersey State Council of First Aid Squads, meeting in the Old First Church Hall here last night. Mr. Juska, who was introduced by Harry Cooper, president of the local squad, spoke on the various reports which are made out by an officer in charge of a first aid squad at the scene of an accident, or a removal. It is imperative that such listing be recorded, as he explained the worth of such reports to the police department, the court and the prosecutor's office. However, Mr. Juska stated, he had not come to criticize the lack of any such testimony offered in court by these "angels of mercy," as he termed the workers, but to assist them in obtaining the proper remuneration for such testimony. It was also brought out that with the installation of radio receiving sets in many borough departments, reports of accidents or emergency calls should and could be relayed to the local first aid headquarters.

Following his talk, Mr. Juska answered various questions put to him by the visiting delegates of the 15 squads present. At the close of the speaking, a general business session was conducted and the nomination of officers was held for the ensuing year. These nominations will remain open until the December meeting.

The nominations included the following: William Borden of Point Pleasant, president; Frederick Hurley, also of Point Pleasant, vice president; Herbert LaComp of Lakewood, second vice president; secretary, Harold Denniger of Wanamassa, and delegate-at-large, Charles Brand of Spring Lake.

During the general business session it was brought out that the various squads throughout the state are working in co-operation with the national safety program sponsored by the American Red Cross. The comparison of deaths from automobile accidents compared to those killed in war service was discussed and the deaths due to highway accidents assumed gigantic proportions. A remedy for this is the object of the Safety Council. Posters and booklets on such prevention will be displayed and distributed throughout the immediate community of each squad. Moving pictures will be distributed and exhibited in the local squad headquarters for the benefit of the general public. Flares to be used by the squad while working at the scene of a night accident were also discussed and considered.

The various reports of the committees were read and ordered filed, and a short discussion on blood transfusions was held by those present. Carteret and Highlands each reported the purchase of a new ambulance. The boroughs and municipalities represented were: Asbury Park, Avon, Bradley Beach, Long Branch, West Long Branch, Red Bank, Keyport, Keansburg, Carteret, Ocean Grove, Spring Lake, Fair Haven, Point Pleasant, Point Pleasant Beach, Dunellen and the Highlands.

At the end of the business session, a short period of open discussion and refreshments were enjoyed, the "feed" being served by representatives of the local squad. In the absence of the president, William Borden, Vice President Frederick Hurley of Point Pleasant presided.

Capture of Harar Said to Be Near

The Fascist forces replied to the campaign of swift Ethiopian raids with renewed bombing attacks.

One squadron, roaring south from Makale, detected an Ethiopian troop encampment outside Antalo, important market center half-way down the line of march to Amba Alaji, 30 miles to the south, and literally blatsed it out of existence.

The Ethiopian campers—some of them khaki-clad regular troops—apparently escaped safely from the raid, fleeing into Antalo and relying on the Italians not to bomb civilians.

The Addis Ababa government reported in an official communique that another air raid on the southern front brought half a hundred bombs down on Daggah Bur, contested town mid-way beween Gorrahei and the vital points of Jijiga and Harar.

One priest died under the assault, the Ethiopian government communique said, and a church was levelled by fire.

Neutral observers at Harar, nevertheless, said that if Daggah Bur had not aready capitulated, its fall appeared imminent.

On the European side of the crisis, the diplomatic truce, called during the British general elections, ended and informed French sources said Premier Pierre Laval was ready to resume his negotiations toward settlement of the conflict.

Before undertaking a search for peace in East Africa, however, the premier had still to settle the European tension arising from the Italo-Ethiopian warfare.

Police Halt Babe Ruth's Home Dash After Innocent Hit-Run Play with Motorist

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Babe Ruth engaged in a hit-and-run play—quite innocently, he explained later—and reached home only after police had thrust a high-powered rifle into his face.

His automobile struck another in Rego Park, Queens, last night as the king of swat was returning from a game of golf. He decided the blow was a bunt instead of foul and chose to run it out.

Much to his surprise, the police were waiting for him when he crossed the Queensboro bridge into Manhattan.

"Signal 32, signal 32," the police radio announcer had broadcast. "Stop car 1N-72-35 heading for New York. Likely to cross Queensboro bridge any moment. Signal 32."

"Signal 32" means: "Proceed with caution. Quarry may be dangerous."

Hence the rifle reception.

The Babe stepped from his car, hands in the air. The covering patrolman recognized him and gasped.

Max Katz, of Laurelton, owner of the car which Ruth struck, had not recognized him and had notified police a hit-run motorist had struck his car.

Ruth, taken to a precinct station, waited until Katz arrived. A private conversation, an agreement to settle any damages and a handshake followed. Then Ruth went home.

Hoffman Warns Against Adding to Relief Costs

fusion and widespread municipal bankruptcy. The local governments have been called upon to pay three millions of dollars a year. It has been proposed that this amount be increased to ten millions. I do not believe that it is wise to add to this additional burden at this time."

The governor again attacked unequal taxation, asserting, "our fiscal salvation lies in a broadening of the tax base and in making all those who share in the benefits of government share in its costs."

"There are many hundreds in this state who own no property," the governor said, "yet they run to the poll and vote, vote for bond issues. They are very willing to spend millions of other people's money."

Any possible savings in the state government will be "negligible" the Governor said, unless there is first a broadening of the tax base.

The Governor said that one of the benefits resulting from the sales tax, which was recently repealed, was that it made the residents of the state "tax conscious."

Taxpayers, he said, do not want to be told of the taxes they are paying, but choose rather to pay indirect taxes. The tax consciousness born of the sales tax, he said, would lead to "better government, more economical government and wide citizen interest."

Governor Hoffman said he realized that the sales tax may have injured him politically, but he asserted that without the $8,000,000 it bright into the state treasury while it was operative, the costs of relief during the present calendar year would not have been paid.

He said he favored more governmental services for the taxdollar. New Jersey taxpayers, he said, at the present time receive some 21 services from the state and municipality at a cost of approximately $1.50 a day.

The Governor declared he wished to see the municipalities of the state operating on a cash basis plan and expressed hope that budgetary legislation would result from the next session of the legislature.

"I am anxious to see municipalities go on a cash basis but I recognize, as every thinking citizen must recognize, that to decree a cash basis will not make it an accomplished fact," he said.

"Our municipal governments must work their way out of this whole financial quagmire by careful and patient effort and procedure. Municipal officials must approach their tasks in this spirit and with a fixed determination to accomplish the necessary and desirable ends."

The governor was warmly received by the delegates to the convention, all of whom hold municipal positions in the municipalities of New Jersey.

The closing session of the convention today saw a sharp division of opinion over proposed legislation which would change the present method of the payment of taxes to the counties by the municipalities. Many members or the organization are supporting an amendment to the present assessment act which would provide for the payment of county taxes monthly by municipalities and would take away the so-called preference which the counties now have over tax collections.

The bill is being opposed by some other organization including the state association of boards of freeholders. The latter group was represented before the convention by former State Senator Arthur N. Pierson, present Union County Treasurer and a recognized financial expert.

Pierson expressed opposition to the bill asserting that it would destroy the credit of municipalities and counties. He said that passage of the bill would take all control of collections out of the hands of the counties, and would leave the door open for increased delinquency among municipalities.

Among the supporters of the measure was Frank A. Boettner, corporation counsel of Newark. He said "the preference in the present law given to the counties is palpably unfair and under a given case might even go so far so as to curtail present functions of city government in favor of much less important service of county government.

"How any man with Senator Pierson's experience can view such an equitable act with alarm is more than I can understand." Several delegates spoke for and against the measure from the floor.

S. S. Kenworthy of Trenton, executive secretary in his annual report said that it was his belief that it will be "impossible" to reduce state expenditures to the point where $20,000,000 can be made available for relief purposes.

A plea for support of the National Housing Act was voiced by A. O. Eberhart, former governor of Minnesota. He declared the United States was in need of at least three million new homes within the next year to house Americans properly.

Since the inception of the National Housing Act, he said, over two and a half million homes in the United States have been repaired and modernized at a cost of about $6,000,000 a day. More than 200 new homes have been built each day and 300 more a day have been refinanced, he said.

As an example of the need for more homes he cited the fact that although 1,400 marriages were performed last year in the city of Wichita, Kas., only nine new homes had been built.

The nation would benefit greatly from the social standpoint, if more American homes were built, the former governor declared.

"We will never restore prosperity sufficiently to last until the four million workers in the building industry are back at their jobs," he said.

"Our great problem is the weakening of the influence of the home. I would not worry about communism or any other kind of radicalism in this country so long as people own their own homes. No man is going to sign on the dotted line to give his home to some type of radical group."

Other speakers were Judge Harold B. Wells, of the Court of Errors and Appeals; William H. Ely, former senator and now director of the WPA, and S. S. Kenworthy, secretary of the league.

Mayor John Hinchliffe, of Paterson, president of the league, received an airplane bag as a gift from the members. The presentation was made by Mayor Meyer C. Ellenstein, of Newark.

Election of officers, the important business session and adoption of resolutions and a legislative program will bring the convention to a close today.

Mayor John V. Hinchliffe, of Paterson was re-elected president of the League.

Mayor Meyer C. Ellenstein, Newark, was chosen first vice president; City Manager William A. Miller, Clifton, second vice president, and Walter B. Wooley, Woodbury tax receiver, third vice president.

The league also named Mayor Dorman McFaddin of Long Branch to its executive board.

its candidates. Lady Astor was re-elected, her son, W. W. Astor took the East Fulham seat away from the Labor Party member, and Lord Willoughby De Eresby, Lady Astor's son-in-law, won in Rutgland and Stamford.

Observers interpreted the government's victory as overwhelming, because the majority of the uncounted votes were in rural districts where Conservative forces were strong.

Labor increased its holdings not only in the number of House of Commons seats, but also by the election of its party leaders swept out of office in the Conservative landslide four years ago.

Prime Minister Baldwin was re-elected without opposition. Among the early winners was Foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare, who has led the empire in its efforts to choke off the Italo-Ethiopian war.

C. R. Atlee, Labor chieftain since George Lansbury stepped down, was returned, as was Sir Stafford Cripps, strong Laborite.

The Liberal opposition leader, Sir Herbert Samuel, was defeated by a flood of Conservation votes.

Recorder and School Supt. to Co-Operate

I need co-operation in dealing with these boys."

The magistrate said his only alternative was to send the youths to the Juvenile Court, entailing expense to the school authorities and placing a permanent record against the boys.

Mr. Stone told Evans he appreciated the effort to bring up the standards of scholarship but declared "we want the school looked upon as a place where they come to get an education and not a place of punishment. We need co-operation in the homes to prevent this sort of thing.

The superintendent said he had investigated the case and found the boys had done material damage. He suggested that the boys be ordered to remove the paint. Evans said that had been his first thought but had been informed that it couldn't be done.

E. T. M. Carr and other members of the board expressed dislike for sending the boys to the juvenile court and concurred in the plan of Evans and Stone to co-operate in cases that arise in the future.

POLICE HOLD COUPLE ON MURDER CHARGE

Dorothy Anderson and William Johnson Await Action of Grand Jury

MATAWAN, Nov. 15—Dorothy Anderson, colored, was arretsed by the Matawan township police and sent to the county jail at Freehold to await action of the grand jury on a charge of murder. Arrested with her as an accomplice and also sent to the county jail is William Johnson, colored, husband of the Anderson girl's sister. The arrests took place after dogs had dug up the body of a new-born infant in the rear of the Anderson home on Raritan road, Cliffwood.

Police were first advised of the crime when a small boy, whose name has been withheld, ran up to Officer Adolph Menzel and told him he had seen dogs digging in the rear of the Anderson home and that when he looked into the hole to see what hey were digging, he saw the baby. Officer Menzel and Officer William Fury of the Matawan township police began an immediate investigation.

After they had questioned the Anderson woman for a short time, she confessed the child was hers and implicated Johnson as the father. Miss Anderson has two other children, both girls, one three and the other six years old.

She told police the baby was born dead in her own home Oct. 26, that she hid the body in a closet of her home until Nov. 4, when she buried it in the backyard. Both the girl and Johnson were taken before Recorder Thomas Smith, where they were arraigned and held without bail.

Pollution the Destroyer

For many years an effort has been made by organizations and individuals interested in conservation and public-health work, to formulate a program of purifying the nation's streams and preventing their pollution.

Much progress had been made by various Federal agencies, such as the United States Public Health Service, United States Bureau of Fisheries, United States Bureau of Mines, the War Department and the Department of Agriculture, to combat certain forms of pollution involving health, fish life, disposal of mine wastes and obstructions to navigation.

They were aided by various states which had adopted anti-pollution laws affecting industrial and trade wastes.

In recent years it became apparent that the combined efforts of the Federal agencies, acting independently, with the co-operation of private conservation organizations, were insufficient to prevent the rapid spread of pollution. Lack of uniformity in anti-pollution laws and activities, and ineffective methods of enforcement, were recognized weaknesses of the plant.

To meet the situation the United States Public Health Service encouraged the formation of compacts among various states along certain watersheds, and thus by encouraging uniformity of enforcement activities in such areas, made further rapid strides to prevent pollution.

It soon became apparent, however, that pollution was making headway against all of these efforts, and a call to arms was issued by the conservation organizations to "destroy pollution before it destroys us."

They urged the necessity for a nation-wide effort led by the Federal government, based on uniform laws, regulations or agreements with the states, and supported by adequate enforcement measures.

Senator Augustine Lonergan of Connecticut took a leading part in the national movement to end pollution. His interest in stream purification grew from his knowledge of conditions along the Connecticut river, where he had served on a commission to abate pollution and to provide for sewage disposal.

Since then the situation in other parts of the country was brought to his attention and he was invited about a year and a half ago to lead a movement for more vigorous action by the Federal government, which he accepted. Senator Lonergan's first move was to call together at Washington, on Dec. 6, 1934, experts and leaders from various parts of the country and to record their views on this subject as a basis for further action.

The necessity for adequate legislation to prohibit pollution was clearly brought out at the hearing. Of interest were the many views expressed by civic leaders from all sections of the land. So interesting were they and so complete was the picture that they presented, that in my next column, I will go into them at length.

However, one thing stood out clearly when the conference had concluded: Elimination of pollution is a simple and comparatively inexpensive problem. It can be solved by co-operation of all communities involved. Due to the fact that a "remedy" and not an "operation" is indicated, expense will not be great. There are no great dams, or mechanical feats to be accomplished to eliminate pollution.

Needed are simply a few teeth in uniform laws that will say to industry and municipalities: "Thou shalt not pollute, or else—" At present our laws say, "Thou shalt not pollute," and let it go at that.

GIRL FLIER SAFE AFTER OCEAN HOP

Jean Batten Arrives at Rio de Janeiro After Being Forced Down

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 15—(AP)—Jean Batten, forced down at Praia Secca, Brazil, while on a flight to Rio De Janeiro, reached this city this morning in a Brazilian army plane, leaving her own damaged ship in a salt swamp.

The New Zealand flier, first woman to fly alone over the South Atlantic, had landed at Praia Secca, about 53 miles north of Rio De Janeiro, because of lack of fuel.

Three army planes had searched for her after she was hours overdue here following her departure from Natal yesterday on the last leg of an England-to-Brazil flight.

The National Telegraph received a laconic message signed "Batten" at 7 A. M., saying she had been forced down—the first word that she was safe.

It was learned the propellor of her plane was twisted as she landed in the swamps about four miles south of the town of Araruama.

Three army planes directed by Col. Newton Braga took off immediately and picked up the flier.

Jean Batten, 25, known as the "third time lucky girl" from mishaps in previous flights, landed at Natal, Brazil, Wednesday after crossing the South Atlantic ocean from Dakar, Senegal, in 13 hours and 15 minutes.

By her flight from Africa to South America, the bright-eyed brunette pilot added another "first" to her aerial honors—that of being the first woman to fly the South Atlantic alone.

Sees Relief Burden as Mayor Problem

that eventually the public will begin demanding action toward a solution from elected officials.

Barnard said he foresaw actual scenes of violence from underprivilgedee groups unless some means was found to bring about a workable plan for handling the victims of the times.

"Don't let this thing get away from you," he said, "and don't underestimate the difficulties of your job."

He expressed the belief that thousands of persons will be in need of public assistance for many future years. The depression and the events it brought with it, he said, have led in hundreds of cases of actual destruction of family life.

All of the afternoon sessions of the convention were devoted to meetings of individual groups at which individual problems were discussed and officers elected.

William A. Miller, of Clifton, was re-elected president of the New Jersey Municipal Clerks Association. Other officers chosen by the group were, Bert E. Whitman, Atlatnic City, vice-president; Charles A. Reppetto, Ventnor City, secretary, and A. D. Bolton, of Passaic, treasurer. All but Reppetto were re-elected, he being chosen to succeed Walter Albright, of Camden, who died of a heart attack while attending the April meeting of the association.

Resolutions of condolence were adopted in connection with the death of Albright and Harry W. Saunders of Swedesboro.

George V. Ramsey, a representative of the Remington-Rand Company, addressed the group on municipal records. He stressed the importance of complete, well-cared-for and properly protected files.

Frank M. Rudolph, of Millburn, was chosen president of the New Jersey Tax Collectors Association. Other officers were, A. L. Conklin, Maplewood, first vice-president; George Elvins, Hammonton, second vice-president; W. B. Woolley, Woodbury, third vice-president; T. J. Trainor, Woodbridge, secretary, and J. C. Van Duyne, Glen Ridge, treasurer.

The group discussed a bill which will be submitted to the 1936 legislature extending the terms of municipal collectors from three to five years. The bill is similar in nature to that passed giving such an extension to assessors.

Lester H. Washburn, New York bond attorney, addressed the members of the New Jersey Municipal Attorneys Association on "Statutory Regulation of Municipal Budgets." He discussed in the main the budgetary bill introduced but not acted upon in the 1935 legislature, which he said is to be reintroduced in the 1936 legislature. He said the bill was involved, complicated and difficult to the lay mind to understand and left little to the discretion of municipal authorities. Its fundamental principle, he said, was to enforce expenditures within the income of municipalities.

Municipalities and counties of New York State, he said, have few statutory regulations on budgets and have been able to operate in a satisfactory manner. Richmond, Va., and Wilmington, Del., were cited as examples of cities which balanced their budgets without benefit of state legislation.

Too much emphasis was being placed on "model laws" in New Jersey, the attorney said. The state, he asserted, should see that municipalities manage their affairs reasonably and in such a manner that the credit of the state will be protected.

L. L. Lewis, of Plainfield, chief engineer of the Carrier Engineering Company of Newark, addressed members of the New Jersey Water Works Association, on the relations of air conditioning to water supply. The growth of air conditioning, he said, would result only in a 10 per cent increase in the demands upon municipalities for water. Engineers see only a small increased demand for many years, he said.

Charles Capen, engineer for the North Jersey district of the New Jersey Water Supply Commission, also addressed the group.

Recreation facilities and their effect on the residents of New Jersey were discussed before the New Jersey Recreation Excutives Association by E. Dana Caulkins, superintendent of recreation, Westchester County, N. Y.; Edgar S. Stover, superintendent of schools, Bloomfield, and Lebert N. Weir, of the National Recreation Association.

P. S. Lyon, of the General Electric Company, was the principal speaker before the New Jersey Building Inspectors Association.

The State Police had on exhibition its fingerprinting equipment and many delegates submitted to fingerprinting for the personal identification files of the department.

The convention will continue through today with group meetings and informal discussions.

Yesterday morning's session was devoted to a discussion of the New Jersey 1935 bond act by Arnold Frye, New York bond attorney, who drew up the act. He asserted it was a vast improvement over New Jersey's older legislation and said it was now being used as a model by other states.

Former Keyport Trooper Honored for Saving Life

KEYPORT, Nov. 15—Trooper Charles J. Kiseljack, of the State Police at Pompton Lakes, who was formerly stationed at Keyport, was awarded the president's medal of the National Safety Council by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the State Police, at headquarters in Trenton.

The award was made as the result of Trooper Kiseljack's saving the life of Mrs. Anna Sacco, of 109 Olbion Avenue, Paterson. Mrs. Sacco had been swimming in Pompton Lake in July, 1934, and suffered a cramp. She was brought to the station after friends had worked over her more more than an hour and thought her dead. Kiseljack applied artificial respiration for more than two hours before Mrs. Sacco was revivied.

The polls will open at school No. 1 on the Long Branch-Eatontown Boulevard at 2 o'clock and voting will continue until 9 p. m.

MAY DIVERT HIGHWAY FUNDS FOR RELIEF

Hoffman Puts Issue Up to Legislators as Crisis Approaches

TRENTON, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Members of the 1935 Legislature in the closing weeks of their terms, may be required to decide the difficult political and economic question of diverting highway construction money to emergency relief.

Governor Harold G. Hoffman, at an organization meeting of his new budget advisory committee last night, tossed the problem to the legislators, saying it was "unfair to throw on me" responsibility for a decision.

Financing of relief, with the Federal government announcing an end of its aid this month, has become a major problem of state officials and legislators. The governor promised to find funds until the 1936 Legislature met in mid-January and with announcement of Federal withdrawal said he would carry on as best he could.

Opposed to diversion, the governor said he felt the 1935 legislators, who approved the highway appropriations bill, with its contruction items, should make the decision. He suggested a public hearing, attended by legislators, at which the merits of the issue might be fully considered.

"It is unfair," he said, "to throw on me the responsibility for saying we have carried out part of this highway program and now we are going to stop. It is not up to me to say to a county 'You can't have your road'."

Dr. Lester H. Clee, Assembly Speaker, economy advocate and budget committee member, proposed diversion, estimating $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 could be applied to 1936 relief. He indicated the budget committee, which will begin department hearings in the Assembly chamber next Wednesday, was in accord.

The governor predicted diversion would put highway workers on relief, curtail Federal road grants and interrupt improvements beneficial to the state. He said he would attend as many as possible of the budget hearings, to be conducted by John Reddan, state budget commissioner.

Some relief officials have hinted that municipalities might have to shoulder a much larger share of the relief cost next year. The governor assured the convention of the State League of Municipalities last night that he opposed any immediate increase in municipal donations.

"Such action would invite confusion and widespread municipal bankruptcy," he said. "The local governments have been called upon to pay $3,000,000 a year. It has been proposed that this amount be increased to ten millions. I do not believe that it is wise to add this additional burden at this time."

He estimated New Jersey's relief cost next year at $28,000,000, but would not say how much he believed stoppage of highway construction would increase that figure.

HAIL TO THE SYMBOL OF A FOOLISH ERA!

The return of a prodigal son is always a touching sight. Even when the prodigal has been reduced, not to the husks that the swine did eat, but to the daintier fare of swank European hotels, it moves the heart to see him drawing up his chair once more at the parental table. And so everybody must have been deeply moved to see Jimmy Walker return to New York.

New York gave him a welcome, of course. Whistles blew, people leaned out of windows, crowds cheered — there was nothing missing except a get-together on the steps of the city hall, and a last lingering remnant of good taste forbade that.

It would be foolish to say that New York has gained anything by dapper Jimmy's return; but it would be equally foolish for the good people of the country to grow indignant over the fact that he did get a welcome.

After all, this man Walker is a useful sort of person. That is, he is a symbol of the things that were wrong with us back in the gay days of the boom, and if he can only keep moving about in our midst he may save us from the folly of going back to those days.

For Walker, after all, was nothing more or less than the incarnation of the good-time Charley. He was triple-distilled Broadway, with its virtues as well as its faults. He was decorative and likable, and there was only one thing wrong with him: he was the last man on earth who ought to have been put in charge of the destinies of the nation's largest city.

Being mayor of New York is one of the most tremendous jobs that any politician on earth can have. From the point of view of money spent and people affected, it is a bigger job than the premiership of many an independent nation.

In any half-way intelligent social order, the electorate would take a moderate amount of pains to fill it with a man who at least had a sense of social responsibility.

But New York, back in the boom days, picked a Jimmy Walker — and liked him. It turned its government over to a wise-cracker and a playboy, and gloried in it.

Nobody saw anything especially wrong with it — until, of course, the depression came and the stupidity of such a move was revealed too obviously for anyone to miss.

That tells the story. That is, it shows how far the boom era carried us from a sensible approach to the problems of self-government. We speak of the damage which the depression has caused, and it is very real and terrible; but it was the pre-depression era which let us in for it, and our collective folly of that era is epitomized by the fact that Walker was mayor of New York.

So it's a good thing that he's back. If we work our way up to another boom, Jimmy Walker will be an excellent object lesson to have around.

"Italy goes on war rations." And woe to anyone who gets a yard more of spaghetti than the rest.

IMPROVEMENT IN HEALTH

The great strides that public health has made in America in the present generation are strikingly illustrated by a remark by Dr. George Crile of Cleveland before the 25th clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons, in San Francisco.

"One of every 17 persons in the United States and Canada went to hospitals last year," said Dr. Crile. "But that is much less than one decade ago, when one of 10 went to a hospital annually."

Here is unmistakable evidence of a sharp rise in the general level of public health. A number of factors are responsible; advances in the science of medicine itself, unceasing vigilance on the part of public health departments, and general improvement in health education of the public at large.

The result is a large plume for the cap of the medical profession.

Jimmy Walker was reported to be affable toward his questioners. But then they didn't include Samuel Seabury.

LICENSES FOR FIREARMS

Attorney General Cummings' demand for stricter laws governing the use of firearms is amply justified by the facts. As he says, the underworld is "armed to the teeth," and under existing legislation the authorities are sadly handicapped in their efforts to disarm it.

Mr. Cummings plans to ask Congress for action on a bill which would put pistols and other weapons under national control. He points out that there is now no way of checking on firearms which gangsters own; as an illustration, he reveals that more than 2,000 government-owned guns have been stolen from armories in the last few years.

That firearms should be licensed at least as strictly as autos is too obvious to need comment. Such a system would disturb the law-abiding citizen very little, yet it would make it easier to get at the lawless gun-toter — and, in that way, would put a crimp in the underworld's activities.

The report that Gar Wood will build a new Miss America was our first intimation that exclusive rights weren't held by resort press agents.

POLITICS GONE TOO FAR

The high price the public pays for permitting selfish machine politics to handle its state governments is apt to get a good deal higher, now that the states are adopting new functions which affect the lives of citizens more closely.

An example is the complaint recently registered by the American Association for Social Security, to the effect that Ohio's old-age pension system has been "perverted into a political instrumentality" by the state administration, with an increase of incompetency and waste in direction of its affairs.

We can endure political misgovernment in affairs that do not touch us closely. An old-age pension is different. It needs the most honest and efficient management that can possibly be applied.

Politicians who tamper with such things are exacting far too high a price for their services.

"Italy Facing Loss of Crude Oil Supply." Isn't Mussolini well?

Daily Health Talks

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

Hardy a month goes by without the announcement that someone has made a significant advance against cancer. Yet as the years pass these so-called "cures" are never heard of again. This is unfortunate, because today more people are afraid of cancer than are afraid of any other disease.

Cancer is not yet conquered!

Few people realize that it takes at least five years to test a cancer cure, Time is the tester.

Unfortunately, thus far, every cancer cure proposed within the five-year limit has at the end of that time been revealed as an unsuccessful experiment.

At present, we know that cancer still afflicts old people more than young people. Ninety per cent of all deaths from cancer occur after the age of 40 years, and 98 per cent after 30 years of age.

Another type of cancer, known as sarcoma, more frequently affects people in the younger years.

Women have cancer more often than do men, because women have cancer of the breast and of the organs associated with childbirth. They still suffer less than do men from cancer of the mouth and cancer of the skin.

Whenever cancer has been studied with a view to finding some factor in civilized man not present in the uncivilized, the studies have yielded only failure. Today we know that savages and primitive people do not die of cancer, because they do not live long enough to die of that disease.

Nevertheless, there seems to be some relationship between civilization and cancer, because the condition is more frequent in northern and western, than in southern or eastern, Europe, and in the United States the death rates from this condition are higher among white people than among Negroes.

Everybody ought to know that there is no evidence to indicate that cancer is infectious, or that it can be transmitted from one person to another. We do know, however, that certain families may develop a tendency to die of cancer; at least, this is the case in animal experiments.

Notwithstanding what has been said, cancer should not be considered a hopeless and incurable disease. It appears first in one spot in the body and, if it can be detected in time and removed, the menace is under control.

In Pennsylvania a commission on cancer found that 39 per cent of cancer seen on the surface of the body and 46 per cent of cancer deep in the body are preceded by symptoms of chronic irritation and inflammation.

If people having such symptoms get proper diagnosis and treatment in time, many of them can be saved.

In New York

By GEORGE ROSS

NEW YORK—Besides barflies, pavement panhandlers (dime fer acuppa coffee, mister?) and glib kleptomaniacs, the town is overrun with moochers of every variety. But my own admiration has always been for the autograph seekers, mooching's most alert practitioners. They know better than men-about-town where celebrities will be on a gala New York evening and their approach to clients is something for backward book salesmen to see.

Like wild Indians they surround their prey between acts of a Broadway opening and don't let go until a signature is down on the dotted line. Al Smith is one of their favorite victims because he is always ready to oblige, but they tell me Katharine Hepburn has, thus far, been their toughest customer.

Autograph hounds, by the way, are divided into two camps; those who sacrifice themselves to the art for art's sake; and those who collect signatures for money. An old hand at the racket can get along on the cash rewards of autograph mooching, even though the market on the stuff is always going up and down. For example, a Myrna Loy signature, Collector Izzie was telling me, has gone down from a quarter to 12 cents since the Oriental-eyed actress' last Manhattan visit, while Fred Astaire's scratchy scrawls are going up.

Drawings on Nerve

Then, there is the other kind of connoisseur who goes in exclusively for panhandling original paintings, drawings and cartoons. How? By just dropping around to a celebrated artist's studio, sauntering in and remarking, "Mr. Arno, I have admired your work for a long time and I will be proud to keep an original sketch of yours as a memento." The artist, not averse to flattery, will generally break down, and give. Repeat this spiel at the shops of James Montgomery Fagg, John Held, Jr.; Howard Chandler Christy, McClelland Barclay, Neysa McMein or Charles Danna Gibson and stuff enough for a little art gallery is garnered. Or stuff enough for a profitable re-sale.

Mooching at stagedoors, though, is still one of the most popular lines. Every evening, at certain playhouses, a queue forms for the hand-out; sometimes $5, sometimes $10 and often, more.

Many of them are bona fide, unemployed, down-on-their luck actors who knew the star when—and who at least have a legitimate reason to ask for help.

Others are professional moochers who cover the dressing room entrances regularly. I've seen one of the latter kind get around to three stars in one night for a "touch." George M. Cohan is reckoned as the stage's most popular philanthropist. He's been known to distribute twice his week's salary to the backstage boys.

Travel Story

Tales of the town: Moss Hart, the librettist, was telling us of the whimsical drunk he met on the doorstep of his midtown home, one night. The fellow was sprawled out at the door, having a quiet nap. Mr. Hart woke him out of a slumbering stupor and asked, "Can I take you any place, old man. Anywhere you want to go?" The drunk barely budged.

"Paris," he murmured and went back to sleep.

Emergency Note

Further evidence that New York is a soft-hearted town: The sandwich man who went Sir Walter Raleigh 10 better the other day by removing the sign from his back and placing it across a puddle, so that a pretty wench could cross on 8th Avenue. . . .The placard on the news-stand at Times Square which read, "Dr. Benham, Please Call Your Home." Seems the doctor's nurse knew he stopped by for a paper every night, phoned police headquarters which, in turn, phoned the patrolman on the Times Square beat, who, in turn, scribbled out the note. "Doc" phoned home within an hour.

SEEN and HEARD

By DOROTHY DORAN

Jersey Journalists

True, all Americans are created equal, but ah! added Mark Twain, "then the fun begins." There's a difference of one year and one letter between Kent Williams of Conover Lane, Middletown, and Richard Hammer, who lives in the Catherine Street area. Richard is 12, while Kent is 11. Richard does the firing and Kent does the hiring (right in the family if you please, and the publishing business at that.)

Once upon a time Kent worked with Richard getting out "The Neighborhood News," then Richard "bounced" his younger brother Bobbie as a reporter, and things weren't equal anymore. Kent took Bobbie's part and thought he was a swell news getter, so much so he employed him as his star reporter and launched a rival paper christening it, "The Kids' News."

Boys wouldn't be boys unless both wanted to be boss and shove the rift in this partnership business on Bobbie, if you choose, but the supremacy complex started long before the Garden of Eden and the apple tree sprouted.

Their papers run 4 to 6 pages and are typewritten. Both give space to cartoons and serials, but advertising is their "meat." Richard will print your ad for five cents if it's a small one and it costs 25 cents for a big spread. Kent carries "The Kids' News" on the same scale, anywhere from a nickel up is his motto. Ten to 15 advertisements in each paper prove the youngsters are paying attention to the selling end as well as the social news.

A "scoop" in newspaper circles is a beat. In other words, your paper outwits all others with the initial story. If a parcel post truck burned on your highway, you should get the "scoop." Richard did and came out with an extra. That burned Kent up. Richard wasn't bragging about his efforts, either, because in his hurry to get the news out first, he placed the carbon in his typewriter backwards and the paper came out upside down. The P. M. read: "Hold the paper up to a mirror if you can't make it out." He sold lots of copies, too, at 5 cents apiece.

Kent brushed off his brain, agreeing, "This will never do," so to outwit his competitor, had his paper mimeographed. "It looks neater," says Kent.

Poor Richard, he's broken his ankle and an editorial in "The Kids News" ran like this: "Our rival editor, Dick Hammer, has been put out of action. We don't want people to think we are taking advantage of his illness to put one over. Plans for this issue were made long ago. Clean sport is our watchword. We can take it and we can dish it out."

In spite of newspaper competition, Kent and Richard play together. They don't talk shop and any reporter caught exchanging notes just doesn't work for "The Neighborhood Gossip" or "The Kids News" anymore. Kent is willing to give Richard a job on his paper and Richard OK's these sentiments toward Kent, but neither fall for the idea.

Richard says, "My brother Bob is a bum reporter." "Think so?" pipes up Kent, "he's been in a closet cover[illegible] this interview all the time."

Gordon's Gazeteer.

Oh! so we were a mill stream 101 years ago. That's what they called us in Gordon's Gazeteer of 1834 describing Long Branch thusly, adding, "it's a tributary of the South Shrewsbury River. Further on we are advised there is a small village of 12 to 15 houses, one tavern and two stores east of this stream and between it and the Atlantic to which the name of Long Branch is given, a well known and much frequented sea bathing place on the Atlantic Ocean which takes its name from the stream and the hamlet above mentioned."

Whoever wrote that advertisement would be lynched today. Here's the reason, for the Gazeteer goes on to report, "Long Branch holds big inducements to invalids, idlers and hunters." The farmers would get out their shot guns, too, for they are described thusly: "There are some respectable farmers who take boarders, but most people stay at Wardell's, Renshaw's and Sears while stages from Philadelphia and steamboats from New York will take them right to their door." This sounds very queer, but maybe it isn't so odd after all, for in 1834 along the beach at Long Branch was a strip of fertile, black sand several miles in length and exceeding more than a mile in width. The land adjacent to the ocean rose perpendicularly from the beach nearly 20 feet. The boarding houses were 20 rods from the water with lawns in between.

We know that where the ocean is now, there used to be corn fields. From old accounts, soldiers used to drill out where the wild waves dash today. Nowhere, so far, have we come across authentic pictures of the tents the Indians used along our shore, though we have seen an oil painting in the home of Dr. Leland Barret at Portau-Peck, proving fishing shacks were on our shore in the dim decades of long ago. All we can say is, Old Man River and Old Man Ocean have sure been creeping in on us, but we're not a mill stream anymore.

Offering Orchids.

One orchid in a corsage puts you in the 400 class and more than one makes you feel like a millionaire. Orchids always have been on the top rung of floral aristocracy. They don't ask the odds of roses, carnations, or any other bud that blooms. To Hubert K. Dalton of Rumson they are in a class by themselves and rightly so. Though Mr. Dalton calls himself non-professional in this orchid raising business, he certainly has brought this fragile flower to the top, horticulturally speaking. He's feared and he's blessed by competitors all over the country. There's a lavender orchid with faint tinge of orange on its petals that's his very own and which he christened Mary Alice after his granddaughter.

At the New York Flower Show he brought back the Massachusetts Horticultural Society Gold Medal announcing him as the sweepstake winner in the orchid exhibit. He showed the miraculous seven-year evolution of this exotic flower in 20 interesting stages. Rather looks as though Mr. Dalton leaves no loopholes in this orchid revelation. He opens up the whole picture before the seed is even dropped in the ground. That's why he gets ribbons and medals.

A BOOK A DAY

PHILO VANCE KNOWS ABOUT HORSE RACES

But His Newest Detective Exploit Isn't So Hot

By BRUCE CATTON

Mr. S. S. Van Dine is with us again, guiding Philo Vance through a tale which displays very neatly the detective's profound erudition, and which also reveals him as having an unsuspected human side. Indeed, there is but one thing wrong with it; it isn't much of a detective story.

The book is "The Garden Murder Case" (Scribner's $2) and it tells about gentlemanly gamblers in a New York penthouse. One of the lads get murdered just after they get their bets down on the fourth race, and Vance happens to be on the scene.

The tale is far from satisfactory, as a thriller; but it does give Mr. Van Dine a chance to show how much he knows about race horses and horse races.

There is better fare to be found in "The Sullen Sky Mystery," by H. C. Bailey (Crime Club: $2). This story reintroduces that old Englishman, Joshua Clunk, a sanctimonious little shyster lawyer who goes about humming hymns, confounding Scotland Yard and solving abstruse murder cases, and an engaging figure he is.

We have a corpse found on a beach, an ex-convict in a position of deep suspicion, and some high-powered shenanigans by Mr. Clunk. The tale is highly satisfactory from start to finish.

For Sax Rohmer fans, mention must be made of "The Bat Flies Low" (Crime Club: $2). Here Mr. Rohmer brings an eligible New York bachelor into juxtaposition with a lovely descendant of Cleopatra, mixes in a suitable amount of ancient Egyptian menace, and lets the fur fly.

If you go for Sax Rohmer, you'll find him passing out his standard brand of goods here.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By RODNEY DUTCHER

(Daily Record Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON—If the roar of the baloney-grinders would die down for just a moment, we might be able to hear ourselves think what those off-year election results really mean.

Unfortunately, the baloney-grinders are in full whir and there'll be no stoppig them for the next 12 months. You might be justified in saying that the really underlyingest significance of the elections was that they formally opened what is generally known as the "campaign year," along with toot-toots from Governor Landon, Senator Vandenberg, and Colonel Knox.

The Republicans and Democrats won a glorious victory, as you already know. The chief value of this victory is the extent to which it will be used to whoop up campaign contributions, stimulate party spirit, and enocurage all hands to organize for the great Armageddon of November, 1936.

What the elections actually proved, Chairman Fletcher and Chairman Farley notwithstanding, was approximately what every politician already knew.

Roosevelt has slipped—measurably, but not far enough to satisfy Republicans nor far enough to put the Democrats in a panic.

F. R. Still on Top

No one should try to deduce too much from the New York assembly election, the Kentucky gubernatorial election, or the Philadelphia mayoralty election.

But it seems a fair guesss to say that if the Presidential election were to be held at this time, Roosevelt would win over any Republican candidate. Almost any politician would privately agree on that.

The only essential change in the political picture since the New Deal congressional landslide of 1934 has been a large growth in popular skepticism as to the soundness and success of the New Deal program, accompanied by an increase of apathy as to Mr. Roosevelt himself.

That was bucked up Republican money enormously, persuaded potential big campaign contributors that won't be necessarily be throwing their money down the drain pipe and worried Democrats into the belief that at least they have a fight on their hands.

Signals Are Different

Essentially again, Roosevelt is still the nation's outstanding popular leader. To date, no Republican leader is seriously threatening his position. That is, according to available signs.

Which means, as matters stand, that Republican victory must be predicated upon a revulsion of feeling against the New Deal which will be furious enough to carry any fairly good opponent over the top. A protest vote, in other words, similar to—though not necessarily equaling—those which cast out the Democrats in 1920 and the Republicans in 1932.

Such a turn of the tide is quite possible, but it is worth remembering that the warning signals of the 1918 and 1930 congressional elections were violent, whereas the 1934 congressional elections were a New Deal cleanup and the balloting of 1935 has been little more than a molehill for partisans to magnify.

Both Sides Hopeful

The question is whether the reaction against Roosevelt can be intensified and accelerated in the next year or whether the Democrats can hold it to present proportions while Uncle Frank undertakes to smile and croon the boys and girls back to their previous state of adoration.

Republicans insist publicly they are riding a rising tide of resentment and Democrats like to think the Roosevelt popularity reached its low mark last summer and is now climbing back.

Roosevelt and Farley bit off more than they could chew in seeking to tighten Democratic control of the New York assembly and a Democratic mayor in Philadelphia.

Kentucky, where a blatantly New Deal candidate was elected governor by a whooping majority against a Republican supported by Democratic Gov. Ruby Laffoon and other Democratic conservatives, probably produced the most significant result.

Watch New York

Pennsylvania leaves the question whether control of the Philadelphia election machinery plus normal Republicanism can be offset next year by Democratic control of the state government and the pro-New Deal efforts of John Lewis and the United Mine Workers.

Meanwhile, watch Farley and Tammany and Mayor LaGuardia of New York. Roosevelt and LaGuardia are close. They would like to have LaGuardia run for re-election on the Democratic ticket in 1937.

Tammany, which emphatically reasserted its strength, will demand its own candidate in 1937 if it is to support Roosevelt in 1936.

Incidentally, in case you didn't know it, it was Mrs. Roosevelt who really carried Hyde Park for the new Democratic town supervisor, Elmer van Wagenen, whose opponent ran on an anti-Eleanor platform.

What Other Editors Think

AGAIN THE CANDID FRIEND

In this week's issue of Today, Professor Moley gives his interpretation of the November elections. He thinks that their significance was exaggerated by both sides. Yet he agrees that they gave the Democrats an unexpected chill. Recalling his prediction of some weeks ago that if the Presidential election were held now, the Democrats would lose all New England, together with New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, he adds that "There is nothing in the results of last week's elections to indicate that this was not substantially true." Professor Moley is not deceived by the apparent majority of 300,000 for the Democrats in the New York election. He shrewdly observes that this is the "product of loyalty to the local Democratic machine in New York City." That machine is strongly anti-Farley, if not anti-New Deal. It probably would make a virtue of necessity and support the Democratic national ticket next year, though it would be at best a precarious asset for the party.

In his capacity as candid friend of the Roosevelt Administration, Professor Moley proceeds to offer it advice under four heads. One of them is an urgent recommendation that there be a great improvement in the administrative work, by means of consolidating overlapping departments and bringing about a "reduction in the number of Federal employes." To this friendly suggestion he adds a sting by saying that there should also be "a few important resignations." Whom can he mean? Not the Secretary of the Interior or the Attorney General, we should hope. In all the probability, it grieves us to say, the Professor has his eye upon Secretary Hull and Secretary Wallace, both of whom he has before charged with advocating low tariff policies which, in his opinion, would wreck the Democratic party.—N. Y. Times.

THE DRUCKMAN CASE NEEDS A DEWEY

The precision of Mr. Thomas E. Dewey's methods has again borne fruit in the speedy conviction of the first two of his recent bag of loan sharks to be put on trial. Some 20 more face the same fate, and though a few of them may escape it, one is safe in predicting that the bulk of them will be deposited behind the bars as rapidly as the machinery of Special Sessions can dispose of their cases. For Mr. Dewey is not one to wait for the police to bring him evidence of crime, nor does he order round-ups merely on the suspicion that some of his prisoners may know something and can be made to talk. From the beginning he takes charge of every inquiry undertaken, carefully guides the assembly of evidence and springs his trap only when he is fairly certain of successful prosecution.

In contrast to the Dewey technique, consider the handling so far of the Druckman case. Here we find a prosecutor elected by the people (and recently re-elected) presenting to a regular grand jury evidence of a murder collected by the police independently of his direction. The grand jury fails to indict, though an examination of its minutes has persuaded Commissioner Valentine that the evidence clearly warranted indictments. The three defendants are discharged, their blood-soaked clothing is returned to them and the prosecutor washes his hands of the affair. Until late yesterday, when the case was reopened, he had refused to have anything more to do with it unless the Commissioner could produce new evidence. A further investigation under these auspices cannot possibly satisfy the demand of justice.

No doubt District Attorney Geoghan's behavior in this instance is an unusually flagrant example of indifference to duty, or at least of indifference to effort beyond official routine. It illustrates, nevertheless, the weakness of the old formula which assumes that the police on their own are responsible for tracking down crime and that the prosecutor's role is merely one of presenting for what they are worth the facts that they ferret out. It is a very convenient formula for the prosecutor who fears the political consequences of too great activity.

The Druckman case calls for a Dewey. Just as in the instance of District Attorney Dodge's failure to make headway against the policy racket, Governor Lehman should see immediately to the appointment of a special prosecutor and a special grand jury to go to the bottom of the criminal mess it indicates. Both the Mayor and Commissioner Valentine very evidently favor such action. The Governor, who justifiably prides himself on his recent crime conference, has here an opportunity to show that he believes in deeds as well as words.—Herald Tribune.

CONTRACT—How to Score It
BRIDGE

I am now preparing for the national championship tournament, which will be held in Chicago the week of Dec. 2.

The American Bridge League was organized in Chicago in 1927. But Chicago's last league tournament was held in 1929, when we were just an organization of three or four hundred members. Today the names of thousands of enthusiastic bridge players throughout the United States are enrolled on the league membership list.

I hope to meet a great many new friends on my tour of the western cities, and will always find time for a chat at my new headquarters at the Stevens Hotel, in Chicago.

Opening lead—♠ A 15

R. R. Richards of Detroit, first president of the league, sent me today's hand, which brings out the line of reasoning you have to use to become a champion.

A slam should not be bid, as it can be beaten with a diamond opening. However, in championship bridge, even though a slam is not bid, you have to make all the tricks you can.

Today's Contract Problem

East is playing the contract at three spades, doubled by South. When North wins the opening lead, which club should he return so his partner will know which suit to lead back after ruffing?

E. & W. vul. Opener—♣ 9
Solution in next issue. 15

The Play

With a spade opening, dummy's king and queen are established, providing one discard for declarer. Now let us say West shifts to the nine of diamonds. Should declarer take the finesse?

The odds are that he should not. Few people will lead away from a king. They usually will lead through strength.

Therefore, the play is to go up with the ace, discard the losing diamond on the spade and later take the club finesse, and six odd will be made.

Of course, if you were a really smart West player, you would reason that declarer would figure the hand out that way, and you might trip up a smart declarer by deliberately underleading your king of clubs.

FIREMEN TO SPONSOR CONTESTS FOR PUPILS ON FIRE PREVENTION

The annual essay contest on Fire Prevention in the county high and grammar schools has again been announced by the Monmouth County Firemen's Association. The topics chosen are "How My Community Can Guard Against Fire," which has been assigned to the high schools, and "How I Can Protect My Home From Fire," to be written by those entering the contest from the ranks of the elementary grades.

The essay written by the high school student is not to exceed 400 words in length, and the final award for the best essay submitted will be $5. The rules governing those to be written by the elementary student are not to exceed 200 words in length and the final award will be similar. These essays must be turned into the county superintendent by noon on Saturday, Nov. 23.

Each principal or supervisor of each school will select the two best essays from his competing group and forward them to the county superintendent. Essays must be written on one side of the paper only and not contain any identification marks whatsoever. The judges which have been selected for this contest are: the Rev. John B. McCloskey, of Red Bank, Herbert Scott, of the Monmouth Probation Department, and William M. Smith, of Freehold, county superintendent of schools.

Green and White Eleven Warily Trains Sights on Roselle

Bresett Team Expects No Set-Up in Battle for 6th Straight Win

LongBranchCoachesAre Anxious Concerning Effects of Two Games in Week

By C. BYRON WORTMAN

Pitting its proven ability against a team that has but an in-and-out record for the season, Long Branch High School warily set its sights for the meeting with Roselle tomorrow.

Five straight victories tend to make Coach Edison E. Bresett's Green and White warriors top-heavy favorites in the fray but the team will enter the contest with no such illusions. The Long Branch mentor and his aides have brought the squad along slowly at a consistent pace and Roselle offers no great threat to the winning streak. However, the bugaboo of over-confidence has ruined many a high-riding eleven and the coaches have spent what was left of the week after the Neptune game Monday, convincing their charges that no set-up was in store.

That fare of two games in one week is another angle which the Green and White pilots have been scanning with an anxious eye. The Green and White came out of 12-0 win over Nep unhampered by injuries except in a few cases of minor hurts but there is always the chance the strain is too great.

Coach Bresett has spent much of the time during workouts polishing up the rough spots among his reserves and if the opportunity presents itself some of the regulars may get a breathing spell in the contest.

The varsity lineup will probably start however with Wilfred "Nick" Nixon, sturdy left halfback and Freddy Crotchfelt, fullback, leading the attack.

Warren Conklin will start at quarterback but the choice of Lou Vincelli or Elsworth Curley for the right wing berth still is open. Which ever man starts the other is certain to see some action and the same applies to Claude Paxton, Nixon's understudy and George Huhn, another reserve right halfback.

Maney Horn, regular left end, came out of the Neptune game with an injured leg and Whitey Nichols will probably get the call. Capt. Johnny Sherman will be at right end with Charlie Howland recovered from a slight injury and Jim Wallace at tackles; Mickey Tomaini and Johnny Santora guards and Felix Celli, center.

Long Branch has another reason for pointing for the Roselle team other than the protection of its win streak. The Green and White traveled to Union County last year and took a 24-7 beating at the hands of Coach Orian Rice's eleven.

Jim Lee, fleet Negro quarterback and a veteran of the team which trimmed Long Branch in 1934, will lead the Roselle invasion with Becker and Cook at the halfback posts and Kearney at full.

Roselle has won two games, lost two and tied one in five starts. Opening with a defeat at the hands of Cranford, Coach Rice's players beat Union and Westfield in succession. They bowed to Linden two weeks ago and last Saturday played a 13-13 tie with Hillside.

The probable lineups:

ASBURY H. S. SWIMMERS GET USE OF NATATORIUM

ASBURY PARK, Nov. 15.—Revival of a swimming team at the local high-school loomed today with the announcement by City Manager Milford G. Farley that permission had been obtained for use of the Natatorium four afternoons each week for swimming practice.

The city manager declared that Edward T. Mitchell, bathing concessionaire, had allotted the hours from 4 to 6 P. M. on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week, during the winter season, for use of the high-school team.

Further support of the movement to revive the swimming team, came from the Asbury Park Kiwanis Club, when that organization generously offered to purchase equipment in the form of suits for a 12-man high-school team.

Farley, in making his announcement, said that he looked forward to an active resumption of interscholastic swimming meets with high-schools from all over the state competing in the Natatorium.

JR. COLLEGE READY FOR COURT DRILLS

Monmouth Candidates Will Get First Workout Monday Under Coach Scull

Candidates for Monmouth Junior College basketball team will hold their first workout of the year Monday night, it was announced last night by Nelson Scull, new athletic director at the institution. With only three members of the squad which toured the state last season and defeated the best the Junior Colleges had to offer gone, and with many promising freshman prospects expected to don suits, the practice Monday will see the strongest squad ever to report to a local college coach in the three years of the school's existence.

Returning to take their place in the front ranks will be Harold Turnock, center of Red Bank; George Voll, guard and Fred Kramer of Asbury Park, and Harry Rockafeller, of Neptune. Jack Kramer, brother of Fred, and a member of last year's team at Asbury Park, heads the list of freshmen expected to turn out, with Leo LaBionda of Red Bank also slated to give one of the veterans a run for his position.

Scull, who comes to this school direct from Collingswood where he coached Y. M. C. A teams, will take over the reins which Ed Gottlieb held last year. Gottlieb is now at the Essex Junior College. The new instructor, a graduate of Rutgers University, also stated that sessions would be held three times a week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday—until the season started.

LOU SALICA DEFENDS BANTAM TITLE TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Lou Salica of New York will have an opportunity tonight in Madison Square Garden to demonstrate whether he's a "fluke ruler" or the world's bantamweight boxing division.

Salica gained the title last summer in a 15-round decision over Sixto Escobar of Puerto Rico. Ringside experts were almost unanimous in disagreeing with the verdict.

Consequently the pair will do it all over again tonight at the championship distance of 15 rounds.

What little wagering there has been favored Salica at odds of six to five.

GULISTANS MEET THIRD TRENTON FOE

Freehold Rug Weavers Oppose Wilbur A. A., on Grid Sunday

By ABE STEINBERG

FREEHOLD, Nov. 15.—For the third and last time a Trenton football team will try to hand the Freehold Gulistans football squad their first defeat of the season. Already two Capitol City outfits have met the County Seaters and failed and now the Wilbur A. A. will attempt to carry on where the others have left off. This game will be played Sunday afternoon on the Firemen's field on Manalapan Avenue.

The Wilburs are considered the strongest outfit in Trenton. They have taken the measure of the South Side team, a team which held the Freeholders to a scoreless tie and they also have taken the measure of some of the best elevens in Trenton and surrounding territory. They have a strong lineup consisting of former Rider College and Cathedral high stars.

The Rug Weavers who will be trying to keep their slate clean of defeats as they have three scoreless ties and one victory in four starts on their records, will also be out there trying to keep their goal line uncrossed. This remarkable record is due more or less to the great line the Gulistans possess. Keeping the line together are the two giant tackles, Al Yodakis and George Dickash. These two boys have played like seasoned professionals in the four games and if they continue to play the same way, future opponents of the Rug Weavers are going to find the going mighty tough. However the entire power of the line does not lie in the tackles alone. Coach Gilday Freeman has two fine ends in Pete Witcavitch and George Bier. The latter does all of the kicking for the Freeholders, besides being an adept pass receiver. The two Searby brothers handle the guard post. The center post is taken care of by A. Gorbich.

The backfield brings back names that were read frequently on sport pages in the county two years ago, while these lads were members of the Freehold High School eleven. Eddie Jerolis, Boris Zukowsky and Joseph Sadowsky are those that will be more easily remembered. Walter Cagney and "Bus" Hyers as well as Pete Jerolis complete the backfield.

LONG BRANCH VS. ROSELLE—That five-game win streak looms large in favor of the Green and White against the Union County school's five-game record of two wins, two defeats and a tie. And there is also that matter of a 24-7 beating absorbed last year to be avenged. The Green waves again.

ASBURY PARK VS. CAMDEN—Coach Bob Heisel's players take on their second tough one in a row. Camden has won in the last two meetings and its record shows only one defeat this season. Camden.

FREEHOLD VS. POINT PLEASANT—The County Seat eleven, still smarting from that terrific beating at the hands of Lakewood last Saturday is determined to regain the win column in this Friday engagement. The duke of Freehold.

NEPTUNE VS. ROSELLE PARK—If Coach Bill Woolley's gallant tribe can show the same spirit against Roselle Park that they displayed against Long Branch, they can't be beat. A comeback for Neptune in its second start of the week.

* * *

RUMSON VS. MATAWAN—The Purple and White is due to make itself felt against another county opponent in this one.

LEONARDO VS. ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS—This is a real neighborhood scrap but Leonardo appears to have the edge in a close battle.

MANASQUAN VS. LAKEWOOD—The high-flying Piners, after that walloping they handed Freehold, should encounter little difficulty in disposing of this shore rival. Lakewood by a couple of touchdowns.

* * *

TOMS RIVER VS. MT. HOLLY—The Indians took the scalp of a South Jersey opponent last week and can do it again. Toms River.

PRINCETON VS. LEHIGH—Not that they need it, but the Roaring Tigers get a "breather" before meeting Dartmouth and Yale in their march through an unbeaten season. Princeton scores again, maybe two touchdowns, maybe a half dozen.

* * *

NOTRE DAME VS. ARMY—That defeat at the hands of Northwestern was just about enough to rouse the Irish of Coach Elmer Layden and his "boys." Army's showing against Pitt leaves little alternative in the picking, and the vote goes to the South Bend rovers in another of those classic battles.

COLGATE VS. SYRACUSE—The Orange bangs up against a real threat to its unbeaten record, but the will to keep the record spotless is there. Syracuse.

COLUMBIA VS. NAVY—Lou Little will get the chance to wear that new black suit he has just added to his wardrobe. The Middies.

DARTMOUTH VS. CORNELL—There isn't much chance the game next week between unbeaten Dartmouth and unbeaten Princeton, will be spoiled by tomorrow.

GEORGETOWN VS. MANHATTAN—The Metropolitan eleven hopes to bring its scoring total nearer to the 300-mark at the expense of Georgetown. Two touchdowns will help them do it.

* * *

N. Y. U. VS. RUTGERS—The New York University record remains unmarred.

TEMPLE VS. MARQUETTE—Pop Warner and the Owls will upset the comparative record dope and get back in the win column, with the aid of Ippolito and Renzo.

MICHIGAN VS. MINNESOTA—Minnesota, by at least 12 points.

IOWA VS. PURDUE—Iowa will add to Purdue's misery.

WINNER TONIGHT WILL MEET ALDARE

Gorman and Brescia Battle for Spot in Asbury Park Ring

(By Staff Correspondent)

ASBURY PARK, Nov. 15.—Stepping into the squared circle to settle an old grudge, two top-notch lightweights will head the card at the Convention Hall on the boardwalk here at 9 o'clock tonight, when Joe Gorman and Tony Brescia, both of New York, are scheduled to go 10 rounds to a decision or a quicker finish by the knockout route.

The is bout has caused a great deal of popular interest in the fact that both of these boys have tangled with the fast moving, hard hitting Johnny Briggs of Long Branch. Fans might come to some conclusion or another by their respective records against the Long Branch battler. Gorman fighting Briggs here a few weeks past gained a draw with the shore fighter while Briggs lost to Tony Brescia in the up-shore city two seasons ago. However these two same fighters entered the ring against each other in the Lenox A. C. in New York, a month ago and there managed to break even when the referee called it a draw. Both lads are confident of taking the other and the fight fans from this district are due to see a good scrap.

Knowing the value of advancing a good preliminary card, Promoter Nelson Erlich has selected Nut Capibianco of this city and a swell puncher to tie up with Johnny Hart, a lad from the capital city of Trenton. These boys are both welters. Another tangle between these two same cities will be launched when George Harper, Asbury's game little featherweight tackles Mickey Ballerino of Trenton. Nut Capibianco and Hart are scheduled to put on the semi-final. Lou Bierman also of the capital city will draw Al Marchetti of this place in the opener, which is a four rounder.

To even out the other six-round bout Lou Greenberg, a boy from Newark, will match up with Al Brown of this place. All in all three six rounders and the opener of four will face the local fight fans here tonight, and from the advance ticket sale a good crowd is expected to be on hand with opening gong.

Tony Brescia during his career in the professional ring has fought such men as Johnny Pilc, whom he beat, Jack Rosenberg and Johnny Briggs, while he edged out a draw with Jackie Aldare, and lost a 10 round decision to the famous Vince Dundee. Joe Gorman, his opponent in tonight's go, edged out a decision over Johnny Anderson, who at one time went the route and got the bout on points from Mickey Walker. The winner of tonight's feature will be matched for a return bout with Aldare within the next weeks.

BLUE AND BLACK FACES TOUGH FOE IN CAMDEN AT HOME TOMORROW

ASBURY PARK, Nov. 15—Tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock the Asbury Park high school football team will face its most impressive foe of the present season. Camden high school, losers of a single game in an upset by Collingswood, and held to a scoreless tie by an admittedly weaker Woodbury eleven, is said by coaches of teams who have met both outfits to be superior to the Phillipsburg high school outfit that toppled the locals for their only loss of the season, and the Purple and Gold is coming North with the avowed intention of making it three straight over the wearers of the Blue and Black.

Coach Robert W. Heisel will rely, in the main, on the gridders who have done the bulk of the heavy work for nearly the entire season. Joe Pappa, diminutive guard who has attained an All-County rating in past seasons, will be on the sidelines, with Bill Carr replacing him, and Larry Bartee at the other guard. Joe DeNisco will be between them, Corky Halikman and Frank Sklansky will be in the tackle positions, and Capt. Jack Buckley and Jimmy DeSarno will start on the ends. Archie Pezzella and Frankie Crisp will be in the half back positions, with Turk Taylor clearing out and Bob Menzel handling the apple on a majority of the plays.

ASBURY ISSUES FIRST COURT CALL

Coach Coleman Receives 44 Candidates; Football Men Report Later

(By Staff Correspondent)

ASBURY PARK, Nov. 15—First indications that the football season is on the wane were evident here yesterday afternoon, when Coach James M. "Chippy" Coleman called a meeting of the candidates for the 1936 basketball team, from which meeting all football players were barred. Some 44 youngsters, several of whom had Varsity, Second team, and Freshman experience last season, answered the call, and the number will be much increased when the football season comes to a close in a couple of weeks.

With the close of football Coach Coleman will have available Capt. Bob Menzel, Archie Pezzella, Johnny McGowan, Booker Milby, Sam Siciliano, and Don Henderson, lettermen from last year, and all except Pezzella towering well above the 6 foot mark. Vic Hirsch, Charlie Farr, Harry Richardson, Attilio Peluso and Len Kaplan remain from the second team group that had an eminently successful season. Other candidates who reported this afternoon included Boehme, Brown, Garberine, Douty, Swartout, Reed, Ormsbee, Shibla, A. and B. Skaf, Miller, Vanderhoof, Mühlhusen, Mayer, Willinger, Leavitt, Cooper, Stolz, Stephanile, Farley, Close, Klitzman, John Richardson, Marucci, Shapiro, Robbins, Van Selous, Necktel, Spielfogel, Brothers, Schumacher, Lazare, Whitel, Thompson, and O'Reilly.

The call for another winter sport came from John Cittadino, who invited candidates for the swimming team to meet him at the close of school tomorrow while he outlined plans for the coming season. Coach Cittadino has Doug Smith, Rill Reed, Turk Taylor, Charlie Hotaling, Hank Anderson as a nucleus.

HUN, PENNINGTON SEEK PREP CROWN

Haddonfield, Only Unbeaten Group Three Team, Faces Strong Colls

(By Associated Press)

New Jersey's unofficial State prep school football championship probably will be decided tomorrow when Hun and Pennington meet at Princeton in the feature game of the week-end schedule.

On the basis of their respective meetings with the Lafayette Freshmen, Hun will go into the game the favorite. It held the yearling eleven to a scoreless tie while Pennington, which eliminated Benedicts, the 1934 champion, from the race, lost by a 20 to 0 margin.

No other members of the Group Four Prep Division have records comparable to those of the two Mercer County schools. Hun has not been beaten and Pennington's setback by the Lafayette Frosh was its only loss.

The three unbeaten and untied Group Four high school clubs are expected to keep their places on the honor roll again this week. Bloomfield, still unscored on, will meet Nutley; Phillipsburg will face Hasbrouck Heights, a group three team, and Newark West Side will meet Newark East Side.

Haddonfield, only Group Three high eleven on the honor list, will clash with Collingswood in the principal South Jersey game and will be the underdog. The Colls have lost only to Vineland this year and pack too much power for their rival tomorrow.

West Orange and Rutherford both undefeated but tied, will meet Belleville and Englewood, respectively, in two more important group three contests.

Undefeated and untied Cranford, Bernardsville, and Pompton Lakes also will perform tomorrow. Cranford will meet Millburn, Bernardsville will face North Plainfield, and Pompton Lakes will oppose Ramsey. Each of the three is favored.

RED BANK HAS OPEN DATE; POINTS FOR FINAL GAME

Monday's Match

Norwood Tire Co. vs. Brownies

By G. EARLE JOLINE

The City Bowling League had but one team in the "driver's seat" this morning after one of neatest "trimming" jobs the Barbers have carried out in their campaign for the league title was perpetrated on the City Ice & Coal Company outfit, which had been occupying half of the first place position, up to last night, with the Norwood Tire Co.

The Barbers really went to town in the match chalking up scores of 909, 943 and 962 for a total pin-fall of 2,814 and a three-game average of 938. In two of the games, however, it was a close "shave." In the opening session the Icemen tried hard to match the Barber's 909 with an 893 and in the second they battled along in a gallant effort only to finish with 914 to match the Barber's 943. The night-cap was different the scores being 962 and 818. So it was, the Icemen not only had a close shave but a nifty trimming as well.

The Icemen were plenty cool while the Barbers were just the opposite running a temperature around the 200-mark most of the time. They sure turned on the heat and burned the Perri alleys from gutter to gutter.

Bunconti, the Barber anchor man, was in great form. He posted tallies of 217, 214 and 204 for a total of 635 and an average of 211 2-3. Other members of the squad who hit the 200-mark were Recupero, 207; Herman 213 and 201 and Coles, 201.

The three-game clean sweep sent the Barbers smashing into the rear lines of the American Silk Mill now in third place and dropped the Icemen out of a tie for first place right into another tie for second place with the Jersey Centrals.

The GOLDEN FEATHER

by Robert Bruce © 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JEAN DUNN, secretary to DONALD MONTAGUE, lawyer, delays her answer when BOBBY WALLACE, automobile salesman, asks her to marry him.

At The Golden Feather night club she meets SANDY HAWKINS whose business connection is vague. Sandy introduces Bobby and Jean to MR. and MRS. LEWIS and Bobby arranges to sell some bonds for Lewis. He sells them to Donald Montague. Lewis buys a car.

LARRY GLENN, federal agent, is trying to locate WINGY LEWIS, bank robber. He learns about the bond transaction and questions Bobby. The bonds were stolen. Larry believes the car Lewis bought was armored by undertakes to find out. Bobby.

Jean goes to her home town for a vacation. Sandy comes to see her and she agrees to marry him. Bobby believes he has a lead on the location of the factory where armored cars are made and goes alone to investigate.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVI

THE little valley opened about 100 yards from Pulaski road. The driveway led downward, swinging sharply to the left and then to the right again in a barren region that seemed almost desert-like. Once out of sight of the main highway, Bobby could see nothing but the bleak, grimy hillocks.

The driveway kept on going down hill; and at last it made one more turn and came out in a queer little hollow. At the other side, a few rods away, there was a precipitous bank, crowned by a long row of gone-to-seed dwellings; on the right hand and on the left a similar bank hemmed the place in. And in the center of the hollow there was a long, ancient building of red brick with a time-stained roof of galvanized iron.

"A brick yard!" said Bobby suddenly. That, obviously, was what the place had been—once.

It was perfectly clear that no bricks had been made here for many a year. But it was equally clear that the central building was still in use. A freshly-painted black chimney rose from the farther end, with a wisp of smoke threading its way up toward the evening sky: and surrounding the whole thing there was a new, business-like fence of woven wire, seven feet high, with barbed-wire strands on the top and a substantial gate at the point where the driveway entered. Inside this gate three or four cars were parked.

AS Bobby drove up, a man got up from a seat beside the gate. He let himself out and strolled up to Bobby's car with insolent slowness, his thumbs hooked in his belt. He wore no coat, and his vest was unbuttoned; and beneath his left armpit the black butt of a revolver, tucked away in a shoulder holster, was plainly visible.

"What do you want?" he asked.

Bobby did his best to look confused and lost.

"Why," he said, "I was looking for a short-cut over to—to Grand River boulevard. I thought this was it."

"Well, it isn't," said the man.

"Oh," said Bobby. He looked at the building with what he hoped was just the right degree of innocent interest. "What is this?"

"Never mind what it is," said the man. "This's a private road, and you're trespassing. Scram!"

He casually moved his vest back, to give Bobby a better look at the revolver. Bobby grinned suddenly. "Okay, partner," he said. He backed up and swung around, while the guard stood watching him with fallen suspicion. Then, casting a last glance at the erstwhile brick plant, Bobby drove up the roadway to Pulaski road again.

On his way back to town Bobby was the prey of a pleasurable excitement, not unmixed with an even more pleasurable feeling of self-congratulation. He had found something queer, that was certain; something almighty queer, tucked away in that inaccessible hollow, surrounded by an unclimbable fence and guarded by a surly watchman with a revolver. Was this the place Mark Hopkins and MacFarlane had visited the afternoon before?

The reddish dust on Hopkins' car testified that they had gone along Pulaski road back of the steel mill; and if they had done that, this queer place back in the hollow seemed to be the only conceivable goal.

"I've got something!" Bobby told himself jubilantly. "I'll bet a dollar to an old doughnut that's the place Larry Glenn's looking for. And I better tell Larry about it right off—I should like to find out something more before I do. Gosh, I wish I could get just a little more dope before I tell him. Maybe I can. Waiting another week won't hurt anything. . . . Anyhow, I'll go see him tonight."

He returned the car to the rental agency, walked to a drug store, entered a telephone booth, and rang Larry's office in the federal building. Larry was still in. He greeted Bob warmly and invited him to have dinner with him.

THEY ate at a pleasant little restaurant near the federal building, and there Bobby guilefully told Larry just enough about Mark Hopkins' mysterious trip to whet the federal man's interest. He did not tell him of having found the peculiar building in the hollow off Pulaski road, but he told him enough to convince him that he was on a trail of something.

"That's fine," said Larry. "As soon as you get anything definite let me know so I can get some of our men working on it. You see, Bobby—all I want from you is just a hint; I'll do more than that. We can run it down. If our suspicions are correct, running the thing down may be rather dangerous, and I don't want you to run any risk of getting hurt. Will you promise me to call me as soon as you have anything we can work on?"

He looked at Bobby with his keen gray eyes and Bobby solemnly promised. He felt a trifle guilty about concealing his knowledge; but he was determined to vindicate himself in the elder man's estimation for his lamentable flyer in stolen bonds; and, besides, he rather enjoyed the thrill of amateur detective work.

Their food was served and they began to eat. Larry carved off a bite of steak and ate it thoughtfully; then he laid down his fork and knife and leaned forward confidentially.

"I'm going to tell you something that you're not really entitled to know about," he said. "I wouldn't do it, except that it concerns Jean."

Bobby looked up, startled.

"We raided the apartment your friends the Lewises were occupying," said Larry. "They'd got out before we got there, but we did get plenty of fingerprints. Today I got the identifications back from Washington, and I want you to know about them.

"To begin with, your friend Lewis—the man who so kindly put that bond deal in your way—is a known criminal. He used to be a confidence man, out west—specialized in selling bogus oil and gold stocks, and did time in Colorado for swindling, some six or eight years ago. A year or so ago he fell in with the Red Jackson gang of bank robbers. Since then he's been one of Jackson's right-hand men. And this may interest you—it seems he specializes in disposing of the 'hot' securities that the gang picks up in its travels."

LARRY went on, "But that isn't the most important part. It's this chap Harkins I wanted to tell you about, because he's been seeing more or less of Jean, I guess.

"We got his prints out of that apartment, too, and sent them in. And it develops that he's a gunman from Oklahoma. He did a term in the Oklahoma pen for robbery a few years ago. Came out on parole last summer, and is believed to have joined the Jackson gang shortly thereafter. His association with Lewis, of course, proves that he joined it.

"So that's who he is. You can see, now, can't you, why I hate to see Jean even listing him among her casual acquaintances? Fortunately, he's no more than that. But even so—"

"I'm not so sure," said Bobby miserably. "The other night, after you left her place, she and I—we had a kind of a quarrel about him. She said she'd been seeing quite a lot of him. I'm—" he paused, and grew red—"I'm afraid she's getting sort of infatuated with him."

Larry looked worried.

"I'll tell her," he said grimly. "It'd be terrible if she let herself get entangled with a man like that. When's she coming back to Dover?"

"Next week, I guess," said Bobby.

"Well, there's a breathing space," said Larry. "It's a cinch Harkins won't be showing up around here for a while yet. That outfit knows by this time that Dover is hot."

He shook his head thoughtfully.

"I ought to have warned her as soon as I found out she'd been a witness for him," he mused. Bobby looked up anxiously. "How was that?" he asked. Larry told him how Jean had gone to the police station to give Sandy an alibi for the Friday afternoon of the payroll holdup.

Bobby wrinkled his forehead in a desperate effort to remember.

"Hey, wait!" he said. "Something's screwy somewhere. If she got the afternoon off the day I went in to see Montague . . . Larry, that was a Thursday, not a Friday!"

"Thursday! Are you dead certain?"

"Of course I am."

Larry's lips tightened.

"We've got to let Jean know who this man is, the moment she gets back," he said grimly. "We can't let her go on drifting toward trouble any longer—"

But fate was against him. For when Jean returned, Larry Glenn was to be far away—and she refused even to listen to Bobby's attempt to warn her.

Two Slight Earth Shocks Frighten Fla. Residents

PALATKA, Fla., Nov. 15—(AP)—Earthquakes were added yesterday to unusually heavy summer rainfall and a freak November hurricane entered in Florida records for 1935.

Just the window—rattling variety, the quakes excited residents along a narrow strip of northern Florida between this city and St. Augustine last night.

Some persons here said they felt a light quiver at 10:10 P. M., Eastern Standard Time. Twenty minutes later a second shock sent frightened citizens hurrying into the street. A theater audience scurried for the exits.

At St. Augustine, a brief shock was felt at 10:30. Surveys disclosed no property damage.

The quakes here followed an earth movement felt in 17 northeastern states and three Canadian Provinces Nov. 1.

South Florida is completing its cleanup after a hurricane which struck the Miami area 10 days ago, doing $3,000,000 damage.

TELEPHONE WORKERS IN HEALTH RALLY

NEPTUNE, Nov. 15.—Almost 4,000 telephone men and women and their families, including about 700 from Monmouth County and vicinity, joined last night from five widely separated points throughout the state in a unique "better health" rally. A network of telephone lines and loud speakers permitted the groups to take part in and hear a single program.

The group meeting for this section filled the auditorium of Neptune High School. Similar get-togethers were held in Paterson, Trenton, and two points in Newark. W. S. Emmons, district equipment superintendent for the New Jersey Bell Telephone Company, was chairman of the meeting for this area, and S. M. Vass, general plant employment supervisor, located at the key meeting in Neptune, Monmouth County, was general chairman of the joint program.

Frank F. Addicks, general plant manager for the telephone company, also spoke from Neptune. He described the general rally as an attempt to dramatize a new drive to establish out-of-hour health and safety standards for telephone people comparable to the records established on the telephone job and in driving the telephone fleet of motor vehicles.

Addicks reported that five times as many injuries causing absence from work are suffered off the job as compared to on-the-job accidents. He also declared the common cold to be the greatest menace among illnesses keeping telephone people away from work, pointing out that the younger groups in the organization are more frequent victims of colds than the older employes, "probably because the young people are exposed to the colds of their children."

A sound motion picture, "Not a Chance," was given its first showing at the meetings. The picture was planned and produced by the telephone plant department as part of its health-safety program. The picture illustrates in story form some of the common causes of accidents and illnesses.

Club Literature Group Celebrates 100th Anniversary of Twain's Birth

English Teacher Presents Talk on Famous Humorist

Department Chairman Reads Excerpts from Biography

"Mark Twain," whose 100th anniversary is being observed this month, was the subject of the Literature Department meeting yesterday at the home of Mrs. Edgar L. Clewell of Fort Monmouth which attracted about 40 Woman's Club members and their friends.

Miss Dora M. Davis, teacher of English in the local high school, was the speaker, who gave an interesting discourse on "Mark Twain, the Prose Laureate of Our Democracy," as well as human interest bits concerning his family life. Mrs. Alexander P. Paul, chairman of the department, welcomed those present and read an excerpt from the Biography of Mark Twain by Bradford, and Mrs. Aage Nielsen of Red Bank Woman's Club presented a program of brief book reviews.

The life of Mark Twain proved exceedingly instructive as it was divulged by Miss Davis, who has access to many friendships and relatives of the renowned humorist. Besides the facts concerning his career, during which he mixed humor with sound philosophy, there were also the points about his family life at Elmira, N. Y., where he lived and died, which made the speaker's talk even more appealing.

Although Mark Twain is always pictured as the humorist, Miss Davis was emphatic in stating that when his works were carefully studied, under the surface he seems not a humorist, but almost a pessimistic critic of the democracy.

Mark Twain's Works

Among the works which show his laureateship, which were mentioned by Miss Davis, were "The Jumping Frog", "Innocents Abroad", "Roughing It", "The Gilded Age", "The Prince and the Pauper", "Tom Sawyer", "Huckelberry Finn", "Life on the Mississippi", "Connecticut Yankee", "Puddin' Head Wilson" and others. She also remarked that it was only after his death that his serious writings were published. Among his posthumously published books were "Mystery Stranger" and "What is Man".

Mrs. Nielsen, whose topic involved "best sellers," gave condensed resumes of numerous leading literary works of the modern period. Among those which she discussed were "It Can't Happen Here," by Sinclair Lewis; Beau Carter's Book; "Asylum," Seabrook; "Life With Father," Clarence Dey; "Vein of Iron," Ellen Glasgow; "North to the Orient," Anne Lindbergh; "Green Light," Douglas and others.

At the close of the program tea was served and Mrs. Paul and Mrs. Alexander Mackintosh, Woman's Club president, poured. Decorations consisted of bronze chrysanthemums and green candles.

Among the Guests

Among those present were Mrs. Harmon Bradford, Mrs. Henry D. Binley, Mrs. Andrew Hoffman, Ms. C. W. Blakeslee, Mrs. George Burtt, Mrs. Winn M. Rose, Mrs. James L. Guire, Mrs. Robert F. Topping, Mrs. Harry C. Scobey, Miss Dora M. Davis, Mrs. Betty R. Peters, Mrs. R. S. Bicknell, Mrs. A. F. Nielsen, Mrs. H. H. Forsythe.

Also, Mrs. B. A. Falk, Mrs. J. V. N. Conover, Mrs. Charles Clark, Jr., Mrs. Frank J. Maps, Mrs. Alexander Mackintosh, Miss M. A. Smock, Mrs. Jacob Steinbach, Jr., Mrs. Lester T. Layton, Miss Anna D. Clark, Miss Elizabeth J. Smith, Mrs. Amelie S. Van Note, Mrs. William S. Tobey, Mrs. Stanley Edwards, Mrs. Charles Maggs, Mrs. John F. Simpson, Mrs. Louis E. Dequine, Mrs. Madeleine V. Lazarus, Mrs. A. S. Cowan, Mrs. Roy H. Coles, Mrs. T. W. Shearer.

Jersey Shore Hadassah to Bring Molly Picon, Actress, to Asbury Park

Holds Membership Tea at Red Bank Home

RED BANK, Nov. 15—Arrangements for Molly Picon, most famous Jewish actress in the country, to appear in Asbury Park on the tentative date of Jan. 12 were made yesterday afternoon by the Jersey Shore Chapter of Hadassah at the membership tea held at the residence of Mrs. Jacob Yanko, Peters Place. Announcement was also made of the linen shower to be held by the Asbury Park Juniors Dec. 12 in the Asbury Park Temple with Mrs. Harry Altman as chairman. The Long Branch and Asbury Park Junior clubs will combine in presenting the entertainment. Admission will be articles of wearing apparel or household goods to be sent to Palestine.

Miss Sarah Schwartz, president of the Long Branch Junior Club, announced 15 new members had been received in their group. She extended a cordial invitation to the young Jewish women of Red Bank to come to the membership tea to be held Nov. 24 at the Ledwitz residence on Chelsea Avenue.

The meeting which was to have been held Nov. 28 has been postponed until Dec. 5 because of the holiday. It will be held at the residence of Mrs. Charles Levinsohn with Mrs. Charles Frankel speaking on "The Jew and Classical Culture".

Discusses Fund

Miss Florence Forgotson, president, introduced the speaker, who was Mrs. Emanuel Halperin, national education chairman. Mrs. Halperin discussed Hadassah and the Jewish National Fund.

Mrs. Halperin explained that the purpose of Hadassah is to rebuild Palestine as the Jewish home-land where refugees from other nations can go to colonize and rebuild their homes and lives. She spoke of the Balfour Declaration made by England Nov. 2, 1917, which established British rule for 25 years after which it is the hope that it will be turned over to the Jewish people. The place has seen a tremendous development since that time with some 350,000 Jews now settled in Palestine with more than half of them arrivals of the last five years.

The work being done in Palestine, in schools, colleges, hospitals and clinics is being financed mainly by Jewish organizations in this country who are lending a helping hand to the German and Polish refugees who have sought peace and freedom in that country. The Hadassah has paid for the health work done in Palestine and is now enlarging its scope to included colonization. For this work the Jewish National Fund has been established and it was in its cause that Mrs. Haleprin spoke yesterday.

A card party Dec. 21 at the home of Mrs. Harry Altman, 307 Sixth Avenue, Asbury Park will honor the 75th birthday of Henrietta Szold, founder of Hadassah and supervisor of the German-Jewish refugees in Palestine, where she makes her home.

How Boys Can Become Popular With Girls | Says, Don't Assume All Girls Are Dumb Doras

Girls Are Easy to Please, but There Are Certain Rules Every Boy Must Follow if He Hopes to Be the Favored One

BOYS, if you want to make a hit with the girls: Don't be patronizing. Don't act as if you were the answer to a maiden's prayer, and that she should be down on her knees thanking Heaven that you have deigned to notice her.

The boys who assume the Grand Vizier attitude toward girls are mistaken if they think they are overflowing with gratitude at having the handkerchief thrown to them. What they are filled with is thoughts of murder. Don't assume that you are Old Man Solomon and that every girl is a Dumb Dora that you have to talk down to. There are more than twice as many girls who are high school and college graduates as there are boys. Because a girl rolls her eyes at you and asks you fool questions is no sign she doesn't know all the answers.

Don't take it for granted that every girl you meet falls in love with you at sight and is dying to get you. To most of them you are just a meal and theatre ticket and they wouldn't marry you on a bet.

Don't sit on the back of your neck when you take a girl out and make her do all of the entertaining. Fair play is fair play and it is up to you to supply as much vivacity as she does, and do your part toward making the evening a success.

Don't think you can dispense with good manners just because you are a man and girls are so humble nowadays that they put up with any sort of treatment from their dates. There isn't a girl in the world who doesn't resent in her secret soul a boy driving up to her house and honking for her until she comes out and climbs in the car by herself, or who wouldn't like to take her mad money and go home alone when a boy takes her to a party and dumps her down and leaves her to shift for herself while he goes off to amuse himself in his own way. Chivalry may be dead, but it is what every woman in the world craves. Remember in all the old melodramas it is the villain with the polished manners whom no woman can resist.

Don't use the same line with every girl. Use your brains and think up a new lead. Don't ask every girl, five minutes after you first meet her, where she has been all your life and follow it up by telling her how different she is from all other women. That's old stuff and every girl has heard it so often that it doesn't get a rise out of her.

Don't be sloppy. A girl can forgive a man for breaking all the Ten Commandments easier than she can for lacking a shave and a shoe shine. No girl wants to be seen out with a boy who looks as if he had just been fished out of the ashcan and needed to be run through the laundry and the clothes presser. A noble heart may beat under a coat with soup stains on it, and a gigantic brain surmount a soiled collar, but they don't make any hit with a girl who spends a large proportion of her time and money in the beauty shops.

Don't brag. Don't entertain a girl by blowing your own horn and telling her how wonderful you are or what a wizard of finance and how crazy your boss is about you. You are not fooling her even if she does look at you round-eyed and yes-yes you. She sized you up to the last hair on your head the first time she saw you and can guess within 50 cents of what is in your pay envelope. Above all, don't brag to a girl about what a heart-smasher you are. She sets you down as a cad and gives you the air because she doesn't want to be next.

Don't talk about yourself all the time. The only woman in the world who is interested in hearing all the details of what you do and think and say is your mother. Anyway, give the poor girl a chance. She would like to talk about herself a little.

Don't be stingy. When you take a girl out don't act as if you begrudged every cent you spent on her. Don't buy the cheapest seats in the theatre nor cut-rate candy. Make her feel that you consider her worth the price. Better a ham sandwich ordered with a lordly air than a dinner at the Ritz, where you add up the bill and haggle with the waiter.

Don't be an easy mark. Don't fall for hints. Don't let a girl make you spend more than you can afford, or use you as a convenience. All girls have a contempt for the man they can work.

Don't be a deadbeat. Don't eat a girl's food and camp on her chairs and ride in her car without paying her back in some way. If you haven't any money to spend on her, show her attentions. Be Johnny-on-the-spot whenever she needs an escort.

Follow these rules, boys, and you will be popular with girls. For girls are easy to please where men are concerned.

Poster Contest Encourages Study of Art Among Rumson School Pupils

RUMSON, Nov. 15—As an incentive for the study of art and also as a means of impressing the value of safety in every day living upon the school students of Rumson, a poster contest was sponsored by the Oceanic Library in celebration of Safety Week. Judges of the posters were Mrs. E. Knapp, Miss Esther Bruce, librarian, and Miss Barbara Emerson, drawing instructor at the high school. The following students were the winners: Robert Breitenbach, 10th grade, who was awarded first prize of $3 for his poster entitled, "Keep Poisons Out of Children's Reach;" Jean Stevens, 10th grade, second, $2 for her illustration, "Carlessness Starts Fires;" Tony Mellaci, 8th grade, for "Drive Slowly" and Albert Noonan for "Safety Signals," honorable mention.

Among the donors of other posters accepted for consideration by the judges were Donald Worthington, Howard Leon, Mabel Hendrickson, Florence Martin, Ruth Mellish, Betty Sinclair, Sue Byers, Helen Sinclair, Henry Russek, Robert Purgavie, Daniel Murphy, Caroly Cadwallader, Grace Friscia, Sarah Wolbach, Ethel Rufe, Mary Lazaro, Edward Hammond, William Scalzo, Janet Farrier, Jane Pearsall, Agnes Wade, Arthur Murphy, Patsy Williams, and Robert Cameron.

Slogans, emphasizing every phase of Safety Week, were submitted by these students. Among the slogans illustrated were Prevent Forest Fires, Careless Campers Cause Fires, Carlessness Starts Fires, Keep Medicines Labeled, Fasten Down Carpets, Keep Poisons Out of Chidren's Reach, How Are Your Brakes, Cross Crossings Carefully, Don't Pass on a Curve, Drive Slowly, Don't Try to Beat a Train, Cross Streets Carefully, Take Care of Cuts, Don't Play with Matches, Put Garbage in Cans, Cleanliness is Safety, and Don't Walk Barefooted.

The posters are now on exhibit in the Oceanic Library where the public is invited to view them. A similar contest is now being sponsored by the library in observance of National Book Week and the same prizes will be offered. Students of Rumson High School are busy working out ideas to compete for the awards. The judges of the contests have found that a competition of this type is an excellent way of bringing out talent and creative ability in pupils.

Art Programs Planned

Art programs are also being worked out at the school to stimulate and encourage young artists. Those of the students who reveal originality or special ability in any of the art classes are given the opportunity of working on a large wrapping paper mural illustrating some interesting history or geography lesson. They are learning the fundamentals of design, color, lettering and perspective and applying them to something of interest in their school life. The art work is correlated as much as possible with what the pupils are studying in other subjects. Freehand drawing, of course, is stressed in all grades and simplified methods of drawing and using materials are used. In this way even the child who has no talent for drawing accomplishes a great deal and enjoys his new-found ability. Pupils who are talented are encouraged to work at something that will develop their special ability and originality.

In order to correlate art with the three R's of education, projects are being worked out in each of the grades. In the 7th grade an Indian mural of crayon drawings on heavy wrapping paper was made in connection with the study of Indians in history. The types of homes and costumes used by Indians in different parts of the country were illustrated. The pupils are now working on a scene abotu the Pilgrims and early settlers.

Grade 6 is at present concerned with the study of Ancient History. Large scenes about the cave men and the Egyptians were made. A Greek scene is now in the process of being painted. It will serve as a back drop for a constructed cardboard temple, theatre and a chariot race.

New Jersey was the topic of interest in the fifth grade for the past month. A large wrapping paper mural illustrated farming, shipping, pottery, industry, and aviation in the state. Interest in geography is shown very well in this mural and in a large decorative map of New Jersey as well as booklets about New Jersey made by the children for their geography class.

Indian life was the subject of the project worked out in September and October in connection with history work in the fourth grade. A large Indian wigwam was made of burlap and sticks. Tom toms were made of decorated tin boxes with rubber stretched across the top. A wrapping paper scene of Indians and wigwams formed an attractive wall decoration.

In Grade 3, Pilgrims and Indians are being drawn by easy methods by little pupils who will soon be able to create a large classroom picture.

A little story, "Betty June and Her Friends," served as an opportunity to correlate art with readings in the 2nd grade. Pictures of the characters in the story were drawn. A large picture was made for the classroom. A sandcloth model of the house in the story was made and now the pupils are making up a song about the story for their music class. An alphabet book of freehand cut-out letters and illustrations to go with the letters is being made by each pupils.

Grade 1 farm project resulted in a sandtable farm scene, a background picture painted by several first grade pupils and the drawing of farm animals by simple methods. A booklet of freehand cut-out furniture and rooms for a house is now being made

THE TINYMITES — Story by Hal Cochran, Picture by Geo. Scarbo

The Tinies sat right down to see the dance, as tickled as could be. Said Dotty, "This is something we have never seen before.

"The tube of paste and tooth brush will, no doubt, give us a dandy thrill." Just then a little bug flew up and shouted, "What's in store?"

"Hop on that toadstool. Go ahead! Then you will find out." Scouty said. The little bug replied, "Oh, thanks. I'm glad to join your fun.

"I guess a show's about to start. Well, after while, I'll do my part. I'll turn a mock of flipflops that will surprise everyone."

The dance then started. What a sight! The dancers hopped with all their might, and soon the funny tooth brush sang a very clever song.

"When little tots hop out of bed, that's when my work begins," it said. "All teeth should be brushed daily, so they never will go wrong.

"You Tinymites are much too small for one, so I guess I will call some little tooth brush fellows. They'll take care of you all right.

"I know they're hiding some place near and they will dash out when they hear me shout to them. Prepare yourself for quite a thrilling sight."

And thus the little song was o'er. The bug began to shout once more. "Hey, stop your dance. You've danced enough. Just sit right down and rest."

And then it did some flipflops, and the Tinymites thought they were grand. "I'm glad you liked them," said the bug. "I did my very best."

The next thing that the youngsters knew, the tooth brush loudly cried, "You, hoo! Come out, you wee tooth brushes! There is much work to be done."

"My friends, the Tinies, need your aid. They're real nice tots. Don't be afraid." Out came the small tooth brushes, and wee Goldy cried, "What fun!"

Killed Father to Protect Mother, Film Extra Says

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Nov. 15—(AP)—The murder trial of pretty Lois Zachary, former film extra who said she shot her father to save her mother's life, neared the jury.

The 18-year-old brunette told her story between sobs yesterday.

"I heard my father tell my mother that he would kill her and then he started toward the breakfast room where I knew he had a pistol," she cried.

"I knew that he would kill my mother. I fired. I remember firing one shot. I don't remember what happened after that . . . I may have fired again."

The girl's story remained unchanged under an hour's intensive questioning by District Attorney Thomas Whelan.

A dying statement by the father, Roy R. Zachary, in which he excused the girl for her act, was related by a neighbor. She testified that he admitted he was angry enough to have killed his wife.

KEEPING IT STRAIGHT

NEWTON, Ind.—Elmer Carlson, the 1935 national cornhusking champion, said it should be spelled with an "o", not an "e." On entry blanks in previous contests this year his name was set down as "Carlsen."

"I'm a Swede, not a Dane," the champ said, 'that makes it 'o'."

Commuters Club Car Chatter

By L. B. HEBLICH

Members of the Ladies' Jersey Shore Commuters Club were honored one morning last week to have as their guest in the club car, Judge Charles Hendrickson, Supreme Court Commissioner, of Jersey City. He was introduced by Dan Mulherin and spoke a few words of greeting.

As Christmas is now only a few weeks off, many plans are already under way among the members to celebrate it and to set aside a Sunday morning next month for the decoration of the club car for the holidays. The railroad terminal at Bay Head Junction is the place which has been designated for the rendezvous of all those who would enjoy taking part in the "hanging of the greens" in true Yuletide fashion.

"Many hands make light work", so why not consider rallying around the Christmas Tree and take an active part in this bit of merry-making. When a definite date has been set and a committee appointed, a final bulletin will appear in this column.

When the "Christmas Tree on Wheels" with its gay and festive trimmings starts out in the early morning on its daily trip of some 150 miles, the strains of music emanating from a radio tuned soft and low would indeed complete the picture. Such a thing, of course, is at present only visionary, but even dreams sometmes come true, without rubbing Aladdin's Lamp.

As this goes to press we hear rumors of secret conferences with locksmiths and electricians also the possibility of the substitution of another coach for the one now in service. There's magic in the air—black magic? If "where there's a will there's a way" is true, then Dan Mulherin will never be disappointed!

SOME FUN

CHICAGO — Maddis Reczepski, 13, of Suburban Evanston had a swell time until the police stopped it.

Giving the address of Mrs. George Wolf, police said, the boy telephoned the following orders for her:

Two quarts of ice cream, two taxicabs, four chickens, three tenderloin steaks, six bottles of ginger ale, a chocolate cake.

Maddie told the officers: "I just loved to see how all those men looked when they were sent away."

It has been estimated that more than 40,000,000 persons in the United States are improperly housed.

COUNTY PLAYERS PLAN PRODUCTIONS

"Springtime for Henry," Will Be Presented in Freehold Nov. 26

SPRING LAKE, Nov. 15—The Monmouth Community Players, under the direction of Hudson Faussett and Mary Thomas, announced today that their plans for the balance of this year will include the presentation of two dramatic productions. The first of these will be "Springtime for Henry," which will be given on Nov. 26 at the Liberty Theatre in Freehold at a benefit by the Freehold Elks Club, is now in rehearsal. In the cast for this play will be Hudson Faussett, Mary Thomas, Florence Kisner and Clifford Kinkel. Mr. Faussett will direct this play as well as take the leading part. The play is a sprightly comedy which was a hit on Broadway a few years ago and was writen by Bern Levey. It is in three acts and the set for the production will be designed by Harry Taylor. There will be an afternoon and evening performance.

The second production will be a Christmas play, "The Rescue of St. Nick" and will be presented on Dec. 19, 20, 21, at the Spring Lake Comunity House. Last year the Players presented their first Christmas play for children and the production was received so enthusiastically by children and grown-ups alike that the group decided to accede to the numerous requests for a similar play this year. "Tht Rescue of St. Nick" is a fantasy in three acts and three sets. Figuring prominently in this play will be Santa's reindeer and a huge dog named Danger. Both parts will be played by humans. In the three sets will be one titled "The Candy Cane Forest" which, it is assured, will delight the audience. Sets for this play will also be designed by Harry Taylor, Scenic designer for the Players.

The cast for the latter play has not as yet been announced but will go into rehearsal immediately. Properties and costumes have already been obtained in New York and plans have been made to have as many children at the production as can be accommodated.
